How Economy and Liberality Have Been Manifested.

GENERAL BUTLER ON THE PRESIDENT'S TITLE.

Some Facts About the Expenses of the Louisiana Commission.

THE POLITICAL ASSESSMENT QUESTION.

Condition of the Appropriation Bills and Prospects of Adjournment.

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, June 18, 1878.

AMONG THE LAST HOURS OF CONGRESS—DISPOSITION OF IMPORTANT MEASURES.

The Brazilian subsidy job has completely broken down.

The Senate bill to allow greenbacks to be received for four per cents, and to make them receivable for duties in October, failed, less than two-thirds voting to take it up in the House. The hard money men and the inflationists both voted against taking it up, and, as it required two-thirds, it was lost.

The Howgate Arctic bill is lost.

The new classification of mail matter falls with the Post Route bill, which was sunk by the Brazilian Subsidy bill.

Mr. Potter's bill to refer all private claims to the Court of Claims has passed in the House.

The fishery award has been tacked on to the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill in the Senate as an amendment. It will be passed in some shape.

The Wallabout Navy Yard Exchange bill failed.

Mr. Potter's bill referring all private claims to the Court of Claims, one of the most important and necessary measures of the session, passed the House by a sweeping majority, 161 to 74. The democrats voted for it almost solidly and a good many republicans also. It is hoped that the Senate will pass it at once. It will relieve Congress of a great multitude of special and private business which it has not time to attend to, will be a benefit to people who have just claims and will almost destroy the lobby.

The House adjourned early in the evening after having voted to disagree to the Sundry Civil bill as it passed the Senate and demanding a conference. The conferees of the two houses will spend the greater part of the night over the bill, and there is a hope that they will be able to report to the houses early to-morrow. The bill is very long. It gave, as it came from the House Appropriations Committee, $600,000 more than the bill contained which became a law two years ago. The House added to this in various ways, and the Senate increased it by over $4,000,000, exclusive of the fishery award, which has been tacked on as an amendment. The republicans in the Senate have all along shown a strong disposition towards liberal appropriations for various objects. The House, on the contrary, is in a really economical humor, and has so far, under Speaker Randall's lead, defeated almost all the jobs which have appeared. Mr. Randall deserves great credit for his watchfulness and his inflexible opposition to subsidy schemes and jobs of every kind. The lobby are furious with him and complain that he does not recognize their friends, and that he does not give them any chance on conference committees. And this is very true.

This evening the House defeated the Northern Pacific extension, and when that venerable stager, the Choctaw bill, came up, it was not only beaten, but the House refused to set any time in the next session for its consideration.

The navy claims were passed, which was probably a blunder. It was done under a misapprehension of the question. A good many little jobs have perished, but a good many have crept into the Sundry Civil bill, and the attempt to eliminate them will be beset with difficulties.

It is thought possible to-night that the final adjournment will come, according to agreement, to-morrow afternoon. Nothing remains but the Sundry Civil bill and everybody is anxious to get away.

THE EXPENSES OF THE LOUISIANA COMMISSION—CORRECTION OF MISREPRESENTATIONS MADE.

The members of the Louisiana Commission feel sore over the manner in which their accounts were presented in the Senate yesterday. Mr. Wayne McVeagh, for instance, is represented as having received $59 82 for going from Harrisburg to Washington and back, whereas this sum, as his vouchers show, was paid him for various expenses not only before the commission reached New Orleans, but while he was there and during the absence of Mr. Powers, the disbursing clerk. It was also wrongly asserted that Judge Harlan's son's expenses were paid out of the fund, the truth being that Judge Harlan paid his son's travelling expenses to and from New Orleans, but while in that city the son was employed in a clerical capacity by the commission, and while engaged his hotel bills were paid.

The Commissioners all paid out of their own pockets the travelling expenses and hotel bills of relatives or friends who accompanied them, and they gave their own time and labors free of charge. The whole expense of the commission was but $3,900, and they settled the Louisiana question and gave peace to the State and the country.

Previous committees of the House and Senate cost a great many thousand dollars each and left matters unsettled.

Mr. McVeagh, when he was first asked to go upon the commission, strongly urged that the members should pay their own expenses, but it was objected that as they were to give their time, and as they must necessarily incur greater expenses than mere pleasure travellers, and as the object was entirely public, it was not right to burden them with the payment of the expenses, and this seems a just view.

POLITICAL ASSESSMENTS—CLERKS TO BE PROTECTED IN A REFUSAL TO PAY.

The President has given notice to all the members of the Cabinet that he will not have any of their subordinates anywhere, either here or in the custom houses and post offices elsewhere, coerced into the payment of political assessments. If any one wants to pay he may freely do so, but if any one chooses to refuse the President will support him in that refusal. He read to the Cabinet the letter addressed by Secretary Schurz to a clerk in the Interior Department and told them that this expressed his views and has his consent. If there is any attempt in the custom houses to levy political assessments, clerks have only to complain to the President and he will see that they are protected in their refusal to pay.

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, June 18, 1878.

THE HEAD MONEY BILL PASSED.

Senator Conkling withdrew his motion to-night to reconsider the vote by which the Senate passed the bill, which originated in the House, to ratify the collection of head money by the State Emigrant Commissioners of New York and other ports. The bill now goes to the President for his signature.

THE TOBACCO BILL—COURSE OF THE SUPPORTERS OF THE MEASURE.

The representatives of the tobacco manufacture here, owing to the near close of Congress, have concluded to allow their bill to lie in the Senate until December, when they expect to press it forward with full confidence of success, with April 1 as the time for the reduced rate to take effect. This action is taken in concert with the successful managers of the bill in Congress.

GENERAL WASHINGTON DESPATCHES.

WASHINGTON, June 18, 1878.

THE PRESIDENTIAL TITLE—GENERAL BUTLER'S REPORT AS AN INDIVIDUAL MEMBER OF THE JUDICIARY COMMITTEE.

General Butler, as an individual member of the Judiciary Committee, to-day submitted to the House of Representatives his reasons for dissenting from the resolution and report of the majority in regard to the inviolability of the President's title. He says:—

The resolution of the majority is simply an expression of opinion that the two houses of the Forty-fourth Congress having counted the vote cast for President and Vice President and declared the result of the election, there is no power in a subsequent Congress to reverse that declaration. Certain I am that an opinion on this question was not asked by the State of Maryland, either by the resolution of the State or by the bill. Both sought only a remedy through the courts. I could agree to that opinion, and yet the question submitted to the committee would not be answered—that the "declaration," if made, can never be reversed, either by Congress or courts.

He agrees with the committee that Congress has no power under the constitution to confer upon the Supreme Court of the United States the original jurisdiction sought for it in the Blair-Kimmel bill, but he says:—

The question at issue is whether the actual President of the United States has a just and legal title to the office he holds. A contestation upon that question, if it were possible to be had before the Court, would make a "case" which may well enough be defined to be a controversy between contending parties under the forms of law before a court. If a proper law was passed by which this contention could be brought before the Supreme Court in behalf of the people of the United States through the Attorney General, or by any other known means, then no one would doubt that a "case" would be made "arising under the constitution and laws of the United States," and such a case would be within the judicial power of the United States, which "is vested in one Supreme Court and in such inferior courts as the Congress may from time to time ordain and establish."

Now, unless it is said that this contention does not involve a construction of the constitution and laws of the United States, it is clearly within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court, which is specifically vested with this judicial power by the constitution. This supreme and universal grant of judicial power and jurisdiction by the constitution to the Supreme Court, the majority of the committee find it convenient to ignore and omit from their report, and content themselves by saying that they are of the opinion that the expressions "cases" and "controversies" were not intended by the framers of the constitution to embrace an original proceeding by a State in the Supreme Court of the United States to oust any incumbent from a political office.

General Butler fully concurs in that opinion, but he is unable to see how it could be supposed that jurisdiction was claimed to arise under a special grant of jurisdiction of "case or controversy" between a State and citizens of another State. The question at the bar is no such question—it is a question between the United States and the people thereof and the person filling an office to which, it is claimed, he has in law and equity no title.

After further argument General Butler says:—

But the constitution does not impart to either of the three branches of the government any such independence of the others as the argument of the committee assumes. Congress cannot try a case, but the proper powers of the judiciary are for the most part inexecutable without suitable provisions of law on the part of Congress. So Congress cannot appoint a Secretary of State or of the Treasury, but such officers exist only in virtue of acts of Congress, and the statute book is full of provisions of law defining or limiting the functions of the President, in passing which Congress has complete power by a two-thirds vote in despite of the President. As to the relation of the Judiciary to the President, it is notorious that the legality of the official acts of the President, and of those of the heads of departments, which are in law his acts, continually comes under the supervision of the Judiciary, not the Supreme Court only, but inferior courts, which not seldom have had occasion to pronounce acts of the President or of his secretaries contrary to the constitution or to the principles of common justice. And as to the person of the President, whence comes this novel doctrine that he is above the law of the land? God forbid that a President of the United States should ever commit a common crime, but if he were to do so, is he not amenable to law therefor? If he usurps possession of the property of another, may he not be sued in the courts? And yet, according to the theory of the committee, he may commit the greatest possible act of illegality—usurpation of his act—without amenableness to the Judiciary or any other power. I do most earnestly protest against all such exaggerations of the office of the President. No man in the United States, be he high or low, is above the law, and I deplore the actual condition of the Presidency, to maintain which unchallenged, wise and good men are driven to such desperate resorts of argument.

The committee further rest the finality of the "declaration" upon the action of the body known as an Electoral Commission. As to this commission I have made long, patient and painful search for any constitutional authority or precedent for the interference of such a body in the counting of the electoral votes. I do not regret to say that I have not been able to find such authority. The fact that it has been exercised would stand for something in its favor were it not that all who had to do with its creation say they acted under duress in what they did toward making it; that they acted under fear of violence, of revolution, of civil war, fears and apprehensions which are not conducive to clear perceptions of constitutional duty or which give any weight to the propriety of legislative action engendered thereby. It is remarkable, however, upon the question of the power of the courts, that the sixth section of the act creating the Electoral Commission provided as follows:—

"That nothing in this act shall be held to impair any right now existing under the constitution and laws to question by proceeding in the judicial courts of the United States the right or title of the person who shall be declared elected, or who shall claim to be President or Vice President of the United States, if any such right exists."

I do not cite this provision as authority having any considerable weight upon this question as to the power of Congress to enable the courts to adjudicate the title of the President, because it seems to me, and as I have been informed by those who were instrumental in passing it, that this provision was added to the act to make it acceptable to its opponents—that is, to hold out a hope and expectation to whomever might be injured by the action of the commission or the two houses that they could have their wrongs redressed by the courts, a sort of deprecation, as it were, against the exercise of force and violence to prevent the operation of this Electoral Commission act by any party who should have felt himself aggrieved thereby. Besides, the decision of the Electoral Commission, so constituted, by fears and false hopes, was not made by such a vast, preponderating and overwhelming unanimity as would too much commend itself to the consideration of just men.

He then notices the argument advanced by the committee that all departments of the government and also the people of the United States have acquiesced in the count and in the induction of President Hayes into office. He calls attention to the resolution adopted by the majority of the House on the 4th of March, 1877, declaring that Tilden and Hendricks had been elected, and in regard to the acquiescence of the people, he says it was induced by the same fears of revolution and violence which overbore the judgment of Congress in creating an unconstitutional body, especially as "hopes were held out to them by the sixth section of the bill, that the whole matter, if wrong were done, would be tried in a peaceful and proper manner before some competent court, in the judicial determination of which everybody would quietly and peacefully acquiesce." He concludes as follows:—

I cannot but think it remarkable that, in the face of the sixth section of the act establishing the Electoral Commission, the committee should have come to the conclusion that the proceedings of this committee or Congress subsequent thereto constitute an immovable finality, when the law itself declares the contrary, and the contrary was emphatically assumed by the House of Representatives. Instead of constituting a finality those proceedings were, on their face and in express terms, merely a temporary expediency or device to avoid the contingency of a lapsed election, for which the constitution had made no provision. Congress, by the express words of the law, declared that its object and effect were provisional only. The President entered upon his office with the express notice that his tenure was questionable in character, of doubtful validity, not made absolute by the interposition of the extra constitutional commission, but to be examined and adjudicated upon by the courts. How is it possible to overlook or misunderstand such a state of facts, by which it appears that subjection to future trial by the courts is the express and explicit condition of conceding the inauguration of President Hayes?

Furthermore, the committee assume that the whole question here is of the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court. I have followed them in the discussion of these premises, but the question is really a much larger one. They were, perhaps, led into this limited view of the subject by having before them a bill which proposed reference to the Supreme Court. But the true starting point of inquiry is provided by the sixth section of the Electoral Commission act, of January, 1877, which speaks of "proceeding in the judicial courts of the United States without restricting possible inquiry to the Supreme Court of the United States; and can it be doubted that the justices of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia would have jurisdiction to hear and try an information in the nature of a quo warranto, filed by the Attorney General at the relation of any citizen contesting the title of any officeholder in this district? May not such power be conferred on any Circuit Court of the United States? I have heard it stated as an objection against the exercise of the power, and therefore as an argument that the power does not exist peaceably to settle a controverted election of President through the medium of the courts, that such a proceeding would be revolutionary and a "Mexicanization" of the government—whatever that may be. Let us state the question and see what is and what is not revolutionary. It is claimed by a majority of the committee that if by force or fraud, by forgery and perjury, by corruption and bribery, a man may buy or defraud a Congress into counting forged electoral certificates of fraudulent votes, and be allowed to usurp thereby the office of President of the United States, there is then no remedy against his exercise of the high duties of that office, and wielding all its great power for four years, within the power of our constitution. I will not admit that our fathers have made any such constitution or frame of government for the welfare of the people. I cannot admit that there is no remedy for so great a wrong known to the republican form of government, guarded by constitutional checks and balances and legal and judicial remedies. It so then our republican form of government is a failure and will go out in night and darkness to the extinction of popular rights, and be succeeded by a government in which the army shall put up at auction for the highest bidder the right to exercise supreme executive power, as was done in the Roman Empire. Then, indeed, there is no remedy left us but revolution, instead of the peaceable one, through the action of the judicial courts acting under the constitution in a legitimate manner, to which all from the highest to the lowest have bowed and always will bow and to the decrees of which all will quietly submit. So far as I understand the term Mexicanize military usurpation is the Mexican mode of determining who is rightfully President. The one I prefer is the American mode of determining that question—reverence for law and submission to judicial tribunals.

I do not discuss the question whether any other remedy exists by the action of the two houses of Congress on the subject of the recognition of Presidential acts of an officer who has intruded himself wrongfully into the government, because that question was not before the committee and it is not before this House. I am glad, too, it passes from my hands, to be dealt with whenever it arises by abler and stronger men who may occupy the seats which we occupy, to deal with that question if ever it may unhappily arise. Respectfully submitted,

BENJ. F. BUTLER.

GENERAL SUPERINTENDENT OF THE LIFE SAVING SERVICE.

The President sent the following nomination to the Senate to-day:—

Sumner S. Kimball, of Maine, to be general superintendent of the life saving service, and the nomination was soon thereafter confirmed.

CONFIRMATIONS BY THE SENATE.

The Senate, in executive session to-day, confirmed the following nominations:—

To be Registers of Land Offices—Edward F. Taylor, of California, at Sacramento, Cal.; Jesse E. Wheelock, of Minnesota, at Fargo, D. T.

To be Indian Agents—William H. H. Wasson, of Illinois, for the Flandreau Agency, Dakota; Edward C. Kemble, of New York, for the Crow Creek Agency, Dakota; Asa D. Baker, of New York, for the Red Lake Agency, Minnesota; S. S. Lawson, of Illinois, for the Missouri Agency, California.

George Eyester, of Pennsylvania, to be United States Assistant Treasurer at Philadelphia, Pa.

NOMINATIONS NOT YET ACTED UPON.

The nominations of Messrs. Phelps and Dent as District Commissioners have not yet been reported to the Senate from the committees to which they were referred.

The nominations of Messrs. Fenton, Groesbeck and Walker to be Commissioners to the International Monetary Conference have been reported from the Finance Committee without recommendation, and are now on the Senate calendar of executive business awaiting action. The omission of favorable recommendation by the committee was owing to the fact that a majority of its members present when they were considered are not in sympathy with their financial views.

PROCEEDINGS OF CONGRESS.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, June 18, 1878.

The Chaplain, in his opening prayer, after invoking the Divine blessing upon the members of the Senate, prayed that they might return safely to their homes; that they might be able to look back upon the history they have made here with satisfaction, and that it might have the national approbation.

Messrs. McMillan and Teller were excused from service on the Conference Committee on the bill in regard to elections in West Virginia and the election of United States Senator in New Hampshire.

THE POST ROUTE BILL.

Mr. KIRKWOOD, (rep.) of Iowa, from the Conference Committee on the Post Route bill, reported that the committee had been unable to agree, and the report was laid on the table for the present.

The Senate then, on motion of Mr. Sargent, went into Executive Session, and when the doors were reopened Mr. WINDOM (rep.) of Minn., submitted a resolution to extend the session until six o'clock tomorrow (Wednesday) evening. Agreed to.

THE SUNDRY CIVIL BILL.

The Senate then resumed the consideration of the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill, the pending question being on the amendment of Mr. Blaine in regard to the payment of contractors for mail service in the Southern States in the years 1859, 1860 and 1861, so as to provide that every claimant paid under the provisions of the act shall give a bond to the United States for the return of any sum paid which subsequently shall be shown to have been paid by the Confederate government.

THE INTERNAL REVENUE.

A message was read from the House of Representatives announcing the passage of the bill to amend the laws relating to internal revenue.

Mr. WITHERS, (dem.) of Va., moved that the bill lie on the table for the present and be printed, his object being to have it considered without reference to a committee.

Mr. SARGENT, (rep.) of Cal., objected to the second reading of the bill to-day, and it was laid aside, under the rule forbidding the second reading, until to-morrow.

Mr. RANSOM, (dem.) of N. C., appealed to the Senator from California to withdraw his objection, but Mr. Sargent said he could not do so. He made the motion intelligently, and in the interest of his constituents.

The amendment directing the Secretary of the Treasury to pay the Southern mail contractors for services rendered prior to the war, out of the appropriation of $375,000 for that purpose made by the act of March 3, 1877, was discussed at some length and various amendments were laid on the table.

Mr. SPENCER, (rep.) of Ala., submitted an amendment providing that any part of such appropriation not needed for the purpose of paying said contractors shall be used for the establishment of mail steamship service between New York and Rio Janeiro and New Orleans and Rio Janeiro once a month from each port, and that the Postmaster General may pay therefor $30 a mile. (Laughter.)

Mr. HOAR, of Massachusetts, inquired if it would be in order to amend so as to incorporate a provision to re-enact the franking privilege. (Renewed laughter.)

The amendment of Mr. Spencer was ruled out upon a point of order of Mr. Windom that it contained new legislation and was not german to this bill.

The clause providing for the payment of these contractors was finally agreed to, with the amendment of Mr. Blaine, providing that persons receiving money shall give a bond for its return, &c., in case it shall be subsequently discovered that they were paid by the Confederate government, and that of Mr. Hoar, providing for the punishment by fine and imprisonment of all persons receiving amounts of claims previously paid.

Mr. WINDOM submitted an amendment providing for a modification of the contract with James B. Eads, for the improvement of the South Pass of the Mississippi River so as to make payments to him monthly, &c., and in explanation thereof said it was the same measure which passed the Senate a few days ago, but could not be reached in the House of Representatives. He, therefore, proposed it as an amendment to this bill.

Mr. BURNSIDE, (rep.) of R. I., raised the point of order that it was new legislation, but the Senate overruled the objection, and the amendment was agreed to.

Mr. MORRILL, (rep.) of Vt., submitted an amendment, making the necessary appropriation for the purchase of land to increase the width of the roadway around the Naval Monument, on the west front of the Capitol.

Mr. BECK, (dem.) of Ky., opposed the amendment and advocated the removal of the Naval Monument. It was put there to perpetuate, in marble, for all time a civil war. It would keep up ill feeling. He gave notice that at the proper time he would move to strike out of the House bill the clause appropriating $100,000 for improving the Capitol grounds and paving around the Naval Monument. He thought the Capitol should be let alone for the present.

Mr. MORRILL said the monument did not seem to represent much of a war spirit. It looked exceedingly peaceable. There were two women on top of it crying and so far as he could see women all about it. (Laughter.)

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. BLAINE, of Maine, called attention to the amendment already agreed upon providing that newspapers shall be paid commercial rates for advertising, and moved to amend so as to provide that advertisements inserted by the government since April 10, 1877, shall be paid for at like rates. Agreed to.

THE FISHERY AWARD.

Mr. EATON, (dem.) of Conn., from the Committee on Foreign Relations, submitted an amendment appropriating $5,500,000 in gold coin, out of any money in the Treasury, to be placed under the direction of the President of the United States, with which to pay the government of Her Britannic Majesty the amount awarded by the Fisheries Commission lately assembled in Halifax, in pursuance of the Treaty of Washington, if, after correspondence with the British government on the subject of the conformity of the award to the requirements of the treaty and to the terms of the question thereby submitted to the Commission, the President shall deem it his duty to make the payment without further communication with Congress. Agreed to without discussion.

Mr. BURNSIDE, of Rhode Island, submitted an amendment making the necessary appropriation for the purchase of land in Providence, R. I., for the erection of an additional building for use by the Custom House.

Mr. KERNAN, (dem.) of N. Y., opposed the amendment, and said if Congress was now going to commence new public buildings the Treasury could not stand the drain upon it.

The SENATE then, by a vote of yeas 18, nays 24, refused to lay the amendment on the table. It was then agreed to.

Mr. ALLISON, (rep.) of Iowa, submitted an amendment providing that signal service men shall not receive extra duty pay unless specially directed by the Secretary of War. Agreed to.

PROVIDING FOR LIEUTENANT HOXIE.

Mr. ALLISON also submitted an amendment repealing so much of the act recently passed providing a permanent form of government for the District of Columbia as limits the rank of the officer of the Engineer corps to be detailed as Commissioner of the District.

Mr. SARGENT, of California, raised the point of order that it was new legislation and not germane to this bill. The Senate, by a vote of yeas 39, nays 9, decided that it was germane.

Mr. SARGENT said it was evident that Senators were influenced in their votes by their feelings more than by their judgment. The only reason for this amendment was that an interesting young lady recently married an interesting young man (alluding to the marriage of Lieutenant Hoxie, now District Engineer, to Miss Vinnie Ream), and the result of the bill recently passed excluded him from office.

Mr. VOORHEES, of Indiana, spoke of Lieutenant Hoxie as an officer of distinguished ability, and it was not just to exclude him from an office which he had filled satisfactorily on account of rank.

Mr. SAULSBURY, (dem.) of Del., and others concurred with Mr. Voorhees, and after a brief discussion the amendment of Mr. Allison was agreed to.

A large number of amendments were submitted and ruled out on points of order that they were not reported by any committee.

REPORTED TO THE SENATE.

The bill having been considered in Committee of the Whole was reported to the Senate.

Mr. WINDOM, of Minnesota, demanded a separate vote on the amendment made in committee in regard to the payment of Southern mail contractors, and it was concurred in—yeas 28, nays 24.

The amendment in regard to the modification of the Eads contract for the improvement at the South Pass of the Mississippi River was withdrawn, the House having passed the bill for that purpose.

Other amendments made in Committee of the Whole were concurred in and the bill was read a third time and passed.

HEAD MONEYS.

Mr. CONKLING, (rep.) of N. Y., withdrew the motion recently entered by him to reconsider the vote by which the bill to legalize the collection of certain head moneys was passed, and the bill having passed both houses now goes to the President for his signature.

STANLEY MATTHEWS.

The PRESIDENT pro tem. laid before the Senate the House resolution requesting the Senate to grant permission to Stanley Matthews to appear before the Potter Committee.

Mr. WALLACE, (dem.) of Pa., submitted the following:—

Resolved, that the Senate, in compliance with the resolution of the House of Representatives of yesterday, do allow the attendance of the Hon. Stanley Matthews, a member of this House, before the Committee of the House of Representatives now charged with the investigation of alleged frauds in the electoral votes of the States of Louisiana and Florida, for the purpose of giving such evidence of facts concerning the subject matter of said investigation as may be in his knowledge or possession.

Ordered that the Secretary notify the House of Representatives accordingly.

Mr. DORSEY, of Arkansas—Let that lie over.

Mr. ANTHONY, (rep.) of R. I., said he did not understand that it was necessary that the Senate should give permission to one of its members to appear before a committee of the other House.

On motion of Mr. HOAR the whole subject was referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

The House joint resolution to pay certain contestants for seats in the Forty-fifth Congress was taken up, and, pending discussion, the Senate, on motion of Mr. SARGENT, went into executive session, and when the doors were reopened at half-past five took a recess till eight o'clock.

EVENING SESSION.

Upon reassembling at half-past eight, Mr. SPENCER, of Alabama, called up the resolution submitted by him a few days ago authorizing the Committee on Military Affairs to sit during the recess for the purpose of considering the revision of the army regulations and bring up the record and other legislation now pending in committee. Agreed to.

A message was received from the House of Representatives, announcing the non-concurrence of that body in Senate amendments to the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill and requesting a conference thereon. Messrs. Windom, Dorsey and Beck were the appointed conferees on the part of the Senate.

The Senate then resumed consideration of the joint resolution to pay contestants for seats in the House of Representatives, which was discussed briefly and passed.

Bills on the calendar were passed as follows:—

House bill to aid vessels wrecked or disabled in the waters conterminous to the United States and the Dominion of Canada.

It provides that Canadian vessels of all descriptions may render aid or assistance to Canadian or other vessels wrecked or disabled in the waters of the United States contiguous to the Dominion of Canada, provided that the act shall not take effect until proclamation by the President declaring that the privilege of aiding American or other vessels wrecked or disabled in Canadian waters contiguous to the United States has been extended by the Dominion of Canada.

House bill to provide for the sale of the Fort Harker military reservation, in the State of Kansas.

Mr. SARGENT, of California, from the Committee on Naval Affairs, reported favorably on the House bill to authorize the sale of the small arms now in use in the naval service and the conversion of the proceeds of such sale in the purchase of arms similar in calibre to the arms now in use by the United States army. Placed on the calendar.

Messrs. Mitchell, Teller and Merrimon were appointed the new conference committee on the bill in relation to the election in West Virginia and the election of a Senator from New Hampshire.

Mr. BURNSIDE, (rep.) of R. I., from the Committee on Military Affairs, said the committee desired to hold over until the next session for further information on the Senate bill to provide for the settlement of accounts with certain Southern railway companies.

Bills on the calendar were passed as follows:—

The House bill authorizing a settlement of the claim of the estate of the late Rear Admiral Dahlgren for use by the government of inventions relating to ordnance made by him.

The Senate bill for the pardon of certain deserters from the United States army in 1848.

In addition to the above eight or ten private relief bills were passed and the Senate at twenty minutes past eleven P. M. adjourned until eleven o'clock tomorrow.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WASHINGTON, June 18, 1878.

The House met at ten o'clock this morning, with very few members present.

Mr. DANFORD, (rep.) of Ohio, from the Committee on Naval Affairs, reported a bill to promote the knowledge of steam engineering and iron shipbuilding among students in scientific schools and colleges. Passed.

The bill provides that on application of any scientific school or college the President may detail an officer from the Engineer Corps of the navy to act as professor of such institution.

CHINESE IMMIGRATION.

On motion of Mr. PAGE, (rep.) of Cal., the House concurred in the Senate concurrent resolution declaring that the treaty with China allowing unrestricted immigration to this country should be modified, and calling the attention of the President to the subject.

The House then proceeded to business on the Speaker's table.

THE RESUMPTION ACT.

After concurring in the Senate amendments to various District bills the Senate substitute for the bill repealing the Resumption act was reached.

Mr. FORT, (rep.) of Ill., moved to concur in the Senate amendments.

Mr. EWING, (dem.) of Ohio—I object to the present consideration or want of consideration of this Treasury Department substitute for the bill. (Cries of "Order.")

After much uproar and excitement the House proceeded to vote on the Senate amendment, which was to strike out the whole of the House bill and substitute for it a provision making United States notes receivable for four per cent bonds and (after October 1 next) for customs duties. The vote was, yeas 140, nays 105; so two-thirds not voting in favor thereof the amendment was non-concurred in and the bill, therefore, failed. The vote was a mixed one, both as to politics and localities.

At twelve o'clock the parliamentary day of Monday closed by adjournment, and that of Tuesday begins at fifteen minutes past twelve P. M.

At fifteen minutes past twelve o'clock the legislative day of Tuesday commenced.

CLAIMS AGAINST THE GOVERNMENT.

Mr. POTTER, (dem.) of N. Y., moved to suspend the rules and pass the bill providing for the judicial ascertainment of claims against the United States. It provides that any person who may have a claim against the United States, of which the Court of Claims has not now jurisdiction, but founded on equity and justice and not barred by any statute of limitation, may file his bill in the Court of Claims, setting out the grounds of his claim and the relief desired. The Court, after trying the case, shall report its finding to Congress, which body shall not consider or allow or authorize the payment of any private claim not payable under existing law until the same has been heard and reported to Congress by the Court of Claims. It also provides that all claims against the United States provided for in this act not prosecuted within six years of its passage shall be barred by limitation.

The bill was passed—yeas 165, nays 74.

During the roll call a message from the Senate announced that that body had passed a resolution extending the time for final adjournment until Wednesday at six P. M.

Mr. ATKINS, (dem.) of Tenn., moved that the House concur in the resolution. Agreed to.

THE POSTAL BILL.

Mr. CANNON, (rep.) of Ill., from the conference committee on the Post Route bill, reported that the conferees had been unable to agree. The conferees on the part of the Senate had proposed to waive all discussion as to the question of privilege (relative to the right of the Senate to incorporate in the Post Route bill amendments affecting the revenue) and to take up the House bill with the Senate amendments for consideration. This the conferees on the part of the House had declined to do, because they thought that they had no power to do so under the resolution adopted a few days ago by the House returning the bill to the Senate.

Mr. OLIVER, (rep.) of Iowa, inquired if it would be in order to instruct the House conferees to waive the question of privilege.

The SPEAKER replied that it would not.

Another resolution to suspend the rules and go to the Speaker's table (that passed last night, having expired with the legislative day of yesterday) was offered by Mr. HALE, (rep.) of Me., and was rejected—yeas 130, nays 99—less than the necessary two-thirds in the affirmative.

The SPEAKER remarked that he would construe the last vote as an indication that he should now recognize members on his private list to move a suspension of the rules.

Mr. WADDELL, (dem.) of N. C., moved to suspend the rules and adopt the resolution for the appointment of a conference committee on the Post Route bill, with power to consider the Senate amendments as though they had been disagreed to by the House. Rejected.

The conference report was then agreed to.

Mr. CANNON then moved to suspend the rules and pass the Post Route bill, after having eliminated from it all the Senate legislation; but Mr. WARD, (rep.) of Pa., calling for the reading of the bill, it was withdrawn.

Mr. BUTLER, (rep.) of Mass., submitted his views in regard to the Kimmell bill, which were ordered printed.

Mr. STENGER, (dem.) of Pa., moved to suspend the rules and pass the Senate bill providing for the manner in which James B. Eads shall be paid for opening the channel between the South Pass of the Mississippi River and the Gulf of Mexico. Agreed to without the yeas and nays.

Mr. TOWNSHEND, (dem.) of Ill., moved to suspend the rules and pass the bill to repeal that section of the Resumption act which authorizes the sale of United States bonds for purposes of resumption, and to provide that United States notes shall be receivable for duties on imports. Rejected—yeas 114, nays 113—not the necessary two-thirds in the affirmative.

The House then, at a quarter-past four, took a recess till eight o'clock.

EVENING SESSION.

The House resumed its session at 8 P. M.

Mr. STEPHENS, (dem.) of Ga., from the Committee on Rules, reported a resolution for a general index of the journal of Congress, from the beginning of the government, to be made under the direction of the Committee on Rules; the compensation of the indexer not to exceed $2,500 per annum. Adopted.

EXPENSES OF INVESTIGATION.

On motion of Mr. ATKINS, of Tennessee, the Senate amendment to the bill appropriating $20,000 for the expenses of the Presidential Election Investigating Committee was concurred in.

The amendment adds $20,000 for Senate committees and $10,000 for investigations of the Department of Justice.

CONFERENCE ON THE SUNDRY CIVIL APPROPRIATION BILL.

At twenty minutes to nine a message from the Senate announced the passage of the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill, with amendments, and, on motion of Mr. ATKINS, of Tennessee, the amendments were non-concurred in and a committee of conference ordered. Messrs. Atkins, of Tennessee; Hewitt, of New York, and Hale, of Maine, being appointed such committee on the part of the House.

Mr. WILSON, (dem.) of W. Va., moved to suspend the rules and pass the Senate bill to allow repayment of the tonnage tax exacted in contravention of treaty provisions. Agreed to.

Mr. HARRIS, of Virginia, reported that the conference committee on the West Virginia and New Hampshire Election bill had been unable to agree, and a new conference was ordered.

DEATH OF MR. QUINN.

Mr. MAYHAM, (dem.) of N. Y., announced the death of his late colleague, Mr. Quinn, at eleven o'clock this morning, paid a tribute to his memory and offered a resolution for the appointment of a committee of seven members to proceed to Albany to attend the funeral.

The resolution was adopted, and then, at ten o'clock, the House adjourned.

THE PLATT-HASTINGS MARRIAGE.

WASHINGTON, June 18, 1878.

The marriage of Miss Platt, niece of President Hayes, to General Hastings will take place at the Executive Mansion to-morrow evening. The ceremony will be as informal as possible, and will be performed in the Blue Room by Bishop Jagger, of the Southern Episcopal diocese of Ohio. About sixty invitations have been issued, most of them to relatives and immediate friends of the prospective bride and bridegroom. All the members of the President's family will be present.

ARMY INTELLIGENCE.

CONFIRMATIONS BY THE SENATE.

WASHINGTON, June 18, 1878.

The Senate to-day, in Executive session, confirmed the following nominations:—

Lieutenant Arthur Murray, First artillery, to be first lieutenant; additional Second Lieutenant Francis P. Blair, Third artillery, to be second lieutenant; Second Lieutenant Benjamin H. Gilman, Thirteenth infantry, to be first lieutenant.

ORDNANCE DEPARTMENT.

Captain Lawrence S. Babbitt to be major; Captain William A. Marye to be major; First Lieutenant John E. Greer to be captain; First Lieutenant John Pitman to be captain; Second Lieutenant Ira McNutt to be first lieutenant.

NAVAL INTELLIGENCE.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

WASHINGTON, June 18, 1878.

Rear Admiral John C. Howell, who succeeds Rear Admiral Trenchard in command of the North Atlantic fleet, will not be relieved until September 22 as chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks at the Navy Department. He will hoist his flag on board the Powhatan October 1. It was intended that the change should take place August 1, but Admiral Howell's term of office as chief of the bureau will not expire until the date first given and Secretary Thompson is anxious that he shall remain as long as possible.

CANDIDATES FOR THE POSITION.

Among the candidates for appointment as Chief of the Bureau in his place are named Rear Admiral John Lee Worden, of monitor fame; Commodore William G. Temple, who was for some years executive officer at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, and Captain Richard L. Law.

THE NAVY REGISTER.

The Navy Register for 1878 will be ready to send to the Public Printer by July 1 and will be ready for issue about July 15. On account of the lack of appropriations for printing for the fiscal year about ended there was no money to print the usual January register. The custom heretofore, since 1866, has been to issue a register each January and July.

THE NATIONAL PARTY.

MASS MEETING IN THE TWENTIETH ASSEMBLY DISTRICT.

In accordance with a call issued by the Executive Committee of the "national greenback labor party," of the Twentieth Assembly District, a public meeting assembled last evening at Brevoort Hall, Fifty-fourth street, near Third avenue. The meeting was called to order by Judge P. J. Joachimsen. It numbered about two hundred and fifty men, residing in the above district and understood to be in sympathy with the national party. Judge Joachimsen said the meeting had been called to express assent in the platform adopted for the party by its representatives at Toledo, Ohio, and by the conference of greenback, labor and national parties at Auburn, N. Y. He said the principles of the party were less known by the masses in New York than in any other city, and, therefore, its leaders had determined to anticipate the usual campaign season, and prepare the people for the coming elections by instructing them as to their rights and their power under organization. He then moved that Mr. Cornelius O'Reilly be elected chairman. Mr. O'Reilly was unanimously elected, and Mr. George W. Tindale was chosen secretary. Mr. O'Reilly then read a short address, in which he expressed his conviction that the national party is destined to rapidly gain the ascendancy in all the legislative bodies of the nation and to place its representative in the Presidential chair in 1880. He considered this the only relief for the country and its laboring classes from the condition of confusion and misfortune in which they are now plunged.

On motion of Messrs. Joachimsen and Tindal, resolutions were unanimously adopted which expressed approval of the platform of the national party. They opposed the issue of money by anybody except the United States government, and represented that the credit of that government is an all-sufficient guarantee of value. They opposed the granting of large rights of construction to private corporations and the maintenance of a standing army, and strongly advocated economy, an immediate resumption of work on all public improvements and the holding of a convention of the united greenback and labor parties at Syracuse, N. Y., in July.

THE SPEECHES.

Mr. Walter H. Shupe, of the Advocate, the workingmen's journal, addressed the meeting. He said the politicians who have been in power since the late war had taken away from the people the means of earning bread, which is their most sacred right. He said the city government of New York ought to issue $50,000,000 worth of bonds at four per cent interest, and that the proceeds should be expended in carrying on various improvements in the city. He considered that this would be an advantage not merely from the fact that it would give employment to the multitudes now idle, but because it would be a source of the greatest prosperity to the community in the future. He said that if the present city and State legislators are too timorous to do this others must be found at the next election who will have the requisite courage. He deprecated all resort to force, and said the solution of all existing evils lies in the ballot box.

Mr. D. B. Sturgeon, of Toledo, Ohio, next spoke. He pointed out the necessity of organization to insure the success of the party in New York, and said that nine-tenths of all the voters are laborers, who could put their representatives in all public offices if they would only combine to that end. He said that in Ohio, Indiana, Maine and Michigan victory for the national party in the next election is as good as secured.

Mr. George W. Madox was the last speaker. He indorsed Mr. Shupe's plan for redressing grievances, except that he believed the $50,000,000 should be issued without interest.

OREGON ELECTION.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 18, 1878.

A despatch from Portland says:—The latest election returns settle beyond doubt the election of Thayer, democrat, for Governor. His majority will range from 40 to 70. The Legislature on joint ballot will have a democratic majority of 12.

THE MAINE DEMOCRATS.

YESTERDAY'S PROCEEDINGS AT THE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION—THE PLATFORM DISAPPROVED BY GREENBACKERS AND HARD MONEY MEN—DR. GARCELON NOMINATED FOR GOVERNOR.

PORTLAND, Me., June 18, 1878.

To-day's convention of the democratic party of the Pine Tree State is invested with considerable interest, from the fact that there is a strong sentiment among some of the party leaders toward the new doctrines of the nationals. The convention of the latter body, held at Lewiston a few weeks ago, developed a numerical strength that cannot be despised, since the rank and file of both the republican and democratic organizations are somewhat with the greenback ideas. At the preliminary meetings and conferences last night and this morning there was a good deal of strong talk in favor of liberal concessions to the third political element of the State. The line of discussion on the question of the national finances developed the fact that there is strong opposition to the national bank system, which had been in their opinion such a burden on the people, bringing ruin and stagnation on the business of the country. No speaker repudiated the platform of the St. Louis Convention, and every one spoke with earnestness upon the necessity of such a change in our financial policy as would work for the advantage of the middle classes and the workingmen. The policy of the republican legislation, they maintained, had all been in the interest of the capitalist and the bondholders, ignoring the industrial and commercial interests of the country to such an extent that the inevitable revulsion had come, prostrating business and rendering capital worthless. The universal sentiment of the meeting was that the Convention should stand firmly by the ancient principles of the party and sacrifice nothing to the interest of policy. The average sentiment seemed to be that the Convention should go as far in the direction of liberal views upon the currency question as the national democratic party and the democratic Congress had done. A call for a modification at least of the National Bank law, the indorsement of the remonetization of silver and the making of the greenback a full legal tender as good for the government as for the citizens was unmistakably favored. Many favored the making of national banks simply banks of deposit and discount with a surrender of their circulation.

With these views so fully expressed the action of the Convention and its platform will be well understood. The Convention was advertised to meet at nine o'clock, but it was half-past ten before the chairman rapped to order.

Charles W. Larrabee, of Bath, was chosen permanent chairman, and he undertook to tone the Convention up to a harmonious pitch by his speech as well as to pave the way for the report of the Committee on Resolutions. After the customary introductory remarks of thanks the President referred to the national election. The whole people, he said, turned to the democratic party for a vindication of their rights. True, he continued, we are not in possession of the national administration, but we have what is far better, a majority of the people, who we trust will be secured in the exercise of their privilege of suffrage before another Presidential campaign. In the last one we elected our candidate, and our opponents secured the prize. Samuel J. Tilden was elected President of the United States, but Rutherford B. Hayes was counted in by the partisan interposition of returning boards and visiting statesmen, and fully secured in office by a proceeding that will hereafter be known in history as the game of 8 to 7. Whether that provisional tribunal, created specially to determine the claim of the respective candidates to the high office of President of the United States, was constitutional or not, or whether or not they came to a correct decision, we do not propose to discuss or question. The case was disposed of by reference, and we lost, and we mean to abide by the result. Let the President enjoy the honors and emoluments of his office, but we are not to be deterred from searching for the malefactors who conspired to rob the people of the victory they had won at the polls. Let the truth and the whole truth be told, and let all those who participated in this nefarious work be branded with public indignation. It concerns any man, whether he be democrat or republican, to guard with special care thus to us to secure right of suffrage and to protect the ballot box from the depredation of careless adventurers, even if they be the trusted agents of eminent statesmen. The investigation instituted by the present House of Representatives is not for the purpose of disturbing the title of President in office, but in order that we may know how and by what authority whole communities and persons were disfranchised, and in order that we may guard against a repetition of such offence. It is not of as great importance who fills the Presidential office to-day as it is to make certain that at the next Presidential election and ever afterward the people of this country shall enjoy their Constitutional right of electing the man of their choice, and that when so elected he shall be inaugurated. Let there be no more improvised methods of thwarting the will of the majority, and hereafter let all these questions be decided within and not without the Constitution. We believe that the outrages upon the rights of the people at the last Presidential election in several of our Southern States were the natural outgrowth of the whole policy of General Grant's administration.

After referring to the Southern question the speaker said that to the democratic party the country must look for a thorough reconciliation of all sections of the Union. "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty," and when we see those in power forgetful of constitutional restrictions we have reason to be alarmed for the safety of the Republic. The old Roman charge was to see that the republic received no detriment. Let the same be ours to-day, and whenever we see any tampering with our constitutional rights let us be vigilant. When we see the Chief Executive of the nation packing the highest court of judicature in the land in order to reverse a solemn judgment of that court affecting the material interests of every man, it is high time for us to lose confidence not only in the man, but in the party that sustains it. The day is past when to any and all criticism of this nature we are silenced by a retort or a waving of the bloody shirt. The people begin to see that there is a vast difference between the shouting demagogue and the patriot, who stood in the forefront of battle when his country called. All honor to the dead and the living who responded to that call, but no honor to the bummers and the camp followers who came after the battle only to plunder and rob. More than thirteen years have gone by since war and slavery ceased to exist in this land, and all the energies of the people, North and South, East and West, should be bestowed upon the arts of peace. And yet we are treated annually by our opponents to a recapitulation of all the horrors and wrongs of both war and slavery. Sectional prejudices and trustful memories furnish the staple of their claims to honor. What we as democrats demand, and all we demand, is an administration of the affairs of government for the people and not for the party; wise and discriminating laws to regulate commerce and trade; a strictly economical expenditure of the public moneys; a settled and definite financial policy, so that labor shall be secure of its reward and the due exercise of the powers of government under and according to the constitution and the laws. Let us as democrats strive to make our government what Jefferson desired it to be when he said:—"Still one thing more, fellow citizens, a wise and frugal government, which shall restrain men from injuring one another, which shall leave them otherwise free to regulate their own pursuits of industry and improvement, and shall not take from the mouth of labor the bread that it has earned. This is the sum of good government, and this is necessary to close the circle of our felicities." Let us, then, continue our efforts as a party to restore to social intercourse between all parts of the land that harmony and affection without which liberty and even life itself are weary things.

The speech was favorably received by the delegates. At its close the usual committees were announced and the Convention took a recess to wait for the report of the Committee on Resolutions.

AFTER RECESS.

When the Committee on Resolutions came in, after the reassembling of the Convention, there was eager expectation among the delegates and not a little anxiety, which was not removed by the platform submitted. The greenbackers were not satisfied with it because it did not go far enough, and the hard money men were equally displeased because it went too far to suit their views.

THE PLATFORM.

The platform demands:—First—Payment of the bonded debt of the United States as rapidly as practicable. Second—No further issue of government bonds whereby equal taxation with the other property is avoided, "for we believe that equal taxation of any species of property, according to its real value, including government bonds, is due alike to the moneyed and labor interest of the country, and consistent with democratic principles which abhor monopolies, and know no class, condition or section. Third—That while we are opposed to an irredeemable currency, we believe in the same currency for the government and people, the laborer and office holder, the pensioner and soldier, the producer and bondholder. We are opposed to the present national bank system, and favor the gradual substitution of greenbacks for national bank bills. Fourth—We fully endorse the action of the majority of the members of the House of Representatives in the investigation of the election fraud by which the country was cheated and robbed of the honest and rightful possession of the offices of President and Vice President of the United States, and insist that the guilty parties, whoever they may be, and wherever found should be punished, truth and justice vindicated, and a repetition of a like offence be made impossible."

The remainder of the document consists of an arraignment of the republican party for its misgovernment and the consequent stagnation of business. An amendment touching on the administration of the liquor law was submitted and adopted. On a vote by counties the amendment was thrown out. This caused considerable debate and excitement. The platform was ultimately adopted without the offensive resolution on liquor.

BALLOT FOR GOVERNOR.

A ballot was then taken for Governor, which resulted as follows:—Whole number, 329; necessary to a choice, 165; George Walker, Portland, 42; S. C. Andrews, Portland, 21; Alonzo Garcelon, Lewiston, 210. The nomination was made unanimous.

Dr. Garcelon was formerly a republican, but went over during the Johnson administration on the reconstruction policy of Congress. He supported Greeley in 1872 and has since acted with the democrats. His home is in Lewiston, which is the hotbead of the greenback ideas, and his nomination is a sop to the disciples of Solon Chase. The Convention was not largely attended, several delegations from greenback districts refusing to enter the hall.

YACHTING.

The Union Regatta of the Brooklyn Club.

BAD WEATHER AND DISAPPOINTMENT.

Only One Class Make the Race in Time.

Regattas of the Central Hudson and Empire Clubs.

The Brooklyn Yacht Club left its usual good luck at home yesterday, and their union regatta, in a great measure, was decidedly unsatisfactory. There was a sullen look about the sky, and rain fell heavily at the hour appointed for the judges to be at the starting point. The William Fletcher, at ten o'clock, conveyed those officials to the foot of Court street, where a hurried consultation with the owners of some of the racing vessels developed a strong opposition to sailing the regatta. An hour later the guests' steamboat Americus arrived. Of a company of 200 fully one-third were ladies, wrapped in seasonable garments. Boat owners and the regatta committee at once consulted together, when the final decision was announced that the programme would be carried out. Though the prospect was particularly gloomy the determination was received with enthusiasm. The Columbia, flagship of the squadron, lay at anchor a biscuit toss away, and the Fletcher going within hailing distance, Commodore Wallack was notified that there would be a sail. "All right," responded the Commodore, but further than that he failed to meet the wishes of the judges, as he declined to allow his yacht to go below in the dirty weather.

THE STARTERS.

The original entries for the race comprised fourteen boats. Of these eight only started, an unpleasant comparison with the showing of former years. These were the schooners Comet (William H. Langley) and Mystic (Vice Commodore Hall); first class sloops Kate (Rear Commodore Randolph) and Annie (Joseph Elsworth); second class sloops Schemer (C. Smith Lee) and Lizzie L. J. G. Johnson, M. D.; third class sloops (open), Susie S. (Edward P. Miller) and William R. Brown (C. F. Brown). All but the latter craft are enrolled in the Brooklyn squadron, so the "union" character of the event was not very encouraging. The start was made with the wind northeast, the tide first of the ebb and the rain still violent.

The course, as originally agreed upon, for schooners and first class sloops was out to the lightship and back, but the weather off shore was thought to be so thick the course was changed as follows:—For schooners and first and second class sloops, from a stakeboat off Bay Ridge to a stakeboat at buoy 8½, Southwest Spit, thence to the outer bar buoy in Gedney's Channel, and back home; the course for third class sloops to buoy 8½ and return.

CROSSING THE LINE.

The boats went over the line with the William R. Brown leading, at 12h. 49m. 47s.; Susie S., 12h. 51m.; Mystic, 12h. 52m. 40s.; Kate, 12h. 53m. 07s.; Schemer, 12h. 54m. 18s.; Comet, 12h. 55m. 10s.; Annie, 12h. 55m. 30s.; Lizzie L., 12h. 56m. 13s. The Comet, just to make up a race in the schooner class, weighed anchor and consented to join the fleet at a moment's notice. She had a party of ladies on board and carried working sails throughout the day. Vice Commodore Hall, owner of the schooner Mystic, was not on board his yacht, but went over the course in the judges' steamboat.

In running down to buoy No. 8½ the William R. Brown, dressed in her handsome racing rig, led the way, the fleet Susie S., with only her working sail, failing to do herself justice. There was not much of a gap between seven of the contestants at this mark, the times being:—William R. Brown, 2h. 33m. 11s.; Annie, 2h. 33m. 35s.; Mystic, 2h. 37m. 47s.; Schemer, 2h. 38m. 20s.; Comet, 2h. 39m. 28s.; Kate, 2h. 40m. 35s.; Lizzie L., 2h. 43m. 43s.; Susie S., 2h. 47m. 40s. The open boats then squared away for home.

To the outer bar buoy the yachts were close hauled, and the Comet, beating up to windward, obtained a favorable position and picked up the stakeboat well to the front. The times here were:—Annie, 3h. 38m. 37s.; Comet, 3h. 40m.; Schemer, 3h. 44m. 37s.; Mystic, 3h. 45m. 3s.; Lizzie L., 3h. 53m. 38s.; Kate, 3h. 53m. 19s. The two last named made a serious mistake by working down Sandy Hook beach, as they were set far to leeward by the wind and tide.

A SHIFT OF WIND.

The yachts laid their course back to the Monument with a light air and then the trouble began. There was a sudden shift of the wind to the northward, and though it made matters bad enough it was a miserable deceiver, and before a long while wound up in a dead calm. For hours after the yachts grouped about between that and the Narrows, only the Annie arriving before the departure of the judges' boat. It would be an utter waste of time to further describe the sailing and the positions of the vessels. The Annie arrived at the finish line at 9h. 04m., just 1m. 47s. too late to make the race, as she had been 8h. 7m. 47s. in going over the course. When last seen the Mystic had made a slightly more fortunate weather cast than the Comet, and was in a better position than the other, as was the Schemer than the Lizzie L.

The Fletcher landed its party in Brooklyn at ten o'clock. The Brown beat the Susie S. home and so wins the prize in her class. The schooner and first and second class sloops, not making the race within the allotted time, there may be another day set for the contest to be repeated.

CENTRAL HUDSON REGATTA.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

NEW HAMBURG, June 18, 1878.

The fifth annual regatta of the Central Hudson Yacht Club, Commodore Irving Grinnell in command, was announced to come off to-day over the club course, twenty miles in length; third class boats to finish at the tenth mile. The regatta committee was composed of Phillip Schuyler, of New York; James Roosevelt, of Hyde Park, and Frederick Schuchard, of New Hamburg.

The prizes were as follows:—First class, first prize, India rubber overcoat; second prize, silk umbrella. Second class—first prize, marine clock; second prize, folding rubber bucket. Third class—first prize, camp cot; second prize, rubber blanket. The entries were as follows:—

Boats.	Length.	Owner.
FIRST CLASS.
Victoria	28 00	J. R. Roosevelt.
Fidget	27 10	Irving Grinnell.
Flyaway	32 04	Van Brunt Livingston.
SECOND CLASS.
Gypsy	20 05	James Winslow.
Vixen	20 06	....
Mollie	22 02	W. B. Osborne.
Freak	22 04	J. H. Weddle.
THIRD CLASS.
Gracie	18 07	H. E. Belcher.
A. S. Ring	19 02	George Shaw.

At 12h. 36m. P. M. a green and white flag was waved from the committee's stakeboat, off New Hamburg, and two prolonged whistles gave the preparatory signal, and all the yachts came out from the shore. The starting signal was given at 12h. 46m. P. M., and then seven minutes were allowed for the yachts to cross the line. There was a strong flood tide running and the wind was light from the south. The steamers Champion and Bessie lay in the stream with merry parties on board and the shores were lined with spectators. The A. S. Ring was the first to cross. The official time of the start was as follows:—

Boat.	H.	M.	S.	Boat.	H.	M.	S.
FIRST CLASS.
Victoria	12	46	28	Flyaway	12	52	10
Fidget	12	51	29
SECOND CLASS.
Gypsy	12	49	38	Mollie	12	50	20
Vixen	12	50	45	Freak	12	58	00
THIRD CLASS.
Gracie	12	51	13	A. S. Ring	12	47	06

The Victoria turned the upper buoy off Van Rensselaer's Point first, Gypsy next and the Mollie two minutes later. The Flyaway had fourth place.

TOO MUCH TIDE AND TOO LITTLE WIND.

When all started south the wind lulled somewhat and some of the yachts had too many sailors on board. Just north of New Hamburg the Flyaway, Fidget and Victoria made short tacks, well to the eastward, to keep out of the swirl of the tide and at the same time caught puffs of wind from the land, the other yachts going further over to the westward, which was a mistake, and they lost by it. For a time it was a handsome race between the Victoria and Fidget. The Fidget sailed with her spar set back six feet and she carried a jib, a thing she never did before, and it was a great improvement. For a mile there was not a difference of two seconds between her and the Victoria, the Fidget being to the windward. Away head of all was the cabin sloop Flyaway, of West Park, doing splendidly and handled in an excellent manner. To the surprise of many south of New Hamburg the Victoria withdrew from the race, but her owner afterward explained by saying he had not intended to go the whole course, as his boat needed cleaning and the wind was too light. At this time the Flyaway was four minutes ahead of the Fidget, the Freak third and the Gypsy had gained some distance on the Mollie. All the way between New Hamburg and Low Point the yachts worked along in the flats as close as possible to avoid the flood. Just before Low Point was reached the Flyaway caught a puff from the west and laid her course straight down the river, gaining three or four minutes on the Fidget, and the Gypsy had overhauled and passed the A. S. Ring. The last yacht in the fleet was the little Gracie, of the third class, and just ahead of her the Vixen, of the second class.

WITH WIND AND TIDE.

As the boats entered Newburg Bay the wind freshened, and the speed of the yachts increased. The Flyaway rounded the Low Point Buoy at 3:02 P. M., and as she went about her spennaker was set, her jib ballooned and she flew up the river with the tide like a gull. The Fidget rounded the buoy at 3h. 13m. 30s., and it was a bad outlook for her, for the Flyaway had not only made up all the time allowance she was required to give the Fidget but had three or four minutes to spare. The Freak rounded third and the Gypsy fourth, but their time was not taken. The crew on the Gypsy were in ecstacies because they were so far ahead of the Mollie as it had all along been considered that the latter was a dangerous rival. The Flyaway, far to the front, kept her upward course to the Van Rennselaer Point buoy in the middle of the river, holding the full strength of the tide, but the Fidget didn't lose, her sailing master wishing for a big blow. She was second at the turn, but no time was taken. At 4h. 30m. it looked as if the wind wouldn't hold long enough for the leading yacht to make the race within the required six hours.

THE A. S. RING A WINNER.

The third class boats, however, finished their contest, the A. S. Ring taking the first prize in that class and the Grace in the second.

At Van Renssalaer's Point the Fidget accidentally fouled the buoy and was ruled out. The Mollie withdrew, as also the Vixen. The Flyaway was the first yacht home within the prescribed time, crossing the line at 6h. 38m. 46s.

EMPIRE YACHT CLUB'S SECOND ANNUAL REGATTA—DRIFTED BY THE TIDE.

The second annual regatta of the Empire Yacht Club came off yesterday, but after a rather disagreeable trip in the rain no result was reached, as none of the yachts were able to make the course within the required time. The steamer Fort Lee accompanied the yachts over the course. Considerable time was lost in getting the vessels into position, but they were all in line at a quarter to twelve, and at noon the starting signal was fired for the fifth class. Five minutes later the fourth class were sent away, and, with the same intermission, the third, second and first class open boats and the cabin boats. The following yachts started:—

	Ft.	In.
CABIN BOATS.
Chester A. Arthur	35	—	D. Quin.
Isabella Beam	36	2⅛	Joseph Stroebel.
Thomas Elsmore	28	0⅞	Thomas Elsmore.

Mattie E	15	9½	Al. Wright.
Mary B	18	2¾	William H. Decker.
Dream	17	6½	Surgeon E. Ringer.

The course was from the club house, through the gate, and up between the North and South Brother islands to the gangway buoy. Turning the buoy from leeward to windward, coming back the same course to a stakeboat anchored off the club house; yachts to pass between stakeboat and club house; time to be taken when passing the stakeboat.

It was unfortunate that the start was delayed so long, as before the yachts were fairly round the island the tide began to set in ebb, and before the cabin yachts reached the Three Brothers they caught the strength of it and finally drifted home. Before two P. M. it came to be apparent that there was very little chance of any of the yachts making the race within the required time. So the Fort Lee then took about ten yachts in tow and returned to 104th street. The regatta will be sailed again later in the season.

OCEANIC YACHT CLUB.

The opening regatta of the Oceanic Yacht Club, of Jersey City, took place yesterday. The only boats starting were the Lillie, sailed by Walter Moulds; Jane A., by Robert Muller; Andrew Martin, by John McGready, and the others were the Freddie and Spray. The course was twenty miles off the Jersey City Yacht Club House, round buoy off Sunken Island and round stakeboat off Murphy's Club House at Communipaw and back, sailed over three times. The judges were Charles Taylor, John Falchner and Aleck Forsyth. No attention was paid to the time, and the boats came in as respectively named:—Lillie, Jane A., Andrew Martin, Freddie and Spray. The prizes will be distributed at the next meeting of the club.

YACHTING NOTES.

Yachts Dreadnaught, N.Y.Y.C., Mr. C. J. Osborne, and Clytie, N.Y.Y.C., Mr. William L. Brooks, both returning from an eastern cruise, passed the HERALD Telegraph Station at Whitestone, Long Island, yesterday forenoon, bound westward.

The English yacht Oueagn, Hayden, arrived at Boston yesterday from New York.

Brown Brothers' steam yacht Ibes, Captain Charles Fairchild, of the New York Yacht Squadron, left Westport Harbor Monday for a short cruise down the Sound. She has recently been upon the Marine Railway, at Gregory's Point, Norwalk Harbor, where she received a thorough overhauling, repainting and general brushing up preparatory to the varied excursions, coastwise and otherwise, she is expected to make this season.

REGATTA OF THE EMPIRE NAVY.

The second annual regatta of the Empire Navy took place in Peekskill Bay yesterday before several thousand spectators. The boat clubs represented were the Resolutes, of Carmansville; the Palisades, of Yonkers; the Highland Club, of Peekskill, and the Harlem Rowing Club, of New York. Special steamers from Carmansville, Yonkers and Peekskill arrived with sightseers, and the little tug boat Gracie was occupied by the referees. Much dissatisfaction was expressed by the Yonkers people because the "course" was not what they said it had been represented. They were guests of the Peekskill Highland Club, and had been told that the water was clear of obstructions and that the course was all that could be desired for a regatta. But one of the steamers, the Restless, ran around at the beginning of the race, while the tide was flood, and afterward when the water was low, the deeper draught boat refused to enter the dock basin at all, so that the referee's boat devoted much time and space to transferring passengers, and thus the races were prolonged until evening. In the last single scull race of the day the boats ran into a bank of seaweed, and the Palisade crew, of Yonkers, which was ahead, lost the race. While the Palisade crew were on the river one of them, Mr. O. Sarony, had a gold watch, locket and chain, valued at $225, and $75 in cash stolen from his garments, which were in the Highland Boat Club house.

THE RACES.

There were six races for prizes of gold medals and a pennant. First, a four-oared shell race between the Palisade, Harlem and Highland crews over a course of two miles. They started at half-past two o'clock, with tide and wind. The Palisade boat, of Yonkers, won by one length of clear water in 12m. 48¼s. The Highlands, of Peekskill, came in close behind.

In the gig race between Palisade, Resolute and Highland, Highland won in 16m. 25½s.

In the double-scull race the Highland pairs had a "walk over," there being no competitor.

In the junior single each club raced and Resolute won in 16m. 41s.—H. Morse, winner.

In the senior singles Moffatt, of the Palisade's, and Dain, of Highland, competed, the latter winning in 15m. 4s.

In the eight-oared race, Resolute won against Palisade by six lengths in 14m. 13s.

STOCK EXCHANGE OARSMEN.

The annual regatta of the New York Stock Exchange Rowing Association will take place on the Harlem River on Thursday.

There will be three races—the first for pair-oared shell boats between A. V. De Gorcouria, stroke, and R. B. Hartshorne, bow, of the New York Stock Exchange Rowing Association, and F. Ellison, stroke, and C. Oelrichs, bow, of the New York Rowing Club:—The second race will be a four-oared shell, with the following contestants:—

C. G. Peters	Stroke	A. V. De Gorcouria	Stroke
H. W. Nason	3	W. L. Stowe	3
W. Murray	2	E. A. Drake	2
R. B. Hartshorne	1	F. A. Haight	1

The third will be a six-oared gig race between the following crews:—

C. G. Peters	Stroke	F. A. Haight	Stroke
W. Murray	5	H. W. Nason	5
Joel Parker	4	W. L. Stowe	4
E. A. Drake	3	J. S. Young, Jr.	3
J. B. Williams	2	J. W. Myers	2
E. Chamberlain	1	H. Prentice	1

In this race each crew will have a coxswain. In order to accommodate the brokers and their friends a steamboat will leave the foot of Wall street at a quarter past three P. M. for the course.

THE HARLEM REGATTA.

The Executive Board of the Harlem Regatta Association will meet to-night at Knickerbocker Cottage to complete the arrangements for the regatta on the 22d inst.

WESTERN OARSMEN.

Regatta of the Mississippi Valley Amateur Rowing Association.

A PROMISING ORGANIZATION.

Entries and Programme for Two Days' Sport.

PEORIA, Ill., June 15, 1878.

A few years ago this beautiful city, with its charming location and pushing, wealthy people, made a strong but unsuccessful effort to secure the location here of the then proposed new State Capitol. The prize naturally belongs to Peoria, a city second only to Chicago in point of population in the State. Nine or ten railroads radiate in as many directions; the surrounding country is a rich bed of minerals; the commercial facilities are great, and, geographically, Peoria is the hub of Illinois. Springfield had the prestige of years and the old buildings; she had the Legislature as her guest, and she succeeded in retaining the seat of government. The unfinished capital edifice now designates Springfield as the capital city. But Peoria has the satisfaction of being the place of holding the first annual regatta of the Mississippi Valley Amateur Rowing Association. This event, it is believed, will bring to this city on Wednesday next 20,000 people.

THE CITY AND SURROUNDINGS.

Peoria is really first among cities of the Mississippi Valley for beauty of location. It occupies the middle of a high plateau four miles long and from half a mile to a mile and a half wide. A picturesque range of bluffs embraces it on the west, and these overlooking heights are crowned with handsome private residences. Peoria Lake, a beautiful sheet formed by a widening of the Illinois River, lies immediately in front of the city. It is about one mile wide and two and one-half miles long. Here the regatta will occur. A mile course has been conveniently buoyed off. The start and finish will be from the west line. This will afford spectators every facility for witnessing the race over the entire course.

THE MISSISSIPPI VALLEY ASSOCIATION.

This organization is intended to supply a long felt want among the amateur oarsmen of the West. During the last five years new rowing clubs have been formed in a number of cities and regattas have been held at Detroit and Grand Haven, Mich.; Toledo, Ohio; Devil's Lake, Wis.; St. Paul, Minn., and Peoria, Ill. Sufficient interest was developed last winter to organize this new and promising association. The bylaws provide that there shall be an annual regatta held in June, lasting two days. The following clubs became members of the association:—Modoc Rowing Club, St. Louis, Mo.; Farragut Boat Club, Chicago; Minnesota Boat Club, St. Paul, Minn.; Chicago Barge Club, Chicago; University Boat Club, St. Louis; Peoria Boat Club, Peoria; Burlington Boating Association, Burlington, Iowa; Sylvan Boat Club, Moline, Ill.; Milwaukee Boat Club, Milwaukee, Wis.; Riverdale Rowing and Athletic Club, Calumet, Ill.; Madison Boat Club, Madison, Wis.; Lurline Boat Club, Minneapolis, Minn.; Mitchell Rowing Association, Milwaukee. The officers of the association are J. C. Osgood, President, Burlington; J. A. St. John, Vice President, St. Louis; R. G. Thwaites, Secretary, Madison; F. M. Staples, Treasurer, Chicago; C. L. Williams, Commodore, Rock Island; L. D. Powers, Vice Commodore, Chicago, and P. C. Wheeler, Ensign, Peoria.

DEFINITION OF AMATEUR.

The term "amateur oarsman" is an elastic one. It, until a year ago, comprehended Charles E. Courtney, who, if not the professional champion of sculling, is believed to be by his friends, with the veriest beginner. This association makes the following definition of an amateur:—"One who has not entered in an open competition; or for either a stake, public or admission money, or entrance fee; or competed with or against a professional for any prize; who has never taught, pursued or assisted in the pursuit of athletic exercises as a means of livelihood; whose membership of any rowing or other athletic club was not brought about, or does not continue, because of any mutual agreement or understanding, express or implied, whereby his becoming or continuing a member of such club would be of any pecuniary benefit to him whatever, direct or indirect, and who has never been employed in any occupation involving any use of the oar or paddle."

THE REGATTA PROGRAMME.

Wednesday, June 19, the first day of the races, is designated for the junior four-oared shells, the senior double sculls, the six-oared barges, the junior single sculls and a tub race (fifty yards).

Thursday, June 20, the second day, will witness the races of the senior four-oared shells, the junior double sculls, gigs, and the senior single sculls. After these have been rowed the Commodore's review will take place, and this will be followed by a swimming race (100 yards).

The barge race will be one and one-half miles straight away. All the other races will be one mile and return. Gold badges will be given to the individual winners in each race, and in addition thereto a set of colors to the winning crews in the gig, barge, junior and senior four-oared races.

THE JUNIOR FOURS.

The entries for all races were closed at the office of Secretary Thwaites, in Madison, on the 5th of June. From him the HERALD correspondent has obtained the official lists. There are four entries for the junior four-oared shells. The crew of the Farraguts, of Chicago, is composed of Charles S. Downs, George S. Muskinove, Frank Booth and Frank M. Staples, whose weights are respectively 135, 135, 160 and 155 pounds. The color of the bow oarsman is light blue. The Sylvans, of Moline, will send a strong junior crew, with W. H. Lewis, stroke; W. G. Cooper, bow, and Ben Beregoy and J. M. Waters, waist. These men are aged respectively 26, 22, 20 and 25 years, and average about 135 pounds. Colors, scarlet. The Peoria four are Herbert Wacker, C. S. Cockle, G. W. Weddle and George I. Brown. Their color is white, and their average weight 152 pounds. The Modocs, of St. Louis, have been on the lake for a week, pulling three times daily. They are William Walsh, Hy Ashman, Jacob Strumpf and Charles Fisher. Colors, tan. The Mitchells, of Milwaukee, are made up of T. K. Berkhauser, Charles Warner, Ham Ludwig and A. J. Richer. Colors, dark blue.

SENIOR DOUBLES.

Two entries only have been made. The Riverdale Rowing Club has entered a double with C. S. Downs, bow, and C. A. Billings, stroke; colors scarlet; and the Minnesota Boat Club, H. M. Butler, bow, and W. H. Hyndman, stroke. These crews have a good record to sustain, particularly Butler and Hyndman.

SIX-OARED BARGES.

The Peoria Boat Club and the Burligtons will compete in this race. The former crew will be composed of W. C. Beasley, B. Allison, W. W. Hook, W. H. Townsend, W. B. Skeele, W. R. Cockee; coxswain, James Taylor. Colors white. The Burlingtons have C. C. Fowler, Ed. Phelps, James S. Denslow, S. F. Rouse, C. W. Bodeman and C. M. Schenck, with orange colors.

THE JUNIOR SINGLES.

The junior single scull race promises to develop at least one Western sculler who will add no disgrace to amateur pulling; but anticipation will not be indulged in. The Farraguts make two entries—H. P. Darlington, weight 127, and S. R. Eddy, 155; the Riverdales one, C. A. Billings; the Sylvans, of Moline, James H. Fleming, and the Peorias, A. W. Beasley.

THE SENIOR FOURS.

The most exciting race during the regatta will be that of the senior four-oared shells. The crews, of which five are entered, embrace some well known oarsmen whose time has been taken on other waters. The Farraguts will be represented by Charles S. Downs, George S. Muchirove, Frank Booth and Lewis H. Jones. The Madison four number E. H. Hills, William Furman, A. J. Reuter and C. F. Sightam. They average a little heavier than the Farragut four. The Sylvan seniors will pull James Rosborough, stroke; C. A. Barnard, bow, and Ben Peregoy and W. H. Cooper, waist. E. A. Bour, Charles Warner, H. C. Ludwig and R. G. Richter form the Mitchell four, who average a little under 146 pounds. The Burlingtons have a good four, composed of C. C. Fowler, C. W. Bodeman, C. M. Schenck and C. E. Osgood.

JUNIOR DOUBLES.

If a race at all it must be a walk away for the Madison Boat Club, as they make the only entry. William Fulman and C. F. Sightam are the pair.

THE OTHER RACES.

Four-oared gigs are entered by the Peorias and Burlingtons. The boat of the former will be manned by H. Walker, C. S. Cockle, G. W. Weddle and G. J. Brown. The crew averages six feet in height and 163 pounds in weight. The Burlingtons enter the same crew as for the four-oared shell. There are but two names on the list for the senior single sculls, although a third is promised from the juniors on the day of the race. H. M. Butler and W. H. Hyndman, both of St. Paul, are the entries.

THE HANLAN-MORRIS MATCH.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 18, 1878.

The excitement over the Hanlan-Morris sculling match for the championship of America and purse of $2,000 runs very high and the pool rooms to-night are thronged and the bidding quite animated.

Indications point to Thursday's race as one of the hottest and closely contested sculling matches the world ever saw, as the men are both in excellent form and for the last few days have been inaccessible to visitors. Hanlan will row at about 145 pounds, while Morris is heavier, reaching perhaps 158 pounds. Hundreds of sporting men from Canada are in this city, and to-morrow a large excursion train from Toronto will arrive, while prominent rowing men from New York, Boston and Philadelphia are already here.

Pools to-night favor Hanlan at 100 to 75, and Morris sold as low as 60. Canadians are not eager to give such odds, and are investing reluctantly, while Morris' friends are holding out for all odds they can get. It is thought that by Thursday betting will be even. The race will take place at Hulton, twelve miles from this city, and it is expected that it will be witnessed by between twenty and thirty thousand people.

TROTTING AT NEWBURG.

NEWBURG, N. Y., June 18, 1878.

There were two more very interesting trotting races this afternoon at the Orange Lake Club House track, six miles west of this city. The attendance was fair, but not as large as heretofore. The two races on the card to-day were one for horses that had never beaten three minutes, and the other for the fifty trotters. In the three minute race, J. O. Smith, of this city, entered the brown gelding Jim Merritt; Martin Hines, of Fishkill Landing, his sorrel gelding Irish Mike, and Governor Hinchman, of Montgomery, his sorrel horse Optic. In the 2:50 race were John Brewster's sorrel gelding Major, from Coldenham, and Charles E. Bowman's chestnut gelding Edgar, from Blooming Grove. In the three minute race Jim Morritt proved the victor, Optic taking second place all through, and Irish Mike third place. The latter horse was very rank and unsteady, and is said to be a bolter. In the second heat he became unmanageable and nearly got the best of the young man who was driving him. Coming down the homestretch his driver sung out that he could not hold him and every one expected to see him dashed to pieces on the turn, but before he got there the horse was brought to bay. Another driver was put in in the third heat, but although he kept the obstreperous beast more level he failed to better his position in the race.

The 2:50 race was called second, and proved to be one of the best races that has ever been trotted on this course. There were five heats trotted and a change of drivers made before it was determined which was the best horse. The first two heats were taken handily by Bowman's chestnut gelding Edgar in 2:55 and 2:55½, Brewster's sorrel Major being well up each time. In the third heat of the race a new driver was put behind Major in the person of Johnny Goldsmith, Alden Goldsmith's young son, who was just fresh from the new laurels he won at Fleetwood Park in capturing the 2:25 race there with one of Alden's numerous string of flyers, Driver. With the boy's excellent management Major won the third and fourth heats, trotting both without a skip. In the fifth heat Major left his feet right after getting the word, making a bad break and losing ground that he afterward could not wholly make up. Edgar took the heat and race. The judges were Nathaniel Barnes and James Cochrane, of this city, and W. E. Barnes, of St. Andrews.

BEACON PARK.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

BOSTON, June 18, 1878.

Owing to the rain of the last two days and the consequent bad condition of the track the trotting at Beacon Park, which was announced to come off to-day, has been postponed until to-morrow.

KENTUCKY THOROUGHBRED SALES.

The yearly sales of the Kentucky yearlings will begin on the 25th inst. at Lexington, when those bred by Mr. A. Grinstead and Mr. J. Keene Richards will be sold. In the combined catalogue there are forty-nine lots, some being two and some three years old, as well as the yearlings.

Mr. Alexander's sale of yearlings will be held at Woodburn Farm on the 26th inst. Twelve thoroughbred colts, the get of Australian, Asteroid, King Alfonso and Glen Athol, will be sold. The first of the get of King Alfonso will be offered this year, and they are said to be a fine lot.

Mr. Sanford's seventh annual sale of the Preakness yearlings at the North Elkhorn Farm will come off on Thursday, 27th inst. It is the largest lot ever brought forward in this country. Twenty-four colts and twenty-four fillies—forty-eight in all—comprise the lot. Six of the colts are by Glenelg, six by King Lear, five by Monarchist, four by Virgil and three by Baywood. Seven of the fillies are by Glenelg, six by King Lear, five by Baywood, two by Monarchist and one by Virgil. By persons who have seen these youngsters they are represented as the finest lot ever offered for sale in this country. Racing men will find the right kind to replenish their stables with.

BASE BALL.

The out of town games played yesterday are as follows:—At Milwaukee—Milwaukees, 7; Chicagos, 5. At Syracuse—Crickets, 9; Stars, 4. At Worcester—Manchesters, 11; Worcesters, 3. At Lowell—Lowells, 1; Springfields, 0. At Buffalo—Buffalos, 14; Eries, 0.

To-day the Flyaways and Witokas play on the Capitoline Ground; New Yorks and Jersey Citys on the Centennial Ground, Jersey City; Springfields and Manchesters, at Manchester; Crickets and Rochesters, at Rochester; Pittsfields and Hornells, at Hornellsville.

On Friday the Yale and Princeton nines will play their third game of the season, for the college championship, on the grounds of the St. George Cricket club, Hoboken.

ENGLEHARDT'S BENEFIT.

AN ENTERTAINING ATHLETIC PROGRAMME AT BOOTH'S THEATRE LAST EVENING.

The testimonial tendered to Mr. Fred. J. Englehardt, at Booth's Theatre last night, was a successful entertainment. The programme for an athletic exhibition was in some respects peculiar. For instance, no boxing, unless that peculiar combination of can can antics and feints, called la Laxatte, can be so dignified was given. A delightful exhibition of single stick between Deturck and M. Pierre Thoumazan, of Bordeaux, was one of the features of the entertainment, and the vain efforts of a very small boy to elude the lariat of Peralto afforded amusement for the crowd for several minutes. Mr. Frederick R. Fortmeyer gave an exhibition of his proficiency with the Indian clubs. His was not a feat of strength, merely a series of graceful evolutions at which the eye never tired of looking. Messrs. William Huller, Gustav Bayos, John Mans, Louis Ziesse, B. Wolf, Eugene Bayos, Magnus Winter, John Hoffman and Louis J. Poor executed a series of feats on the parallel bar, and Part I. of the programme concluded with one full Græco-Roman wrestling. In this event much interest was felt, as it had been announced that Mr. Regnier would contend with an unknown expert. Mr. Englehardt explained before the event came off that the much-talked of incognito had failed to appear and that Mr. Muldoon would try a fall with Mr. Regnier. Regnier got the fall after working one hour for it. During the last three-quarters of an hour Muldoon was on the offensive, and before Regnier threw him he had well nigh exhausted his strength. Regnier was panting with his defensive efforts, and when finally he got Muldoon's shoulders on the carpet he jumped lightly to his feet and bowed himself off the stage. The exhibition of "Saratte" by MM. Thoumazan and L'Augville was the most amusing incident of the evening, and evoked thunders of applause from the house. Mr. P. I. Kelly gave exhibitions of strength, which consisted in lifting a fifty-six pound brick of iron from the floor by sheer grip, swinging a fifty-two pound four ounce Indian club and raising a club of less weight from a horizontal to a perpendicular position. A Roman festival of arms, in which there was much clashing of sword steel, was well received, and Professor Xavier Stoppel's ideal plastiques concluded the very entertaining programme.

WOULD NOT LEAVE HIM.

Mr. William A. Wright, a gentleman about sixty years of age, residing at No. 156 East Thirty-eight street, has been several times a complainant in the police courts against a woman named Julia A. Woodward, residing at No. 62 Charles street, whom he charges with persistently annoying him both at his place of business and at his residence. She was arraigned before Judge Kilbreth yesterday morning on a charge of having on Monday night visited the residence of Mr. Wright's sister in a state of intoxication and there acted in a very disorderly manner. In the court room she reiterated the statements made on previous occasions that she had been the mistress of Mr. Wright for nine years; that she loved him, could not live away from him and would not leave him. Judge Kilbreth—who had discharged her about a week ago when she was brought up for threatening to shoot Mr. Wright—thought it was necessary to commit her for a short time, as she showed signs of incipient insanity. She was therefore put under $300 bail to keep the peace for six months or stand committed for three months.

RIFLE SHOOTING.

Second Day of the Great Tournament at Schuetzen Park.

THE MARKSMEN'S SCORES.

A Rainy Occasion, with Small but Cheerful Attendance.

The signal gun boomed out promptly at eight o'clock yesterday morning, at Schuetzen Park, and the marksmen were soon afterward in their places. The few annoyances of Monday, owing to its being opening day, were unobserved, and it certainly appeared as if the shooters had settled down to their work. Notwithstanding that many prizes were given out on Monday to fortunate shooters their niches in the prize house had been quickly filled. The list of prizes has, in fact, increased so rapidly that the total valuation has been raised to over $35,000. A considerable portion of this amount will be given in premium and money prizes; not all to the best shots, however, for some of it will go to those who are most successful at bowling, running, jumping, &c. The rain during the morning fell without cessation and there were few sightseers that braved the wetting. The pavilions were tenantless save here and there a gray or green coated sharpshooter with a feather drooping and a general forlorn aspect. The side shows and peep shows were deserted, and many of them closed. The mammoth fat woman sat disconsolately gazing at the four-legged chicken, and the fierce warrior of the Cannibal Islands whooped in the cannibalistic tongue and swore in good round English alternately with absolutely no effect. The rain fell upon the trees and dripped from the leaves, the banners hung limp, and enjoyment seemed impossible to any but the graceful swans that swam in stately fashion about the lake. Even during the afternoon, when an excellent orchestra played dancing music there were not more than a half dozen couples that availed themselves of the opportunity for terpsichorean amusement. Later on in the day the dancing platform had a more animated appearance for a greater number of persons arrived. The signal gun was sounded promptly at seven o'clock, and almost simultaneously the sun burst through the storm clouds in the west and shone down with brilliancy on the gathered riflemen, who welcomed it with enthusiastic cheers. Several organizations not before on the ground arrived yesterday.

THE SHOOTING.

On Monday, the first day of the festival, there were fired 14,908 shots at the different targets.

The first bull's eye yesterday morning was made by Koenig, of San Francisco, and the last in the morning by Leitz, of Baltimore. Following is the record of shooting for the day:—

Target of Honor.—William Klein, 63 rings; C. G. Zettler, 60; Philip Klein, 63; William P. McClean, 56; Thomas Broadway, 64; S. Bartel, Bridgeport, 51; Charles Horney, 59; R. Weidman, 61; Valentine Loewer, 60; A. Schwarz, Baltimore, 59.

Stich Target.—D. Müller, 1 bull's eye; C. Judson, 2; E. F. Colzmann, 1; C. G. Zettler, 2; L. Lane, 1; Emil Berger, 1; Albert Seitz, 1; H. E. Koegel, 1.

Volksfest Target.—Ch. Zettlers, 67 rings; Charles Horney, 68; Ph. Klein, 67; P. Fenning, 68; E. Holzmann, 64; W. Klein, 65; J. W. Schneider, 61; F. W. Fleidner, 63; C. Ziegler, 63; Theo. Klicsrath, 60; F. Kessler, 64; Pres. G Aery, 58; A. Zeugner, 59.

Man Target.—William Klein, 88 points; F. W. Fliedner, 88; Dr. A Schwarz, Baltimore, 90; D. Müller, 86; P. Meyer, 76; D. Ward, 80; A. Zengall, 75; Ph. Klein, 90; F. Otten, 75; Captain A. Ermisch, 75; F. Zeller, 74; C. F. Beck, Newark, 74; Th. Kilesrath, 73; Ch. Zettler, 73; C. Babcock, 72; J. R. Grohman, 73; F. Shubinger, 68; A. Holzman, 67; Jacob Heintz, 67; P. Fenning, 67; L. Mendorf, 65; C. Müller, Philadelphia, 69.

Goblet Target.—Jac. Heintz, John R. Grohmann, William Goelzer, Philadelphia; George Spangler, N. W. R. C.

Gold Medals for 300 Points.—William Hayes, Newark; F. Landolt, H. Oehle, W. Farron.

SILVER MEDALS.

The following received silver medals:—A. J. Dittmar, H. Popberg, R. Geilfup, Chs Scholts, Chicago; H. Dahrmann, N. Lewis, P. Stockert, Stillwater; D. Müller, W. Gelzer, Philadelphia; A. Holzmann, Philadelphia; W. Cowden, N. W. R. C.; W. H. L. Koenig, San Francisco; A. Seitz, George Leitz, E. Frai, N. W. R. C.; F. Abel, St. Louis; Chr. Molter, Philadelphia; W. Keller, Chicago; J. R. Grohmann, John Schneider, P. Fenning, E. Berger, F. Ritschie, Troy; Chs. Gunchlin, F. Facarins, Ed. Ruegger, J. P. Delahunty, S. D. Reutschler, John Mennier, H. W. Cordts, N. D. Ward, W. Farron, William Klein, A. Knopfli, William Schnauffer, L. Lane, W. Ehrenpfort, George Scullling, F. Patterson, George Quittmeyer, F. Zeller, Victor Schobinger, William Hayes, George Scholk, Edward Eglander, San Francisco; R. Faber, T. Cook, W. P. McLead, Charles Beekmann, T. Kessler, Charles Babcock, T. P. Wight, H. von der Linden, Henry Kroger, C. Judson, J. Blumenberg, Jac. Bertschy, Gevert Pape, G. Hartmann, C. Mahnken, Henry R. Koegel, F. Willms, S. Hobmann, C. Becker, P. Tobin, E. T. Beck, R. Spitz, Jacob Heintz, John A. Bauer, F. H. Jacobs, L. Wagemann, F. Harrison, C. Keller, Jr., Chr. Heintz, W. N. Bonestoel, H. Fischer, John Thice, K. Ruppel, W. H. Cleveland, P. Meyer, P. Bartel, Henry Wenmann, Frank Hansen, G. A. Kundahl, John H. Rascher, Max M. Hellwig, C. W. Stremure, J. Gasser, E. Holzmann, A. Zengner, L. G. Beatse, C. Riebsam, G. Spangler, H. Rumpf, W. T. Klee, M. L. Riggs, G. Toiner, Captain A. Ermisch, Jacob Rheinfrank, F. Schroeder, W. Mohn.

THE BANQUET.

The clearing weather induced many of the riflemen who had not come out during the day to be present at the grand banquet of the evening. About five hundred persons sat down to the main dining room of the grand pavilion, and the president, George Aery, presided. The hall was elegantly trimmed with banners and evergreens, and an orchestra, concealed at one end, played during the repast. Speeches were made in welcome by Major Aery, ex-President Miller, of Philadelphia, and others. Dr. Schumacher, German Consul General, spoke at length in response to the toast of the Fatherland, and eulogized the custom of holding the shooting festivals. Other toasts were drunk amid enthusiasm, including that to the United States. The banquet did not close until a very late hour.

ACTING MAYORS' EMOLUMENTS.

The Court of Appeals has under consideration the suit recently brought against the Comptroller of Brooklyn by Alderman Ray, of the Thirteenth ward, to compel the defendant to pay his salary for services rendered while acting as Mayor during the temporary absence of Mayor Schroeder, last year. The Comptroller declined to pay the salary on the ground that "Presidents of the Board of Aldermen, when acting in the capacity of Mayor, since the charter of 1873, have no right to draw an amount equalling the salary of the Mayor." In this connection the Common Council has instructed the Corporation Counsel to commence an action for the recovery of the money paid to presidents of the Board of Aldermen while acting as Mayor since the charter of 1873 became a law. They are Jacob I. Bergen, who received $712 14; Daniel O'Reilly, $82 17, and John French, $719 25.

THE NATIONAL TRUST COMPANY.

The first dividend to depositors of the National Trust Company was one of fifty per cent; the second, twenty-five per cent, and the third and last, payment of which was begun on Monday, the remaining twenty-five per cent. The stockholders will not fare so well. Receiver Best hopes to be able to pay a fair dividend next September. But rather than force the sale of the assets yet remaining he wishes to dispose of them with the utmost care. He feels sure of securing at least twenty-five per cent of their investment to the stockholders of the institution.

SILKS AND SILVERWARE.

Captain Eaken, of the Fifth precinct, saw two men standing in front of the Exchange Hotel, No. 314 Greenwich street, yesterday morning, who, by their actions, excited his suspicions. One of the men, a well known "fence" or receiver of stolen goods, left abruptly and the other entered the hotel. The Captain followed the man into the hotel and took him into custody. He was entered on the register as Richard Mitchell, of Providence, R. I. A trunk in his room upon being opened was found to contain five very costly silk dresses and some silverware marked "A. R." The prisoner was taken to the Tombs, where he did not give a satisfactory account of himself, and was consequently remanded to jail. Superintendent Walling was notified of the arrest, and he telegraphed to the Chief of Police of Providence to inquire if any such articles as were found in the trunk had been stolen in that city.

MERCANTILE BENEFIT ASSOCIATION.

The Mercantile Benefit Association, which was organized about a year ago, held their first annual meeting last evening at Masonic Hall, Mr. O. S. Chamberlain, the president, in the chair. Mr. Russell B. Hoyt, secretary and treasurer, read a report showing that the number of applications for membership received up to June 3 was 594, of which 507 were accepted and that the average age of members was thirty-five years. The amount received for initiation fees was $2,535, and two death assessments amounted to $6,735. Of this amount the executors of Archibald Taylor, who died on January 3, received $1,596 ten days thereafter. The balance in hand, after paying all expenses, is $2,730 17. The report of the Executive Committee was then read, stating among other things that the insurance offered by the association at the present time is $2,520, and that it is daily increasing. The committee have deposited of funds derived from the assessments in a bank as a special assessment fund.

The following officers for the ensuing year were unanimously elected:—President, C. S. Chamberlain; Vice Presidents, M. M. Belding, Arthur F. Sullivan, Colonel Joseph M. Congdon and General J. B. Meserole; Secretary and Treasurer, Russell B. Hoyt.

UNITED STATES BOARD OF TRADE.

The United States Board of Trade met yesterday at their offices in the Park Bank building for the purpose of electing officers. The following gentlemen were chosen:—President—Leslie E. Brooks; Vice Presidents—Thomas Clyde, Frederick A. Potts, S. Y. Tupper and Chauncey J. Filley. Mr. Leslie E. Brooks is an ex-Senator from the State of Alabama, and at present President of the Board of Trade at Mobile; Mr. Thomas Clyde is a large shipowner in Philadelphia; Frederick A. Potts is a director of the New York Board of Trade; S. Y. Tupper is President of the Chamber of Commerce at Charleston, S. C., and Chauncey J. Filley is President of the St. Louis Board of Trade. Among the gentlemen present were Messrs Reddington, of New Orleans; W. A. West, of Oxford Miss.; Safford, of Arizona; Read, of Bridgeport; Exton, of Trenton; Post, of Hartford, and Williams and Farrelly, of New York. The Law Committee, of which David Dudley Field is chairman, was instructed to prepare a new bankruptcy bill.

CITY NEWS ITEMS.

The Cotton Exchange voted favorably yesterday on the proposition to make Friday, July 5, and Saturday, July 6, holidays.

The regular monthly meeting of the Republican Central Committee, which was to have taken place last night, was adjourned until September 3, there being no quorum present.

The body found off the Battery last Sunday has been identified as Henry Welder, Jr., nineteen years of age, of Staten Island, who was drowned on the 5th inst. off Fort Hamilton by being struck with the hawser of the tugboat Union.

Inspector Tate, of the Custom House, while in charge of unloading the steamer City of Washington, noticed a barrel, labelled as fruit, being rolled off the dock in somewhat of a hurry. He stopped it, and on opening the barrel found it contained 1,700 packages of cigarettes.

John Liedenthal, German, forty-five years old, and a resident of Seventy-fifth street, between First and Second avenues, attempted suicide yesterday by cutting his throat with a razor. He was removed to Roosevelt Hospital, where the wound was pronounced a dangerous one.

The trains on the Gilbert or Metropolitan Elevated road last night were run at intervals of three and five minutes up to midnight. They will continue to make trips hereafter in this way, and it is declared that, at the expiration of two weeks, trains will be run both ways after midnight every half hour.

The two performing bears brought over on the City of Richmond on Sunday last, and which were seized by the Custom House authorities for non-payment of duty, were released yesterday. They were appraised at $50, and the duty on living imported animals being twenty per cent, the owners paid $10 and carried off their pets.

Some fifty prisoners, white and colored, male and female, were arraigned in the Jefferson Market Police Court yesterday—the product of an extensive raid by the police on several disorderly houses in Thompson street. Judge Murray held such as were known to rent premises and discharged the others after severe warning.

The officers of the St. Louis, Alton and Terre Haute Railroad stated yesterday that they would listen to no propositions toward a compromise from the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago and the Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati and Indianapolis roads. If the latter do not stand by their original contract, which calls for an annual rental of at least $450,000, they will appeal to the courts to decide the question.

The bids for Indian supplies to the number of several hundred were opened and read yesterday at No. 61 Wooster street, by Commissioner Hayt, assisted by General Fiske, in the presence of a large number of contractors. According to the contract, the goods are to be delivered at the several Indian agencies, and the prices, put in the bids, include delivery of goods at specified points. The award of contracts will be announced in a few days.

Among the ordinary mail matter received yesterday morning at the Post Office from Washington, a large envelope containing $42 000 in United States bonds was found in a very dilapidated condition; so much so that the contents were fully exposed to view. The package was taken to Postmaster James, and as it was addressed to a prominent bank in this city he sent the same to the institution by a special messenger, where a receipt was given for it.

In response to a resolution passed by the Police Board, asking for information on the subject, Inspector Dilks yesterday reported that the two establishments in his district known as the Cremorne Gardens and Buckingham Palace were in possession of licenses from the Board of Excise. The report also volunteers the information that both places are resorts of women of doubtful character, but that the police have never had occasion to interfere with them.

A fire occurred yesterday morning in the basement of No. 180 Mulberry street, occupied as a bakery, and during the excitement that followed three men were injured. Daniel O'Conner, who is employed in the bakery, was severely burned about the body and arms; Benjamin Meggs, an occupant of the house, jumped from the first story window and received a slight scalp wound, and Daniel Keely, also a resident of the house, was slightly injured by a falling brick.

SUBURBAN ITEMS.

Brooklyn has $2,303,198 90 on deposit in its several banks. The receipts for arrears of taxes last week were $15,333.

Mr. James N. Smith has been elected president of the Brooklyn, Flatbush and Coney Island Railroad Company, vice ex-Judge John A. Lott.

David Taylor caused the arrest of Francis Campbell, a waiter in the boarding house No. 18 Sydney place, Brooklyn, last night, on a charge of stealing a watch, worth $125, and several articles of clothing from him.

Owing to the stormy weather the sale of the furniture and other effects belonging to Commodore Garner, the unfortunate owner of the Mohawk, appointed to take place at the Garner mansion yesterday, near Snug Harbor, Staten Island, was postponed until Friday next, at eleven A. M.

The inquest in the case of James H. Van Houten, whose mysterious death occurred in Newark, was concluded yesterday. The jury, after a brief deliberation, returned the following verdict:—"We find that James H. Van Houten came to his death in the city of Newark, N. J., June 11, 1878, from strychnine, administered by himself while under temporary aberration of mind."

A short time ago the Manhattan Beach Railroad Company purchased about fifty acres of land at the east end of Coney Island for $1,500—the value set upon the ground by two arbitrators appointed by the town of Gravesend. The electors of the latter town now claim that the sale of the ground for that price was a fraud upon them, and declare their intention of bringing the matter before the courts.

William Bobler and Frank Voltz were arrested yesterday on a warrant issued by Judge Marshall, of Newtown, L. I., charging them with vandalism, in having, as alleged, disfigured a monument in Lutheran Cemetery. The accused assert their innocence and intimate that they will make their accuser, John Kepple, a sculptor of North Second street, Williamsburg, pay dearly for causing their arrest.

The will of Honora Duncan, who died March 2 in Brooklyn, was presented for probate before Surrogate Daly yesterday. The deceased left an estate worth $15,000. After providing for several relatives she leaves $1,000 to the Roman Catholic Orphan Asylum on Willoughby avenue and $600 to the Home for the Aged. The will is to be contested by William Brooke, a nephew of the testatrix, who resides at Forks Station, Pa.

Early on Monday morning the schooner Bucco, Captain Conly, of St. John, N. B., while lying at anchor in Huntington (L. I.) Harbor, was robbed by the mate, John Lincoln, and a seaman, Alexander Lynch, of three silver watches, a revolver, three suits of clothing and $30 in money, belonging to the captain and steward. The thieves made their escape in the schooner's yawl to the mainland and took the early train for New York.

Julius Buddendeck, of No. 183 Seventh street, this city, was arrested in Williamsburg yesterday charged with embezzlement by Pratt & Co., oil manufacturers. Oil dealers receive $1 25 for each empty barrel returned on presenting a receipt for them at the office of the company. Buddendeck returned one barrel yesterday and then altered his receipt to five barrels on which $6 25 was paid and as soon as he had pocketed the money he was turned over to the police.

A suit for seduction and breach of promise of marriage was brought in the Brooklyn City Court yesterday by Anna Towers, who is said to be a friendless Irish girl, against John Clark, whose relatives are possessed of an abundance of this world's goods. The plaintiff was a servant in a family residing at No. 300 Myrtle avenue and defendant's mother kept a store opposite. The plaintiff alleges that the defendant became acquainted with her, proposed marriage and then seduced her. The accusations are denied by the defendant.

CLASS REUNION AT RUTGERS.

Distinguished Arrivals at Princeton College.

PRINCETON COLLEGE.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

PRINCETON, N. J., June 18, 1878.

The evening trains have added large numbers to the visitors here from all sections of the country. At no previous commencement week have so many distinguished persons from Philadelphia and Washington, as well as from New York, participated in the college festivities. General Sherman, accompanied by Colonel Audenried, of his staff, reached here at nine this evening, a special train having been despatched to the junction by the college authorities for the accommodation of the General of the Army. Dr. McCosh was at the depot when the General alighted, and the meeting of the two eminent men was exceedingly cordial. The college president insisted that the General should first accompany him in his carriage to his house before occupying the apartments engaged for him at the hotel. The General will deliver his oration to-morrow afternoon, when it is understood he will honor the memory of the late Professor Henry by giving him credit for important inventions which heretofore have been claimed in part by others. Mrs. Stanley Matthews is here, momentarily expecting the arrival of her husband. Ohio is further represented by Governor Denison. Among other notabilities arrived this evening are John A. Stewart, H. M. Alexander, Mr. Libby, Rev. Dr. Irving, Jay Cooke, Jr., and William L. Skidmore. President Hayes will arrive to-morrow but will not remain over night. Two special cars filled with Senators and Representatives are expected during the day to attend the wedding of ex-Governor Swann and Mrs. Thompson on Thursday. The rain greatly interfered with the day's exercises, but the bright evening has revived the enthusiasm among the students and their numerous friends. The streets are alive with the beaux and belles, who were compelled to keep within doors during the day, and the Second Presbyterian Church is crowded to overflowing by those anxious to listen to the songs of the College Glee Club.

RECEPTIONS AND DINNERS.

Receptions and dinners without number are given this evening at the hotel and several private residences, one notably by William D. Van Dyke, at Witherspoon Hall, which is largely attended by ladies. The class of '68 had their decennial dinner this evening at Niebuhr's Hotel. They met for the first time to-day since 1871. A peculiar feature of to-night's celebration was the presentation of a beautiful silver cup to the class member having the oldest boy. Henry P. Fowlkes, of Tennessee, was the lucky recipient of the testimonial. The dinner, at which forty members were present, was presided over by Dr. George A. Van Wagenen, of Newark, and the presentation speech was made by C. S. Withington, of New York. Responses to numerous toasts were made by A. R. Pendleton, of Virginia; Rev. W. C. Rummell, of Philadelphia; Joseph Barteles, Rev. Henry Neill and Stephen H. Little, of Morristown. The class of '77 are also enjoying their first annual supper, and their cheering songs add to the pleasurable excitement, which forms a striking contrast to the scenes of disorder witnessed here last winter.

BROWN UNIVERSITY.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 18, 1878.

The annual meeting of the Rhode Island Alpha, of Phi Beta Kappa, was held in Manning Hall, Brown University, this forenoon. President B. F. Clarke welcomed the members, and said the record of the society for the past year had been very satisfactory. Dr. O. C. Wiggin, of Providence, was elected to membership, and officers for the ensuing year were chosen as follows:—Professor B. F. Clarke—President. Mr. William Gaston—Vice President. Professor John H. Appleton—Corresponding Secretary. Dr. Merrick Lyon—Treasurer. Committee of Appointments—Rev. Richard Metcalf, Professor T. Whiting Bancroft, Dr. Edward T. Caswell, Rev. Howard Jones and Professor Alonzo Williams. After nominations for membership, which were laid over for a year under the rule, the society adjourned.

THE ALUMNI ASSOCIATION.

The Alumni Association of Brown University held its usual meeting in Manning Hall, at four o'clock. There was a good attendance. Vice President Abraham Payne, of Providence, was in the chair. The Treasurer's report showed that the receipts for the year were $1,712·16. The expenditure was less than $100, leaving a fund on hand sufficient to carry on the business of the association. A motion to amend the articles of the association, so that absent members must vote for the nominations of trustees of the University by ballot, instead of by written proxy, was debated by Mr. Francis W. Bird, East Walpole, Mass.; Mr. Rowland Hazard, Providence, and others, and finally defeated by a large vote.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—

President—Henry Chapin, Worcester, Mass. Vice Presidents—Abraham Payne, Providence; Francis Wayland, New Haven, Conn. Secretary—Reuben A. Guild, Brown University. Treasurer—Alexander Farnum, Providence.

Executive Committee—Adin B. Underwood, Newton, Mass.; Hamilton B. Staples, Worcester; E. L. Pierce, Milton, Mass.; B. F. Thurston, Providence; James O. Murray, Princeton, N. J.

Advisory Board—Edward Caswell, Alexander Farnum, Charles B. Goff, Providence; Samuel S. Greene, Albert Harkness, Brown University; Francis A. Gaston, Worcester; Francis W. Bird, East Walpole, Mass.

Short addresses were delivered by Rev. Dr. D. F. Champlin, formerly President of Colby University, Me.; Rowland Hazard, Providence; Hamilton B. Staples, Worcester; Professor J. Lewis Diman, Brown University; James M. Keith, Boston. Rev. Dr. E. G. Robinson, President of Brown University, was called upon to address the Alumni. He made a brief speech in which he said that he was happy to state that the college had done good, honest work during the year; in fact, more satisfactory work than in any year since he had been connected with it. The faculty are now discussing the courses of study, in order to ascertain where a beneficial change may be made, and it was likely that the courses would be deepened and broadened, to conform to the progress of modern thought and science. He mentioned that the faculty would nominate for the chair of Natural History and Geology Professor Augustus Springer Packard, M. D., of Salem, Mass., a gentleman of fine reputation in Europe and America, who was eminently worthy of the position. The incoming class promised to be large. Brown University was working along steadily, though quietly, and making constant progress. After President Robinson's remarks the meeting adjourned.

SWARTHMORE COLLEGE.

PHILADELPHIA, June 18, 1878.

The sixth annual commencement of the Swarthmore College took place this morning at eleven o'clock. The large hall in the college building was crowded to its utmost limit by an appreciative audience. The exercises were opened by the rendering of some choice music by an efficient orchestra. The addresses were in excellent taste and admirably given. Salutatory, "The Study of Shakespeare in Germany," by William P. Holcomb, of Newtown, Pa.; scientific, "Safety for Travellers," by William Seaman, of Brooklyn, L. I.; classical, "Horace," by Tacy A. Gleim, of Lebanon, Pa., and the valedictory, by Maybell P. Davis, of Providence, R. I.

The following students received the graduation degree:—

The degree of A. B.—Caroline E. Burr, Germantown; Maybell P. Davis, Providence, R. I.; Howard Dawson, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.; Tacy A. Gleim, Lebanon; Mary P. Hallowell, Horsham; Charles A. Hawkins, Fawn Grove; Rebecca S. Hunt, Philadelphia; Edward Martin.

The degree of B. L.—William P. Holcomb, of Newtown, Pa.

The degree of B. S.—William J. Hall, West Chester; Llewellyn H. Johnson, Orange, N. J.; Francis J. Palmer, Brooklyn, L. I.; Israel Roberts, Fellowship, N. J.; William Seaman, Brooklyn, L. I.; C. Harry Shoemaker, Philadelphia.

RUTGERS COLLEGE.

ADDRESSES BEFORE THE ALUMNI—DR. DURYEE'S TRIBUTE TO WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT.

The disagreeable, drizzly Scotch like weather was a damper on the students and friends of Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N. J., yesterday, and the attendances at the alumni meetings were confined almost entirely to those specially interested. There were class and faculty meetings and reunions, but at these nothing of importance was done. To-day will be the event—Commencement day proper. The procession forms on the campus at half-past nine, and the exercises at the hall begin at ten o'clock.

At twelve o'clock the alumni of the college gathered in Kirkpatrick Chapel, in the college grounds, and listened to an address by Rev. William R. Duryee, D. D., of Jersey City. Dr. Duryee took for his theme "The Danger to the Scholar in the Age of Literature." Such an age was the last thirty-three years. The speaker dwelt upon the wonders of the printing press, the remarkable variety, growth and extent of literature. He ventured to assert that as many publications in the form of books, magazines and newspapers have been issued from the presses of Germany, France, England and America, since 1845, as were printed during the whole three preceding centuries. Speaking of daily literature the Doctor said:—"The newspaper for many has become the ideal publication, with its editorials on questions of the day, its descriptions of passing scenes, its reviews of books, pictures and recreations; its theories of religion, mixed with records of the money market, and especially its political information and appeals."

Alluding to Mr. W. C. Bryant he said:—"The noble life that so recently passed into its brighter day was one which shed its beams over circles as wide as humanity. Stand at the new made grave at Roslyn and learn to follow such a leader as Mr. Bryant, whose genius was not his sole claim to the regard and glory which he won. He lived the scholar's life, loving God and nature first of all. In an age of books, he was the critic and reader of the best and purest taste, rejecting what thoughtless thousands praised. He counted all his talents as gifts for the blessing of his country and used them through more than three score years and ten in every way in which they could be employed."

A resolution was passed by the meeting thanking the speaker for his address. The meeting then adjourned to the armory basement, where lunch was served.

After the meal speeches were made by persons who graduated from the college before it changed its name from Queens to Rutgers.

At a quarter to four the alumni met again in Kirkpatrick Chapel and listened to other addresses.

The junior exhibition came off with great éclat in the evening at Masonic Hall. Among the prominent persons on the stage were Dr. S. V. Vanderpoel, Health Officer of the Port of New York; ex-Senator Frelinghuysen, Rev. Dr. Chamberlain, missionary to India and Rev. Dr. Ormiston. Rev. Professor Doolittle presided. Gratulla's Band furnished choice music between the orations. Each speaker as he withdrew was fairly overladen with exquisite bouquets and baskets of flowers.

RUTGERS FEMALE COLLEGE.

The anniversary of the Mu Nu Sigma Society of the Rutgers Female College was held yesterday afternoon in the chapel attached to the institution, and attracted a large attendance of ladies and gentlemen. As the invited guests arrived they were received by the grand marshals and their assistants, and ushered to their seats. Misses Bartlett and Du Bois, of the class of '79, officiated as grand marshals, and were assisted by Misses Hall and Dodge. It was nearly three P. M. before the members of the class of '78 took their seats at the left of the stage, and then Miss Ida E. Sanford, A. B., '77, took the chair. The Rev. Dr. Conklin opened the proceedings with prayer, after which Dr. Thomas D. Anderson, the president of the college, delivered an address of welcome to the alumnæ. Before leaving the stage Dr. Anderson introduced Professor West. That gentleman made a few very interesting remarks. Miss Anna E. Oliver, A. M., B. D., '60, next made an address before the society.

The class day exercises then began, and Miss Lizzie B. Dennett took the chair. After Miss Ada Cannon had played "The Delta Kappa Epsilon March" on the piano Miss Clara C. Totten was introduced, and read the class history, a very amusing composition, that was received with much applause. Miss Anna S. Gilbert then sang "Sweethearts," by Sullivan. The class prophecy, by Miss Annie M. Croney, was quite a clever piece of work. Miss M. Emma Radford next spoke to the class of '79, and handed over the key of the mysterious records of the graduating class. Miss Lily Anderson, of the junior class, responded, and received the key with becoming awe at the responsibility she assumed. The exercises closed with the class song sung by the class of '78.

OUR MEDICAL COLLEGES.

RESULTS OF THE YEAR IN THE HOMŒOPATHIC, BELLEVUE, LONG ISLAND COLLEGE HOSPITAL AND OTHERS—LIST OF THE YEAR'S GRADUATES.

As a general rule the commencements of the different medical institutions in the city takes place late in the spring. Some—like Bellevue Medical College—although having no commencement at this season of the year, graduate students during the summer term. Outside of the city and in other States the medical colleges follow the rule of ordinary colleges and have their commencements and conferring of degrees in the summer. In the hospitals generally connected with such institutions work never ceases, the students being allowed to practise during the whole vacation if they so desire. There are in the State of New York thirteen of these medical institutions, eight of which are in New York city and one in Brooklyn. Of the eight in this city four had their commencements last autumn, or at the close of the winter session. The other four have had their commencements more recently, and the names of the graduates as yet remain unpublished. The one institution in Brooklyn—the Long Island College Hospital—is yet to have its Commencement.

HOMŒOPATHIC MEDICAL COLLEGE.

The Homœopathic Medical College at its last session adopted a rule making a three years' course of study compulsory, as a prerequisite for graduation. It is the first college of its kind in the country to inaugurate the three-year system of study. Hitherto the three-year course has not been compulsory. The first year's study will now consist of anatomy, chemistry and the institutions of medicine; the second year of a review of these and attendance of lectures upon practice of medicine, surgery and materia medica; the third year of a review of the two first and lectures upon the remaining branches of medicine. At the end of each year's course oral and written examinations are held. The examiners consist of a board of censors, of prominent physicians, who have no connection with the college. This board has been called into existence as a check upon the college, so that none of the students can pass who are not thoroughly qualified. The late William Cullen Bryant was formerly president of the Board of Trustees. A donation of $5,000, bequeathed in the Danser will, has lately been secured for the college. The number of students last year was 150, and the number next year bids fair to be much larger. The college reopens on the first Tuesday in October. The names of the graduates appeared in the HERALD of March 1.

NEW YORK MEDICAL COLLEGE.

The New York Medical College and Hospital for Women is also reported to be in a flourishing condition. The regular course of lectures begins October 1. The hospital is open all summer for practice and the reception of patients. Candidates for admission may apply at any time, but their examination does not take place until October. There will be about sixty new candidates by that time. The number of students is increasing every year, and the number of graduates last year was greater than ever before. The names of the graduates were given in the HERALD of April 5.

The New York College of Dentistry still keeps its dispensary open, but the Commencement has taken place. Candidates will be examined in the fall. They are obliged to spend two years in the study and practice of dentistry, and to attend two courses of lectures. The graduates of the medical colleges also have the privilege of attending these lectures. A list of the graduates was published in the HERALD of February 27.

The regular course at Bellevue Hospital Medical College terminates at the close of the winter session, but occasionally students are allowed to present themselves for examination and obtain degrees in the summer, although there is no public exhibition at that time. The names of three young men who have obtained degrees this session are Frederick S. Crossfield, Alvaro J. Diaz and Walter E. Hook.

LONG ISLAND COLLEGE HOSPITAL.

The Long Island College Hospital will have their Commencement on Thursday, June 27, at eight P. M., in the Academy of Music, Brooklyn. This institution was the first in the United States to unite a hospital and a medical school for the purpose of securing more thorough demonstrative teaching. The reading and recitation course will reopen on October 1 and the regular college course on March 1. At the Commencement the following will be the order of exercises:—Prayer by the Rev. Alexander R. Thompson, D. D.; conferring of degrees by Theodore L. Mason, M. D., president of the collegiate department; oration, "The Opportunity of the Medical Profession," by the Rev. O. B. Frothingham. Award of prizes by Samuel G. Armor, M. D., LL. D., dean of the faculty. The whole will close with benediction and the exercises will be interspersed with music.

The following is a list of the graduates whose names have not already been published:—

PACKER INSTITUTE.

The thirty-second annual commencement exercises of Packer Institute were held in the chapel of that institution, on Joralemon street, Brooklyn, last evening. The graduating class of 1878 is composed of eighteen young ladies, whose names were published in the HERALD of the 12th inst. On the stage were seated A. A. Low, president of the Board of Trustees; Henry P. Morgan, A. B. Baylis, Dr. J. Sullivan Thorne, ex-president of the Board of Education; Arthur W. Benson, William S. Packer, Joshua M. Van Cott, R. P. Buck, Tasker H. Marvin, Mayor Howell, United States District Attorney A. W. Tenney, Rev. Mr. Fulton and Judge Neilson. After the organ prelude prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. Snively, of Grace Church. The chorus "Laudate Pueri" was then sung by a trio of pupils, with chorus. Miss M. Priscilla Jewett delivered the salutatory. An essay on "Castes," by Miss Florence Pike, was followed by a composition by Miss Adelaide Wilson, entitled "Marie Antoinette et Josephine." The chorus, "Whirl and Twirl," from the "Phantom Ship," by Wagner, followed. Essays were read by Miss Sarah B. Walker, on "The Marathon of Life;" by Miss Annie E. Carr, on "Inventions of the Day;" by Miss Lizzie Smith, on "Society Girls;" by Miss Emma L. Davenport, on "Advertising." The chorus "Dragonflies" (We Bright Creatures), Bargiel, was then sung. Essays were also read by Misses Cornelia S. Butler, Abreta North and Lucy H. Raymond. After the valedictory address, which was delivered by Miss Adelina Bierck, the diplomas were presented to the graduates by Mr. A. A. Low. Professor Crittenden, the president, then delivered a brief address, after which "The Class Song," the words of which were composed by Miss Sarah B. Walker, was sung.

BROOKLYN POLYTECHNIC INSTITUTE.

The Brooklyn Collegiate and Polytechnic Institute will hold its Commencement exercises to-night, at eight o'clock, in the Academy of Music, Brooklyn. The Board of State Regents will be represented by Mr. George William Curtis, who will confer the degrees and deliver an address. Rev. Dr. Storrs is also expected to be present. The exercises will consist of music, nine orations by members of the graduating class, the presentation of diplomas and the conferring of degrees. For the past two or three years the State Regents have authorized the college to confer the degree of Bachelor of Arts and also the degree of Bachelor of Sciences upon those who complete the four years of the collegiate course. This year there will be sixteen graduates, of whom the following are the names:—

THE GRADUATES.

Bachelors of Arts.
Green, William.	Snow, Henry S.
Scientific Course.
Barker, Edward D.	Ely, Samuel P.
Durfee, George.	Ransom, William.
Liberal Course.
Daland, William C.	Garrison, Charles M.
Frothingham, N.	Rankin, Robert.
Classical Course.
Allen, Martin S.	Cosgrove, Harry B.
Bate, Mortimer S.	Cromwell, George.
Cochran, Thomas.	Halsey, Charles.

"GOODBY, MATTHEWS."

THE GRADUATES' GIFT TO THE JANITOR OF THE UNIVERSITY OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

A pleasant and somewhat unique presentation took place last evening in the grim old University Building on University place. The janitor of the building, Henry A. Matthews, and his wife, the janitress, are very popular among the students, and for several years past each graduating class has, upon separating from them, left them some slight token of kindly regard. Last year it was a silver teapot for Mrs. Matthews, who, in March last, collared a thief and marched him boldly down three flights of stairs, and this time it was a silver Waltham watch for Mr. Matthews. The graduating class is composed of thirty bright and exceedingly lively young men, and they utilized the occasion for giving free vent to their exuberant spirits. For half an hour the gray, mouldy walls of this seat of learning fairly re-echoed their songs, shouts, hurrahs and jocular vociferation. They marched up and down the dark halls with a terrific tramp, singing, or rather shouting, with all their might:—

Nut-brown maiden, thou hast a ruby lip,
The ruby lip is thine, love;
The kiss it gives is mine, love.
Nut-brown maiden, thou hast a slender waist,
The slender waist is thine, love;
The arm round is mine, love.
Nut-brown maiden thou hast a tiny foot,
The tiny foot is thine, love;
The shoe is number nine, love.

Then they roared the "Son of a Gamboleer," "We Won't Get Drunk Any More," "Matthews Is a Jolly Good Fellow," "Schoolfrool," which they gave in a strikingly comical manner, "The Mermaid," and other funny songs. Mr. Matthews, who is a good natured, straightforward Irishman, from Westmeath, and has preserved much of his Hibernian freshness and vigor of manner and speech, was, of course, the hero of the occasion. He had gathered a number of young ladies in his parlor to shed the grace of female beauty on the presentation, but the graduates had to be literally dragged by him in order to serve as escorts for the fair visitors. Finally, all marched up to the small chapel, whose centre table was groaning under sandwiches, cakes, claret punch, sherry, lemonade, surprise candies, and other delicacies.

"I furnished the supper and they furnished the present," Mr. Matthews laughingly explained.

Mr. William J. Roome, on behalf of the class, presented the watch in a highly complimentary speech, frequently interrupted by the humorous sallies of the bachelors of arts in spe, and Mr. Matthews expressed his grateful thanks, in which he promised never to forget the class as long as the watch would tick. His speech was remarkable for its fulness of fervor and its absence of grammar, and it was enthusiastically received by the jolly young graduates.

"Our carryings on in the halls are sometimes so devilish," a student explained, speaking of the custom of annually presenting the janitor with some pleasant mark of good feeling, "that the janitor could often get us into a scrape by reporting us to the faculty. But Matthews is a good fellow, and whenever he is questioned by the faculty he is non-committal—he sees nothing at all. Then we have a good deal of fun with him, and when he's about to ring the bell after recess we chase him away, so as to prolong the recess."

During last evening's jollification three little Matthewses, born, as their father proudly pointed out, under the Stripes and Stars, were present. The least spread by Mrs. Matthews' hands was done ample justice to by the graduates.

THE NEW SCHOLARS.

The following is a list of the successful candidates for entrance to the New York University, who passed the required examination before the faculty yesterday:—

Arndt, John S.	Noble, Charles C.
Brown, B. J., Jr.	Rockwell, E. H.
Catlin, Rufus.	Russell, Charles E.
Gillette, John W.	Shields, John H.
Halstead, Jacob.	Ticker, John L.
[illegible], Robert W.	Weber, John, Jr.
Jones, Charles H. G.	White, Henry.
McIntyre, Robert E.

NAVAL ACADEMY.

THE REGATTA—SAILING RACE AND ROWING MATCH—PRESENTATION OF PRIZES.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 18, 1878.

The Board of Visitors met this morning and discussed the report of the Committee on the Grounds, Public Buildings and Sanitary Condition of the Naval Academy. The report of the Committee on Steam, Mathematics and Physics was received and considered. The report on English Studies was received, considered and adopted. The reports on Administration and Police, and on Finance and Library were also adopted. The examination of the cadets has been concluded. This afternoon the Board of Visitors witnessed at the Steam Engineery Department the workings of a steam engine used on a second class monitor. The cadet midshipmen connected the engine, the condenser bonnet was put on, the valve was secured and adjusted for running. The thrust bearings and crosshead were secured to the forward piston. The cylinder head was put on and the engine started. Passed Assistant Engineer Robert Crawford directed the exercises.

THE REGATTA.

Immediately after this preparations were made for the regatta. Four launches, about twenty feet in length, with about six feet of beam, with main and foresail and jib, were entered for the races.

Launch No. 2 was commanded by Cadet T. S. Rogers; T. W. Ryan, coxswain.

No. 3, W. L. Rogers, commanding; H. S. Knapp, coxswain.

No. 7, J. G. Quinby, commanding; E. Lloyd, coxswain.

No. 10, C. S. McClain, commanding; S. F. Biddle, coxswain.

Each launch carried a crew of twelve.

The start was beautifully made, almost every sail dropping at once into position from the stern of the United States ship Santee at twenty-seven minutes to five. Music from the Academy Band gave éclat to the occasion. No. 10 was to the windward and No. 3 to the leeward, which, with a failure to get their jib in position, threw the latter behind. No. 10 turned the first stakeboat, about a mile and a half distant, first, being just ten minutes from the start. The wind being fair, the others followed in order of 7, 2, 3. The tack down to the second stakeboat was with the wind on the side and quarter. No. 3 now showed her sailing qualities. She steadily took the lead and turned the second stakeboat first, and made the home stake of a mile two minutes ahead of the next boat. The three and a half miles were made in forty minutes, with a moderate wind.

A ROWING MATCH.

This over, a rowing match between nearly the same crews and, with one exception, the same boats, took place on the Severn. The distance was one mile, straight course, and twelve oars to each boat. The mile was made by the rowing boat No. 7, J. G. Quinby coxswain, in 7m. 30s.

PRESENTING THE PRIZES.

The crews were then mustered on the spar deck of the Santee, and Miss Annie Rodgers, daughter of Rear Admiral C. R. P. Rodgers, presented the victors in the sailing race with a handsome blue silk flag, and the winners of the rowing match with a stuffed game rooster. These were received by the cadets with cheers, and the Academy Band added a musical refrain.

ARION SOCIETY'S FESTIVAL.

The revival of the summer nights' festivals of the Arion Society takes place on the afternoon and evening of to-morrow (Thursday), at Lion Park, 110th street. Dr Damrosch's orchestra of sixty pieces, Professor Leibold's band of twenty-five pieces and two other supplemental bands will supply the music, the first performing classic and the others dancing music. The various committees will be dressed in court costumes and a guard of halbardiers, in complete armor, will preserve order. The event of the evening will be a torchlight triumphal procession, representing the pleasures of the four seasons. There will also be firing of cannon, fireworks, parades of different kinds, introducing many novel features, &c. Dancing will begin at seven o'clock. Extra cars and stages will be run on the various lines for the accommodation of guests.

"DOCKING HORSES' TAILS."

Commencement of Fraser's Trial Before Judge Gildersleeve.

LAW AND ANATOMY.

Dr. Campbell's Opinions Dissected by Ex-Mayor Hall.

There was a buzz of excitement in the Court of General Sessions yesterday afternoon when ex-Mayor A. Oakey Hall announced to Judge Gildersleeve his readiness to proceed in the trial of James Fraser, charged, at the instance of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, with what is generally known as "docking" a horse's tail. The horse was the property of Mr. Harry Oelrichs, a member of the Westchester Polo Club, and Fraser is his groom, and on the 27th of May the misdemeanor complained of was committed. Among other things the indictment avers that the operation of "docking" causes pain to the animal, and Mr. Bergh, the president of the society, stepped to the front. For days past he has been on the alert to have the case tried, and no happier man ever smiled upon a jury than he when the twelve good men and true were empanelled to test the question at stake. True, many more in the court room smiled as well as Mr. Bergh, but it may be said that the risibility of the audience was not provoked by similar sentiments, the difference being that between the inward chuckle of an individual and the hearty laughter of a crowd.

It was late in the afternoon when the case was called by Assistant District Attorney Herring. There was a large attendance in court, comprising many gentlemen interested in horseflesh, and altogether the proceedings were awaited with about the same anxious and pleasurable feelings exhibited by an audience just before the curtain rises on a new comedy by a popular dramatist. Ex-Mayor Hall, who had been specially retained for the defence, was never in better humor, and close in his vicinity sat Mr. August Belmont, Jr., and Mr. Herman Oelrichs.

Mr. Hall opened the proceedings by asking that the indictment might be amended, if within the power of the Court, so that Mr. Harry Oelrichs might be included in the indictment, "for," continued counsel, "the indictment charges an act of cruelty which Mr. Oelrichs authorized, and he does not feel inclined to allow an employé to stand in his place."

"I must object to that," said Mr. Herring, "Mr. Oelrichs may be indicted hereafter if he desires to be."

"He desires simply to bear the responsibility of his own acts," replied Mr. Hall."

"I must refuse your motion, Mr. Hall," said Judge Gildersleeve. "It is not a matter in my discretion, but you may take an exception."

"No, thank Your Honor," added Mr. Hall, smiling, "I think we will wait for a better one."

OPENING THE CASE.

In opening the case to the jury Mr. Herring paid a high tribute to the efforts of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Under the impetus which the Legislature had received from that organization the law had thrown its benign influence especially around the noblest of animals, the horse, and the prisoner at the bar was charged with an offence in relation to that animal. Should the prosecution prove that the acts of the prisoner were acts of cruelty, that his act was an act of mutilation, then the allegations in the indictment would be sustained and it would be an idle excuse to offer, with a full knowledge of what the law declared to be the duty of the citizen and he might say the rights of the horse, to claim that fashion or fancy or both should produce in the mind of any person the determination to exercise this cruelty and mutilation and torture in a wanton and unnecessary manner. The statute under which the indictment was drawn was very clear and could not fail to be appreciated, setting forth in chapter 375 of the Laws of 1867 that cruelty to animals should be held to be a misdemeanor. Mr. Herring exhibited to the jury the picture of the skeleton of a horse in which the spinal vertebræ extended, adding that it was for the mutilation of the tail where the vertebræ terminated that the prisoner was indicted. He said there was no personal feeling toward the accused, but if any man, no matter how humble he might be, disregarded the mandates of the law, he made himself a voluntary victim of the operations of the law, and hence he was not in a position from the fact that he was an employé to command sympathy.

SYMPATHY NOT DESIRED.

"We don't want any sympathy, Mr. Herring," said Mr. Hall, lifting his eyes from a law book.

The first witness to take the stand was a lanky young man with "docked" side whiskers, who said he was a coachman residing at No. 254 West Forty-third street. In reply to Mr. Herring he went on to state that on the 27th of May he was at Jerome Park and he saw Fraser on the polo grounds; he saw him cutting a piece of a horse's tail off.

"Describe the horse," said Mr. Herring.

"If the Court please," suggested Mr. Hall, "I shall ask the Court and the jury and the counsel to inspect the pony in front of the Court House. I cannot bring him up stairs because it would be bad for the stairs."

"Well, then," added Mr. Herring, "bring up his whole tail."

"Yes, to give you a chance for a stump speech," retorted the prisoner's counsel, and the court rang with peals of laughter.

Mr. Herring then jocularly suggested the propriety of an inspection, when Mr. Hall responded by saying that it might look a little odd to see "an ex-Mayor leading a horse."

HOW IT WAS DONE.

These little pleasantries over the tall coachman went on to state that the animal was a bay horse; that when he saw Fraser at the Polo grounds he had a knife in his hand. He brought the horse out of the stable first, then he put a strap on each fetlock with a ring on, and got a rope through the rings and tied them, thus bringing the four feet together, so that if the animal jumped it would fall. The witness, in response to a juror, stated that the horse did not fall, but kept his position during the operation. The tail was raised up, one of the men having hold of the bottom part; then Fraser took his knife and started to cut it behind and then he took his needle and thread and sewed the skin up; the tail was cut in the shape of the letter V; the cuts were made toward the bottom of the tail; the horse bled somewhat; while the cutting was going on the horse stood still, but when the sewing commenced he began to make a little motion; the horse was like a ship at sea; there was a man named Dowling present during the operation; neither Mr. Oelrichs nor Mr. Belmont, Jr., was present at the time.

"How came you to be there?" asked Mr. Hall, in cross-examination.

"Well," replied the witness, "I was in Fraser's employ for five weeks; he discharged me on Sunday morning; my month was not up when I was discharged; I don't know what I was discharged for."

"Wasn't it for being drunk and stealing a pair of pantaloons," asked Mr. Hall, with his eye riveted on the trembling coachman.

"No, sir," replied the witness.

"Well, after being discharged what did you go back for?"

"Why, I never left."

"You may leave now," said the counsel, and Owens left the witness stand.

A SURGEON'S TESTIMONY.

The veterinary surgeon of the society, Dr. Coleman, was next summoned by the prosecution. He said he had been a practitioner since 1863, and had been in New York for the past eighteen months; he had been familiar with horses since he was twelve years old and he was now sixty-two; he had seen horses docked of their tails; years ago, when he made his entry into the stables, "docking" was quite the fashion; he called the operation of "docking" simply amputation of the fleshy part of the tail; he considered it an operation of great pain, the extent of the suffering depending upon the length of the part of the tail that was cut. Here a piece of a horse's tail was produced, and the Doctor, after looking at it, said that the pain inflicted would be greater as the cutting neared the thickest end of the tail; the pain was caused by a division of the nerves of sensation; there were two classes of nerves, one class being called the nerves of motion and the other the nerves of sensation; the nerves of sensation extended from the spinal vertebræ to the horse's tail, running to the extreme end; the cutting of a horse's tail must of necessity cause pain from the nature of the structure of the tail; sometimes he had seen gangrene resulting from cutting off a horse's tail; at other times there was simply inflammation, and he had seen tails that had to be amputated the second time to get rid of the diseased part; he had known horses to die from the operation; when docking was the fashion long ago it was not an uncommon thing for horses to die from the effects of the operation; a horse's tail consisted of bones, ligaments, muscles, nerves and blood vessels; some horses had fifteen bones in their tail, others eighteen; there were four muscles—namely, the erector, the depressor, the curvator and the compressor; the tail had several minor functions, among them being the ability to brush away annoyances in the shape of flies; he had never heard reason for assuming that the amputation of a horse's tail conduced to the strength of his quarters, but it has been done with beneficial effects in the case of malformation.

"Well, then," demanded a juror, "would the docking of the tail make the horse more valuable to the owner?"

"IT MUST BE PAINFUL."

"Yes, I suppose it would," replied the Doctor, "it might fetch more after it was docked." "I think," continued the witness in response to Mr. Herring, "that the docking of horses' tails must of necessity cause physical pain; I saw the horse referred to by the witness Owens the day after he was "docked," I made an examination of the animal at the polo grounds; I examined the tail in the presence of the man who performed the operation; I am bound to say it was done very well—very skilfully done; there was not much to see the day after it occurred; I felt the horse's pulse and found it slightly accelerated, indicating that the entire effect had not passed away, but the pulse may have been accelerated by other causes; I think there were twelve inches of the tail left."

In reply to Mr. Hall the witness stated that he visited the polo ground simply to do justice; he received a monthly salary from the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals; he adopted the profession of veterinary surgeon in 1863 and was connected with the society over twelve months; he had often seen the operation of docking and performed it himself.

"Well, then, Doctor," asked the counsel, "at the time you performed it did you think it was cruel?"

"Perhaps not, sir; that was over forty years ago."

"Forty years ago you were not connected with the society?"

"No, sir," replied the witness, leisurely shaking the end of a horse's tail that had been freshly docked and which he occasionally waved like a baton in the hands of a conductor.

"Now, then, Doctor, did it occur to you that during this time you were docking so often that you gave unnecessary pain to the horses?"

"It did not."

"If it had given pain to the horses it would have occurred to you?"

"At those times I gave it little thought."

"Your feelings were smothered up at that time?"

"They were at that time."

"Didn't Fraser tell you he threw the horse's tail away and could not find it?"

"Something like that."

"Nobody made any objection to your seeing the horse?"

"No, sir."

"The pony had taken its daily feed?"

"I saw it feeding."

HOW MANY BONES LEFT?

"You would recognize the bones of a horse's tail the moment they were shown you? Now, how many bones do you suppose were taken off the pony?"

"I cannot say?"

"Take the highest number you said—eighteen bones in a horse's tail—how many bones were left in the pony's tail?"

"I did not count them."

"Now," said Mr. Hall, producing something looking like a thin piece of sugarcane, "what do you take that to be—a fishing rod or—well?"

"Well," replied the Doctor, examining it closely, "it might be the extremity of a cow's tail or a horse's tail."

"Or one of the extremities of an ex-Darwin," added the counsel. "Now see if it is not the bone of an ox or an ass?"

"I cannot say," responded the witness, amid great laughter.

"Assuming that to be the extremity of a horse's tail, can you tell whether it is like the number of bones taken from the pony?"

"Well, I should say about five bones."

"Assuming that to be the bone of a horse's tail, where would be the nerve of sensation?"

"The sensation is not in the bone. The nerves would be in the muscles that surround the bone."

"There would be no marrow in the bone."

"Not a bit."

"Oh," exclaimed Mr. Hall, "thy bones are marrowless."

Hardly had the laughter at this remark subsided when a frowsy headed little newsboy popped his head in court and shrieked out "Tel-e-gram," but, not being prepared for the surroundings, paralyzed with fright he disappeared.

"You have seen horses in the street with their tails 'docked'?"

"No, sir, never; this is the only case I saw."

"When did it occur to you that this cruel operation should be stopped?"

"When I was questioned about it; when at college I heard most eloquent denunciations of it."

"Since you became a veterinary surgeon?"

"No, sir; it was thirty or forty years ago; I was a groom at that time."

"How long have you been a 'vet'?"

"Since 1863."

"How many divisions are there of the vertebræ of the horse?"

"There's the skull divisions; there is a division relating to the neck, but I forget the name of it."

"Oh, let us have the name."

"I cannot think of it for the instant."

After some further interrogatories the witness Owens was recalled and stated that there were only three or four inches of the tail cut off.

The further hearing of the case will be resumed to-day.

TAMMANY AND THE FOURTH.

A LIBERAL INVITATION TO VISIT THE WIGWAM ON INDEPENDENCE DAY.

The Grand Sachem and Council of "the Society of Tammany or Columbian Order, founded in 1789," has sent the following invitation to its henchmen and friends to warm their shins and their intellects at the council fires of the Wigwam on the Fourth of July next:—

NEW YORK, June 10, 1878.

DEAR SIR—"Independence Day" is the great festival day of our society. The sole objects of the founders of the "Columbian Order" were to maintain in practical government the principles of civil liberty, and to preserve in the hearts of the people love of those principles. We accepted the Declaration of Independence as the best embodiment of maxims of American democracy, and the constitution of the Union as the wisest political structure. That democracy has had enemies, and has been beset with dangers from the outset. The enemies were chiefly those who did not trust the people as the best guardians of their own liberty and welfare. The dangers to be apprehended were encroachments springing from personal and class interests, and taking shape in special legislation. These dangerous and unfriendly influences have always had a political party, and they have it now.

The Society of Tammany has always confronted it and given it battle. As the selfishness and injustice which menace freedom are watchful for opportunity and full of device the friends of freedom must keep sleepless vigil. Hence our wise and patriotic forefathers founded our continuing society, to watch the compass lest the needle vary from the polo star—the immortal Declaration of '76. We intend on the next Fourth of July to assemble at the Wigwam, and, as our predecessors for now almost a century have done, commemorate the day and all it symbolizes. We invite you to come with us, that together we may review the useful history and biographies of a past generation and apply their lessons to the duties of the present.

How necessary these frequent and regular councils are we are admonished by the audacity of the misnamed republican party. In the recent Presidential election, pretending to be loyal to the ballot and to have appealed to it, this party plotted to falsify the returns of the vote. They carried out their plan. As a party they still stand by it unblushingly. There never was such a fraud. There never was such a wicked and murderous blow at free government. Liberty's temple was turned into "a den of thieves" who have stolen the muniments and emoluments of power. The guilty party must feel the scourge of contempt, indignation and law from a freedom-loving people.

See, too, another example in our own State. The Legislature, controlled by republican majorities, has for three successive years refused to comply with a behest of the constitution, which requires a reapportionment of legislative representation. The only motive of this disobedience of law was to retain political control without regard to the rights or will of the majority. It was as disgraceful and dangerous as the vilest money corruption. The friends of democratic principles must then be full of courage and energy—"putting on the old armor." If we remain silent and submissive the enemy will tread beneath insolent feet our entire political heritage. In all the conflicts of the century the Society of Tammany has stood shoulder to shoulder, a faithful comrade, with the democratic masses of the whole Union, and so for the future she will stand. At her coming festival she will dedicate herself anew.

We hope to see you at the council fires next month, when we will from the spirits of the great departed invoke blessings upon our beloved land. Your obedient servants.

AUGUSTUS SCHELL, Grand Sachem.

JOEL O. STEVENS Secretary.

Sachem Henry L. Clinton, Father of Council. Sachems John Kelly, Thomas Dunlap, Smith Ely, Jr.; Nathaniel Jarvis, Jr.; Bernard Reilly, Edward Kearney, Sidney P. Nichols, Henry D. Purroy, Charles H. Haswell, Henry A. Gumbleton, [illegible] Diefendorf, John J. [illegible]orman, Arthur Leary, Treasurer; Wilson Small, Sagamore; John D. Newman, Wiskinkie, Augustus T. Docharty, Scribe of the Council.

Address all communications to Hon. Augustus Schell, Tammany Hall, New York.

IRVING HALL DEMOCRACY.

The Committee of Sixty-five of the Irving Hall democracy met last night at Irving Hall, Mr. John McCool occupying the chair. The sub-committee appointed at a previous meeting reported in favor of an address being made to the democratic electors of the city in sympathy with the movement, and that an enrolment be made every Tuesday and Friday during the month of July. These enrolments are to be made under the direction of the members of the association in each Assembly district. It also provides that a committee of five shall be selected from the various Assembly districts and from the Westchester wards, whose duty it shall be to take charge of the districts during the summer. Among other business transacted was the selection of two delegates from each district to comprise the General Committee of Twelve Hundred. This General Committee will meet some evening next week, the time to be hereafter designated, when the report above mentioned and the address will be submitted for their approval. The meeting then adjourned.

CAPTURE OF A "CROOKED" STILL.

The neighborhood of the old Hecker chapel, at Nos. 56 and 58 Rutgers street, was the scene of unusual excitement yesterday morning caused by the appearance thereabout of Deputy Collector Hawley, Special Revenue Inspector Webster, Deputy Marshal Dubert, in company with a posse of police, and a number of special deputies. For some time past the federal authorities have been watching the premises named, as they were in possession of vague information concerning a still being operated there. A few days ago they obtained satisfactory evidence concerning the place, and at nine o'clock yesterday morning the officials named made a descent on it. An entrance was effected through the front cellar, but nothing here was found to reward the searchers. Voices were heard in the rear basement, however, and the fumes of mash proved the scent to be right. The officers made an effort to force the door dividing the cellars, but the efficient bolting and barricading of the entrance caused a slight delay, during which men who were working at the mash made good their escape. The rear cellar presented the appearance of a well appointed distillery and the precipitate exodus of the workers prevented them from taking anything along. Everything (lunches, coats and vests included) was abandoned. The tub contained about 2,500 gallons of mash. A consignment had recently been made, for only one barrel of liquor was found. The still had a capacity of 250 gallons a day, and when worked to its full defrauded the government out of $150 every twenty-four hours. The still and all the paraphernalia were destroyed.

THE HUNTER TRIAL.

All of the Evidence Against the Accused Submitted.

GRAHAM FURTHER CORROBORATED.

The Prisoner Surprised by the Appearance of a New Witness.

AN ALIBI THE DEFENCE.

CAMDEN, N. J., June 18, 1878.

To-day, the eighth of the great trial, the last witness was examined for the State to prove that Benjamin Hunter murdered J. M. Armstrong, his friend and partner, to obtain $26,000 life insurance as the price of his death. To-day's evidence was important as fully completing the corroboration of the startling confession of Thomas Graham, the accomplice, and substantiating his damning statements as to Hunter's participation in the assassination. Now that the case for the prosecution is complete and all their witnesses have been examined it is perhaps fair to explain, for the benefit of the public, that the testimony in support of Hunter's guilt is overwhelming. Every claim made by the public prosecutor in his opening address has been substantiated, and it is difficult to see how it is possibly for the prisoner's lawyers, accomplished and able as they are, to establish his innocence.

YESTERDAY'S TESTIMONY.

The first three witnesses examined were unimportant, except as confirming minor points in Graham's statement; first, as to the running of the Camden boats, and second, as to the time occupied by Graham and Hunter in going over the route to the scene of the murder.

John McKenna, a worker at Stiles' store, in Second street, with Graham, described Hunter's visit to Graham at the shop, and taking him out to drink, as accounted by Graham in his testimony. He also spoke of another visit to Stiles' by Hunter one day after Graham had gone. He asked, "Where's Jim?" and went away after being told that he was not there. Witness could not remember the date.

HUNTER'S STATEMENT.

Joseph C. Nichols, the Deputy Sheriff of Camden, gave a statement of what Hunter said upon his formal examination when he was brought over from Philadelphia the night of his arrest. Nichols' evidence was interesting, as showing how Hunter contradicted himself and denied things which he afterward admitted, and other matters since proven. He denied all knowledge of Davis; had never seen him; knew nothing of Armstrong's business with him; never told him that Davis had a bank account; never said he would go to Camden; did not go, and never intended going.

"Where did he say he was on that Wednesday evening?"

"He said he was at Mr. Epp's that evening from six o'clock until a quarter before seven; he got home about ten minutes of eight; he also said he had insured Armstrong's life for $26,000—$6,000 in the Manhattan, $10,000 in the Mutual and $10,000 in the Provident; he said at one time that Mr. Armstrong owed him $11,000, and then he changed it to $7,000; he said he had nothing to do with getting the policies, but that he had paid the premiums."

"Was he asked anything about Mr. Armstrong's rupture?"

"He said he knew of the rupture, but that he did not tell him to conceal it from the insurance men; he said he had never sent a letter to Armstrong regarding the insurance."

The letter from Hunter to Armstrong was then produced and admitted in evidence to contradict the defendant's statements. The letter was written on one of Armstrong's blank letterheads.

Fred Getze, who was a ward of Hunter's, who was to have paid him an inheritance of $5,270 four days after the murder, testified that he had never received but $3,000, and that not until six weeks after he came of age and the money was due.

HUNTER SEEN IN CAMDEN.

A surprise awaited the defence when Samuel Mortland was called to the stand. He testified that he was a car driver in Camden, from Market street ferry, and that on the night of January 23 last, between six and seven o'clock, two strangers got on his car at the ferry. Witness then described Hunter and Armstrong accurately, according to the testimony of Graham.

But this witness' evidence was not as strong and as satisfactory as that of Joseph Moore, the last witness on the side of the prosecution. Mr. Moore testified that he lived at No. 318 Bridge avenue, Camden, and was a plasterer. He proceeded:—

"I recollect the evening of January 23 last; I went that evening to Philadelphia; I am in the habit of going on Wednesdays and Sundays; I am paying attention to a young lady in Philadelphia; she resides at No. 1,929 Ridge avenue; I started to go in the seven o'clock boat for Federal street ferry; I then went up to Market street ferry; the boat was just coming in; I saw a man standing first at the outside of the ferry; he was standing crosswise; he had a soft felt hat on and overcoat; his arms were folded, and my attention was attracted to him; he acted as if he was cold, and I wondered why he did not go in where it was warm; I saw him again on the bow of the boat, standing by the chain; I saw a young man go up to him, and they went toward the ladies' cabin."

"THAT IS THE MAN."

"Have you ever seen that tall man since?"

"Yes, sir."

"Is he in this court room to-day?"

"Yes, sir; he sits over there, back of Mr. Scovel (meaning the defendant); I saw him again on the 2d of February at the preliminary hearing in Camden; that is the man."

"From the time you saw these men at the chain until the 2d of February did you say anything about it to any one?"

"Yes, sir; I told my brother-in-law, Reuben W. Smith."

"What boat was this you saw them on?"

"I think it was the ten minutes after seven boat."

"Did you know Mr. Hunter before you saw him that night?" asked Mr. Robeson.

"No, sir."

"Was he the only person you noticed at the ferry?"

"Yes, sir."

"Which side of the boat were you standing on?"

"By the gentlemen's cabin; he seemed to be very much excited when I saw him."

"How many people were on the boat?"

"I could not say; I saw two or three other men, but no more."

"How was he dressed?"

"He had on dark clothes, a dark overcoat and a slouch hat; he seemed as though he had something tied around his neck."

"How long did you stand outside the ferry before you went on the boat?"

"I passed by and went right in."

"How do you know it was not on some other night that you saw this man?"

"I don't go to see the lady only on Wednesday and Sunday nights; I know it was Wednesday night because I spoke about it on the next morning to David Locke when I went to work."

"Are you willing to swear this is the man without any doubt you saw on the ferryboat?" was the final question, which was asked by Mr. Jenkins, pointing toward the prisoner.

"Yes, sir," replied the witness in a decided, emphatic manner, and then he left the stand.

When he first came on the stand Hunter looked this witness in the face with the cold, indifferent manner in which he surveyed all the others. But when Moore pointed to him and said, "That is the man," Hunter's eyes dropped, and he averted his face from that time with an air of carelessness.

THE STATE RESTS.

This was the last witness for the State, and Prosecutor Jenkins rested his case. Dr. Thompson and Mr. Robeson then sought to induce the Court to order the Prosecutor to designate upon which count of the indictment he would press for a conviction. After listening to arguments on both sides Judge Woodhull declined to instruct, and the Court adjourned until two o'clock.

OPENING FOR THE DEFENCE.

There was certainly an attentive audience when Colonel Scovel, with his swallow-tail coat, white tie and boutonnière, rose to open the case for the defence, which he did eloquently and effectively. The address contained more invective than argument, and his points can be briefly summed up. He began by saying that there is no stronger or (sic) more eventful history than this case in criminal jurisprudence, and then proceeded, with many adjectives and much indignation, to declare Benjamin Hunter innocent and the accusation against him as monstrous. He spoke at length in denunciation of Graham, "the self-confessed murderer," and pitched into Sheriff Daubman and "the sweltering venom, sleeping got, of a super-subtle Venetian like the Sheriff of Camden."

The learned counsel's points were these:—

First—The good character of Hunter, to be proved by fifty witnesses.

Second—Hunter's simple denial that he was in Camden on the night of the murder.

Third—That if two men were seen running away, might they have not been Graham and another, not Hunter?

Fourth—That Hunter was not in embarrassed circumstances, but rich, and therefore had no motive to commit the crime.

Fifth—That Armstrong owed Hunter about $700, and that Hunter possessed extreme "kindness of heart."

Sixth—That there were more motives for other persons to kill Armstrong (meaning Davis and Dewarin), who owed Armstrong money.

Seventh—That Graham's character is bad.

Eighth—That Graham had threatened that he would give Hunter away to save himself.

Ninth—That they had witnesses to prove that at the time of the murder he was on his way home in a Tenth street car in Philadelphia.

The first witness for the defence will be examined to-morrow morning. They will probably finish the case in four days. The last witness they will call will be Benjamin Hunter, the prisoner, who will be allowed to testify in his own behalf.

TRIPLE SHEET.

NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 19, 1878.

THE HERALD will be sent to the address of persons going into the country during the summer at the rate of one dollar per month, postage paid.

The probabilities are that the weather in New York and its vicinity to-day will be cool and partly cloudy or fair, possibly with light rains. To-morrow similar conditions are likely to prevail.

WALL STREET YESTERDAY.—The stock market was fairly active and feverish. Gold opened at 100⅝ and advanced to 100¾. Government bonds were strong. States dull and railroads weak. Money on call was easy at 2 a 3 per cent.

A HOWL about rebel claims is in order. The Southern mail contractors are to be paid.

THE EFFECTS of the strike of the Paterson mosquito net weavers will probably be felt later in the summer.

TAMMANY in its Fourth of July invitation recounts all its glorious history with the exception of the Tweed chapters.

A COMMITTEE of the Industrial Party, who ever they are, propose to do something for their country by investigating the city departments.

THE INTERESTING question, Who are entitled to the excise fund, the liquor dealers or the city authorities? has at last come up in the courts.

OREGON'S DEMOCRATIC majority in the Legislature is so large that there will be no occasion for the statesmanlike services of the conscientious Cronin.

THE VALIDITY of the pooling arrangement between the Western Union Telegraph Company and the Atlantic and Pacific line has been affirmed in the courts.

THE YACHT CLUBS were out in force yesterday at different points, but, as a rule, the events were disappointing owing to the weather and other unfavorable conditions of wind and water.

MR. PITTMAN, who was the official phonographer at the great conspiracy trial, in an interview elsewhere printed gives his views in regard to the assassination of Mr. Lincoln. He agrees with Mr. Ford that Mrs. Surratt was innocent.

THE TRIAL of Hunter for the murder of Armstrong continues to be the chief sensation of Camden, N. J., and of Philadelphia. All of the evidence against him has been put in, and it is not of a character to encourage his friends or counsel. They will endeavor to prove an alibi.

GENERAL MARTINEZ-CAMPOS, the new Governor General of Cuba, has issued a sensible and conciliatory proclamation which, if lived up to, ought to go far toward securing peace and tranquillity in the island. He promises oblivion for political offences, an increased popular representation and a rigid enforcement of the law, without distinction of persons or parties.

THE MAINE DEMOCRATS held their State Convention yesterday and nominated as their candidate for Governor Dr. Garcelon, whose democracy dates back only to the time of Andrew Johnson. In endeavoring to catch the greenback vote they have succeeded in offending the hard money men without satisfying the party they strove to propitiate. This is a bad year to trim.

MANY of the leading colleges give an account of their stewardship for the year in other columns. The city medical colleges appear to be in a very good condition financially as well as in an educational point of view. At Princeton the attendance of visitors is unusually large and brilliant. The Naval Academy exercises were varied yesterday by a very successful regatta.

IN THE OPINION of General Crook and other officers high in command an Indian war upon a very large scale this summer is almost certain. The Bannocks, General Crook says, have been driven to war by the government, and are compelled to fight for their lives. They occupy an exceedingly favorable country for military operations. Supplies are abundant, and the opportunities for ambuscade almost innumerable.

THE WEATHER.—A marked change has taken place in the meteorological conditions of the United States during the last twenty-four hours, particularly in the central districts. The Northern depression is now moving into the Atlantic Ocean off Nova Scotia, attended by light rains. There has been a general rise of pressure within the area of low barometer that is moving from the Southwest. Indeed, it seems to have been totally disorganized during its passage through the central districts. The high pressure that on yesterday was central over the lake region has moved southeastward and extends over all the territory north of Tennessee and east of the Missouri River to the Middle Atlantic States. Rains have fallen in the Middle Atlantic and New England States. Fair and clear weather prevails in the lake region, Northern New England and the Northwest; elsewhere it is generally cloudy. The winds are from light to fresh in all the districts except on the lakes, where they are from light to brisk. Temperatures have risen except in the Middle Atlantic and New England States, where there has been a decided fall. The weather in New York and its vicinity to-day will be cool and partly cloudy or fair, possibly with light rains. To-morrow similar conditions are likely to prevail.

Prolongation of the Session.

Congress, instead of adjourning yesterday at four P. M., as had been agreed on, passed a resolution postponing the adjournment until six o'clock this evening. It would have been better to take still another day than again to run the sitting far into the night. Excessively late hours have a bad effect on the temper, manners and morals of members, especially amid the hurry, bustle and pressure of the last stages of a session. Fatigue and exhaustion are apt to excite nervous irritability even among sedate members, and those who are addicted to strong potations become easily excited and sometimes disorderly and abusive, which leads to disgraceful scenes. Two consecutive all-night sessions would have been so great a trial of nerves and temper that it was discreet to avoid it, especially after the exhibition which some members of the House made of themselves on Monday night. It is not consistent with the honor of Congress to have such scenes repeated.

There is no good reason why sessions carried far into the night should be so disorderly as they often are in the American Congress. The English House of Commons habitually protracts its sessions far into the night without such humiliating spectacles as are presented in night sessions at Washington. People who are in the regular practice of night work, like the parliamentary reporters and leader writers of the London Times, for example, maintain the same perfect command of their temper and faculties as workers by daylight. Parliament is never disorderly, although it transacts the greater part of its business in the night time. It does not assemble until four o'clock in the afternoon, and when an important debate is in progress the greatest speeches are frequently made after midnight. But our Congressmen, who usually devote the day to business and the evening to recreation, find their habits so broken by all-night sessions that they are put into a mood unfavorable to the quiet transaction of business.

There is no excuse for crowding so much important legislation into the two or three closing days. It might reasonably be supposed that, when eight months have passed since the assembling of Congress, such matter of course legislation as the ordinary appropriation bills might be disposed of long in advance of the adjournment. There is never anything in the action of Parliament on the annual budget resembling the dilatory course of Congress on the regular appropriation bills. To be sure, there is a great difference in the methods of the two bodies. The English budget is prepared by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, who introduces and pushes it to a vote at a reasonably early period of the session, whereas in our government Congress is left to do all this work itself, without guidance by the executive administration. There is consequently a great deal of dilatory pottering in the committees and too much willingness on the part of scheming members to have the appropriation bills crowded to the heel of the session. The indispensable necessity of passing them previous to the adjournment and the impatience of members to get away afford opportunities for engrafting into these bills all sorts of jobs in the guise of amendments. The most objectionable and mischievous legislation is often thus foisted into appropriation bills during the confusion and hurly-burly of the closing hours. There is no part of a session when Congress is so anxiously watched, and when its proceedings are so little under the control of public opinion. Sometimes the only chance of saving a good measure is by tacking it to an appropriation bill; but it more commonly happens that by this method schemes are carried through which would have no chance if decided on their merits.

The only thing which can be alleged as a justification or even as a reasonable excuse for this mischievous procrastination is the enormous mass of private bills which consume the time of Congress. The excellent bill which was introduced by Mr. Potter yesterday and passed the House by a large majority will take away this excuse if the bill should become a law. Mr. Potter's bill provides that no private claim of any description shall hereafter be acted upon by Congress until it shall have first been adjudicated by the Court of Claims. It is said that private bills consume half the time of every session. If this is even approximatively true it will be a great relief to have all this class of business remitted to the Court of Claims, enabling Congress to dispose in four months of the same amount of really public matters as now requires eight months. The merits of this bill are so obvious that it ought to pass the Senate without debate.

Several things were settled yesterday by the action of the House. At the present stage of proceedings no bill which has passed the Senate is taken up by the House without a two-thirds majority. By the operation of this rule the Senate bill appropriating five and a half millions to pay the fisheries award was defeated; but the appropriation has been engrafted by the Senate as an amendment upon the Sundry Civil bill, and is apparently out of danger. By the operation of the same rule the Senate bill authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to receive greenbacks in payment of the four per cent bonds and for the payment of customs duties after the 1st of October has been defeated, and this defeat is final. But it is of little consequence. It makes no real difference whether the government begins to take its own notes for customs on the 1st of October or the 1st of January, and greenbacks are so nearly at par that the sale of the four per cent bonds would not be much facilitated by permitting the bonds to be paid for in legal tender notes. Silver is receivable for the bonds, and that fact may, perhaps, aid Mr. Sherman in getting the silver he has been coining into circulation. The Brazilian steamship subsidy is lost, which is a subject for congratulation; but there has been lost with it the new classification of mail matter, which would have been a benefit. It would have been a good thing to kill the objectionable subsidy even at a greater cost.

The Senate has made such a swarm of miscellaneous amendments to the Sundry Civil bill as raises the prospect of an obstinate struggle between the two houses and makes it doubtful whether an adjournment will be possible before Thursday. We are confident that the Senate will not yield the Halifax award amendment, but expect to see it retreat from quite a number of the others.

A Warning.

The accident on the New York Elevated Railroad yesterday should be a warning to passengers as well as to the managers of the roads. The train was crowded, and the conductor notified the people still remaining at the depot that he could take no more, closed the iron gate of the car platform and signalled the engineer to move on. A man, despite the notice, jumped on to the car, outside the gate. The conductor endeavored to help him over, but after proceeding a few feet the man slipped and fell to the sidewalk. People ought to know that an elevated railroad car is not like a street car, that they cannot take risks on the one that they may take on the other, and that an accident on an elevated road is almost certain to have a fatal result. The railroad officials ought not to trust to the prudence of their passengers, but should adopt means to render just such accidents as that of yesterday impossible. If all the people who ride on elevated railroads were cautious and careful the companies might probably leave the lives of the passengers to chance without any great danger. But hundreds are reckless and careless, and it is against acts of imprudence and foolish bravado that the railroad authorities are called upon to provide. There ought to be no overcrowding in an elevated railroad car; no passenger ought to be allowed to ride on the platform; and some plan ought to be adopted at the depots to prevent an indiscriminate crowding and scrambling to get aboard. The companies are best able to decide how this can be accomplished, but it is necessary that the matter should be promptly considered unless we are to have a constant repetition of such accidents as that of yesterday. As we have repeatedly said, rapid transit must win the confidence of the people in its safety if it is to be a perfect success, and the companies ought, in their own interests, as well as for the public protection, to adopt from the outset such precautions as will render accidents almost impossible and prevent the employés of the roads from falling into careless habits.

Surrendering Salisbury.

Nearly every point of importance announced as an element of British policy in the famous Salisbury circular of April 1, 1878, is abandoned by the British government in its recent agreement made with Russia through Count Schouvaloff, the points of which agreement were first made public in the HERALD of May 30, and the text of which has just been given by the London Globe. In the Salisbury circular England laid down as a cardinal principle of the case and as the text of the law that no Power could repudiate any part of its obligations save by consent of all the other nations with whom it entered into such obligations. England now violates that principle by agreeing privately with Russia upon a wholesale negative of the Treaty of Paris, and two Powers have no more right to make such an agreement than one to act in that way without concert. Salisbury held as absolutely inadmissible the proposed treatment of Bulgaria, which is now accepted with variations that do not radically change the effect of the San Stefano stipulations. Bessarabia is given up, Batoum is given up, England will raise the money for an indemnity, and the passage of the Dardanelles is left just as the San Stefano Treaty left it. All these points that England agrees to are points she denounced in detail; and now the government is indignant at the publication of its surrender, because it did not care to let the people know just yet how much it had yielded to Russia, and also, perhaps, because to make this agreement in the circumstances was a kind of contempt of the Congress.

Justice to Robeson.

The Congressional committee charged with the investigation of Mr. Robeson's management of the Navy Department has become satisfied that it was marked by reckless extravagance and illegal and fraudulent transactions. But a political investigation is seldom, if ever, satisfactory, and the committee displays judgment and fairness in recommending the House of Representatives to transmit the evidence to the Attorney General through the President, accompanied by a request that suits be commenced against the ex-Secretary and certain of his subordinates in order that they may be tried in accordance with the law. This disposes of the charge of partisan malignity made against the committee and affords Mr. Robeson and his implicated associates the opportunity to meet the charges and establish their innocence in a fair trial conducted under legal rules before an impartial tribunal. The administration can have no desire to deprive Mr. Robeson of this privilege, for while it is not in any way responsible for his official actions it will no doubt be well pleased to aid any republican Cabinet officer to meet and disprove charges of maladministration and corruption. Mr. Robeson will of course eagerly seize this opportunity to vindicate his character, and on General Grant's account as well as his own will invite a speedy prosecution.

A Good Law.

After the House bill to legalize the collection of head moneys under the Emigrant laws in force prior to the decision of the Supreme Court pronouncing them unconstitutional had passed the Senate a motion to reconsider was entered by Mr. Conkling, which, if persisted in, would have defeated the bill for this session. Yesterday Mr. Conkling withdrew his motion, and the bill having passed both houses goes to the President for his approval, which it will no doubt receive. Some of the steamship lines which paid the head money for a number of years have been disposed to attempt the recovery of the amounts, and the object of the law just passed is to put a stop to such unjust litigation. The companies in no instance suffered the head money to come out of their own pockets. Indeed, the imposition of the tax, so far from being a burden upon them, afforded them an excuse for adding to their profits. The law is a very desirable and just one, and Mr. Conkling's motion was probably made through misapprehension, as, indeed, its prompt withdrawal implies.

Preserving the Public Squares.

Governor Robinson fortunately selected from the mass of bills left in his hands by the Legislature the two securing Washington square and Tompkins square to the people of New York, affixed his signature to them, and they are now laws. By this action the Governor signified his recognition of the importance of preserving the few breathing places we have in the city. The Aldermen yesterday adopted a resolution requesting the Park Department to report such plan or plans as they may have under consideration for the restoration of Tompkins square. It is to be hoped that the work may not be delayed, and that Washington square, being no longer in danger of confiscation for armory purposes, may also receive its share of attention and care from the Park Department. Both of these squares are in crowded neighborhoods and many hundreds of people can enjoy themselves there every evening who cannot visit the Central Park. They should be made attractive with shade, seats and flowers. A large amount of money is expended annually on the care and embellishment of the parks, and there is no reason why Washington square and Tompkins square should not receive their fair proportion. It is to be hoped that the old Forty-second Street Reservoir will before long disappear and yield up its site to the extension of Reservoir Park. When that improvement is carried out we shall doubtless see a very ornamental and attractive pleasure ground, rich in fountains and flowers, occupying the place of the present sombre pile of stone with its picturesque fringe.

The Halifax Award.

It is to be hoped, for the sake of the national honor, that the appropriation for paying the award of the Fisheries Commission will be passed in some form previous to the adjournment. The time stipulated for the payment will have passed before Congress meets again, and if the appropriation should be defeated the government will be in the humiliating position of a merchant who permits his acceptances to go to protest. Five and a half million dollars are a bagatelle in comparison with the character of the government for honor and good faith.

This appropriation failed in the House, not because a majority was not ready to vote for it, but because its passage was obstructed by a parliamentary rule. It required a vote of two-thirds to take it up and put it on its passage, and although a majority favored it it was not the requisite two-thirds majority. We are confident, however, that this appropriation cannot be defeated. Senator Eaton, of the Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs, offered it yesterday as an amendment to the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill, and the amendment was adopted without opposition. There is now only needed a little firmness on the part of the Senate to foil any parliamentary legerdemain in the House. In the usual course of things this appropriation is already safe, because it requires only a simple majority of the House to concur in an amendment made by the Senate to one of its own bills, and it is certain that a handsome majority of the House favors the appropriation. But if some trick or device should be hit upon for depriving the majority of its proper influence the Senate can, nevertheless, force compliance by refusing to pass the Sundry Appropriation bill without this amendment. We may therefore expect, with reasonable certainty, that provision will be made for paying the Halifax award.

The leaders of the opposition to it are the two most arrant and unscrupulous demagogues in the House—General Butler and Sunset Cox, two worthies who never miss an occasion for courting popularity by appeals to vulgar prejudice. The bill which passed the Senate wisely abstained from giving an absolute direction to the President to pay the award. It simply puts at his disposal the means for paying it and leaves him to exercise his own discretion. The understanding is that he will make proper representations to the British government, and if that government shall assert its belief in the justice of the award it will be paid without objection or cavil.

A Painful Tale.

The philanthropic Bergh was in court yesterday watching over the progress of the trial of James Fraser, the groom, who stands charged by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals with having abbreviated, "with force and arms," a polo pony's tail. The opening of the prosecution was not a happy one. The witness who laid the information and saw Fraser perform the operation testified that the pony did not display any evidences of suffering, and admitted that he had himself shortly before been cut off by Fraser from his list of stable assistants. A veterinary surgeon who took the stand to describe the sufferings of the horse under the process of docking had his tale very much mutilated by the defendant's counsel, who induced him to admit that he had himself "docked" a number of horses in past years, but did not then know or make the discovery that it gave the animals pain. This witness also admitted that he had examined the pony the day following the docking; that the operation had been skilfully performed, and that the pony was in excellent health and enjoying a good appetite. An exhibit was made in court, but as the experts seemed at a loss to decide whether it was the end of a pony's tail, a cow's tail or a piece of sugar cane it is not likely to become a recognized part of the proceedings. The case was not concluded, and, as the periodicals say, the tale is to be continued. Mr. Bergh seemed well satisfied with its progress, and mysteriously hinted at more crushing testimony yet to come. If we could suspect the great philanthropist of being a wag we should be inclined to believe that this case is only the prelude to a prosecution of the whole Dock Department, about which so many painful tales are told.

Train Wreckers.

One of the most notable discoveries recently made in this neighborhood is that of three train wreckers, the senior of whom is eleven years old. It was, perhaps, because the tiny fingers of these little wretches were too feeble to adjust with sufficient firmness the obstruction they placed on the New York Elevated Railroad that the public has been spared the recital of so remarkable a calamity as the precipitation of a train from mid air into the crowded street. These small fiends, it may well be believed, could not have conceived the tragic nature of the accident they tried to cause. They assigned as their motive a desire to see the train "jump." It would not be over wise to accept that juvenile account until a thorough examination has proved that these Arabs were not the simple tools of older scoundrels. But in any event it will be a mistake if these Arabs are found in Greenwich street for ten years to come. If houses of refuge and juvenile reformatories do but little good to the children put in them they could in a case of this sort at least do the public the service of keeping out of the way for the utmost hour the law allows three dangerous little imps. But the fortunate escape must call the attention of the public and of the managers of elevated roads to the impropriety of permitting access to the roadway of persons not engaged in the company's service. If any one of these three little wretches had been overtaken by a train and killed there would have been a great outcry on this point, and the outcry may as properly be made in the interest of public safety. It should be a crime for any person not employed by the companies to be found on the tracks of the elevated roads.

The Canine Harvest.

At this season we gather in our crop of miscellaneous dogs, and with one whirl the dilapidated mongrel with his teeth worn down with age, the small pup who is just venturing his first awful experiences in city life, and even the stray poodle separated by a hard destiny from his fond friends, all are remorselessly jerked to the judgment of a canine futurity. Just as the fair young ladies all over the land are coming up for examinations and diplomas in fashionable institutes and seminaries and high schools, just as the boys everywhere are holding out their hands for rolls of printed sheepskin, the dogs also have their melancholy "commencement" of experiences in the Pound—a commencement which, like the others, is in fact the end. But there is one sweet consolation in their sad fate. They have in their miseries the sympathy and sorrow of Mr. Bergh, who, if he cannot rescue them altogether, at least secures immunity from the pangs of an unnecessarily painful death. But should the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals be content with services of that nature—should it fold its hands and submit to these deaths? We know that it has vainly tried to save them by opposition to the slaughtering system. Perhaps it failed because it did not proceed wisely. Could it not organize a system of gradual removal of the dogs to safer place? Why not colonize some remote district with the superfluous dogs of the metropolis? Some societies send the superfluous boys out West and make it profitable? Could not this society do the same for its now sorely hunted protégés?

PERSONAL INTELLIGENCE.

Mr. Hjalmar H. Boyesen is at the Coleman House.

Baron von Plessen, of Germany, is at the St. Denis Hotel.

Gortschakoff looks like the brightest kind of a grandmother.

Count Andrassy, of Austria, has beef on his bones and three stars on his collar.

Flood, the head of the Big Bonanza crowd, wears spectacles. Short-sighted men are frequently long-headed.

The widow of the late Senator Morton is in ill health. Her son Oliver will enter Yale College this summer.

Mr. Victor A. W. Drummond, Secretary of the British Legation at Washington, is at the Hotel Brunswick.

Minister Noyes called at the Executive Mansion yesterday morning and was for a short time in consultation with the President.

The Marquis of Salisbury would, at a distance, appear to be a very common theorist, with a tendency rather to science; and yet, judging from the shape of his nose, we should say that when he was a young man he rode to hounds.

We every day go through columns of rubbish by popular humorists, and it is only here and there that a brilliant thing is found. If you think that the good things from the humorists quoted in the HERALD have no foolish things in the same column to pad them you are mistaking the fact.

Mr. George A. Halsey, of Newark, who was recently appointed a United States Commissioner to Paris, has concluded not to go on account of his father's ill health. President Hayes has appointed Mr. Beach Vanderpool, of the same city, and he will sail to-day, accompanied by his wife.

"Flora B. W."—As you have only an hour or so, and at that hour of the day your husband's guests may be slightly hungry, suppose you take a clear soup, plenty of stock; a lobster in any shape, but at least with lettuce; then the merest hint of lamb, with sauce of the currant; and after that the fruit of the season and coffee.

In the first place old Mr. Washington never left his hatchets around loose, and so young George could not have found one. If there were no hatchets to find the very fact proves the absence of falsehood. And in the second place no one can prove that there were any cherry trees on the old man's land. And in the third place such a thing as a lie was not known in those days.

London World:—"Looking at the bad driving on some of the coaches which now daily leave Piccadilly I remember a story which used to be told of the Dowager Lady Shelley, who died some few years ago. She was travelling by the mail, with her footman outside, when the coach was upset, turning completely over. The footman, springing to his feet unhurt, heard his mistress' voice saying, 'John, pull me out; the black legs are mine!'"

THE BATTLE OF MONMOUTH.

At a special meeting of the New York Historical Society last evening Mr. George H. Moore read a paper entitled "The Battle of Monmouth and General Lee's Subsequent Career." In this document the conduct of Major General Charles Lee at the battle of Monmouth was severely criticised, and the subsequent actions of Congress in approving the finding of the court martial sentencing him to suspension from the army, and later in dismissing him from the service, were claimed to have been wholly justifiable. Lee was described as an impetuous, haughty man, who had designed to supplant the Commander-in-Chief of the Revolutionary forces.

[BY CABLE TO THE HERALD.]

LONDON, June 18, 1878.

The races at Ascot Heath began to-day, with a programme that included the three most notable events of the meeting. These were the race for the Gold Vase, the Prince of Wales Stakes and the Ascot Stakes.

For the Gold Vase, which is given by Her Majesty, there were only two contestants, Verneuil and Lady Golightly, the latter being the favorite. They were both four-year-olds. Verneuil was the winner. The following is a

SUMMARY.

THE GOLD VASE, given by Her Majesty, added to a sweepstakes of 20 sovs. each, for three-year-olds and upward, with non-winning allowances and winning penalties. Two miles.

Count F. de Lagrange's ch. c. Verneuil, by Mortemers' dam Regalia, 4 years old..... 1
Lord Falmouth's b. f. Lady Golightly, by King Tom, dam Lady Coventry, 4 years old..... 2

THE WINNER.

Verneuil was bred by Count de Lagrange at his establishment in France. He brought out the filly when two years old, and ran her five times in England. Her first appearance was at Goodwood in the Prince of Wales Stakes of £1,400, six furlongs. She did not get a place, four others being in front of her. Verneuil next appeared at Doncaster in the Glasgow Stakes of £400, four furlongs and 152 yards. This she won by three lengths, beating Zucchero, Cannon Ball and The Bellman. Verneuil next ran at the same meeting for the Wentworth Stakes of £800, six furlongs, and was second to Lady Golightly, Kilmarnock third. The next appearance of Verneuil was at the Newmarket First October meeting, when she won the Buchanan Stakes of £1,550, five furlongs, 140 yards, beating Silvio, Hyndland and Morgiana; and she closed her two-year-old campaign by winning second to Jongleur for the Criterion of £940, six furlongs, beating six others. Verneuil was kept in active service when a three-year-old. She participated in no less than fourteen races, winning five of them. Her first race was at Paris for the Poule d'Essai of £1,735, one mile, which was won by Fontainebleau, Bataille second, Verneuil third. Her next appearance was for the French Derby, a mile and a half, when she ran second to Jongleur. Verneuil next ran for and won the Prix du Cedre, £463, one mile and three furlongs. This victory was followed by another at Paris, which was the Prix Seymour, of about £435, one mile and a half. But she was beaten three days afterward for the Grand Prix de Paris of £5,747, a mile and seven furlongs, by St. Christophe, Jongleur and Siracusa. The next appearance of Verneuil was in England, where she walked over for the Drawing Room Stakes, a mile and a quarter, at Goodwood. She returned to France and was third in the Grand St. Leger of France, run at Caen, August 6, Strachino and Noumea being in front of her. At Deauville, August 12, she won the Prix Special, a mile and three furlongs; but the next week Vimaigrette beat her in the Grand Prix de Deauville, she having five behind her at the finish. On Sunday, September 16, Jongleur beat her at Paris for the Prix Royal Oak, one mile and seven furlongs; and on the following Sunday, at Paris, she was beaten by Valerien for the Prix de Villebon, one mile and a half. Going over to England, she appeared at the Newmarket Second October, and in the Select Stakes, a mile and seventeen yards, she was third to Jongleur and Placida. Verneuil next ran in the Cambridge Stakes at the Newmarket Houghton, one mile and 240 yards. She was sixth at the finish, the race being won by Jongleur. Verneuil closed the year by winning at the same meeting the Jockey Club Cup of £530, two miles, two furlongs and twenty-eight yards. Verneuil has started twice before the present race this year, the first time at the Newmarket Craven meeting April 24, in the Claret Stakes, when she ran second to Thunderstone, and at the Epsom spring meeting in the City and Suburban, in both of which races she was beaten.

THE PRINCE OF WALES STAKES.

brought out a field of seven starters, including Bonnie Scotland, who was the favorite in the betting at 7 to 4; Sefton, who ruled 6 to 2; Childeric, against whom 10 to 1 was given, and Glengarry, who started at the odds of 20 to 1. Glengarry, who was considered a comparative outsider, won the race, with Childeric second, Sefton and Bonnie Scotland running a dead heat for third place. The following is a

SUMMARY.

The Prince of Wales Stakes, of 50 sovs. each, half forfeit, with 1,000 sovs. added, for three-year-olds, colts to carry 122 lbs., fillies 117 lbs.; winning penalties; the owner of the second horse to receive 300 sovs. out of the stakes; the owner of the third horse 200 sovs. out of the stakes; new course, about one mile five furlongs (98 subscribers).

Mr. J. H. Houldsworth's ch. c. Glengarry, by Scottish Chief, dam Crocus, 122 lbs..... 1
Lord Falmouth's b. c. Childeric, by Scottish Chief, dam Gertrude, 122 lbs.....X..... 2
Mr. W. S. Crawford's ch. c. Sefton, by Speculum, out of Liverpool's dam, 122 lbs..... *
Mr. R. Peck's ch. c. Bonnie Scotland, by Thormanby, dam Blue Bell, 117 lbs..... *

*Dead heat.

THE WINNER.

Glengary has run twice before this year, the first time for the Craven Stakes at the Newmarket Craven Meeting, April 25, in which he landed third, Sefton and Thurio being in front of him at the finish. Glengarry's second appearance was in the Two Thousand Guineas, when he landed fifth, Pilgrimage, Insulaire, Sefton and Childeric being in front of him. His beating Childeric and Sefton to-day was a great surprise to those who were laying the odds against him.

THE ASCOT STAKES.

There were seventeen starters for the Ascot Stakes, out of a subscription list of forty-four, and of these Mr. Naylor's Jester was most fancied by the betting fraternity, the odds against him being 4 to 1, while against Chesterton, who won the race, 100 to 7 was given. Advance came in second, and Finis third, they being quoted in the betting lists at 7 to 1 and 6 to 1 respectively. Jester was not placed. The following is a

SUMMARY.

The Ascot Stakes of 20 sovs. each, 15 forfeit and only 5 if declared out, with 500 sovs. added for the winner and 100 sovs. for the second; the third to receive 50 sovs. out of the stakes; winning penalties; once round, starting at the distance post, about two miles.

Mr. J. Core's b. c. Chesterton, 4 years, by Montagnard, dam Palmetto..... 1
Lord Lonsdale's b. g. Advance, 5 years, by Speculum, dam Progress..... 2
Mr. F. Lefevre's b. h. Finis, 6 years, by Marsyas, dam At Last..... 3
Mr. R. C. Naylor's ch. h. Jester, 5 years, by Merrymaker, dam's pedigree unknown..... 0

THE WINNER.

Chesterton, as a two-year-old, started but once, and this was at the Newmarket July meeting, for the Maiden Plate, about half a mile. There were six in front of him and four behind. As a three-year-old, however, he had plenty of work, being engaged in no less than ten races, six of which he won. His first appearance last year was at Huntington, July 24, when he ran second to Ambergris for the Kimbolton Welter Handicap, when he was beaten only a neck, and the same day at the same place he won Her Majesty's Plate of 200 guineas, two miles, and the next day he won the Huntingdonshire stakes (handicap) of £305, one mile and six furlongs. At Egham, August 14, Chesterton won Her Majesty's Plate of 200 guineas, about two miles and 240 yards, and the next day at the same place he won the Surrey and Middlesex Stakes (handicap) of £305, one mile and a quarter. At York, August 23, he won Her Majesty's Plate of 200 guineas, two miles, and at Doncaster, September 12, he walked over for Her Majesty's Plate of 200 guineas, two miles and five furlongs. Two days afterward, at the same place, Hampton beat Chesterton for the Doncaster Cup, two miles and five furlongs. The next appearance of Chesterton was in the Cesarewitch Stakes, at the Newmarket second October meeting, when there were twelve in front of him at the finish and the same number in his rear. Chesterton closed the year at Shrewsbury by running sixth for the Shrewsbury Cup, which was won by Pageant. He has appeared but once before his race to-day this year, and this was in the Newmarket Handicap, at the Craven meeting, which was won by Thurio, Chesterton landing sixth.

GOSSIP ABOUT THE CONGRESS.

Bismarck Expounds His Plan for Settling the Trouble.

THE ANGLO-RUSSIAN UNDERSTANDING.

Insolence of Turkish Officers Promptly Met.

SHOE-WAE-CAE-MET-TE IN ENGLAND

A German Poet's Library To Be Sent to America.

[BY CABLE TO THE HERALD.]

LONDON, June 19, 1878.

The Times' despatch from Berlin says Prince Bismarck in Monday's sitting sketched a general plan for the arrangement of the pending questions and opened the debate on Bulgaria. An animated discussion followed. As no result was reached Prince Bismarck proposed an adjournment to allow the representatives of the States immediately concerned to meet privately.

MANY PLANS DISARRANGED.

It may be assumed that even more recourse will be had to private conferences between the representatives for the arrangement of differences than was at first supposed. The agreement between England and Russia has disturbed certain other arrangements, and the present relations of some of the Powers are such that the lack of a modus operandi for smoothing differences would almost certainly lead to dangerous consequences. The conditional admission of Greece to the Congress is certain.

AUSTRIA'S CHAGRIN.

The Daily Telegraph's Vienna correspondent says England and Austria had concluded an agreement promising to support each other at the Congress. The publication of the Anglo-Russian agreement consequently astonished the Austrian government. Count Andrassy has apparently been since reassured, as it is now asserted that he and Lord Beaconsfield hold identical views.

VERY CONTRADICTORY STATEMENTS.

The contradictory nature of yesterday's telegrams from Berlin indicates that the delegates and officials participating in the Congress are closely observing the promise of secrecy. Some correspondents assert that Lord Salisbury proposed the admission of Greece to the Congress, and supported his proposal in a speech which occupied the entire sitting on Monday. Other correspondents declare that the admission of Greece was not discussed at all, but was postponed until Wednesday.

ANDRASSY'S SPEECH.

It is stated that Count Andrassy made an earnest speech, urging the division of European Turkey into districts on the basis of nationalities, thus rendering reform and regeneration possible without severing their connection with the Porte.

GENERALLY FAVORABLE.

The Times' Vienna despatch says the impression that Monday's sitting of the Congress had taken an unfavorable turn is decidedly contradicted.

GREECE WILL PROBABLY BE ADMITTED.

The Berlin correspondent of the Times says that the representatives of England moved for the admission of Greece and the representatives of France recommended that the Greek delegates be admitted to enter into direct relations with the Congress, but that the debate was adjourned to be continued at the next sitting, probably on Wednesday, and that it is probable that Greece will ultimately be admitted in a purely consultative position or to a limited number of sittings devoted to Greek interests.

THE BESSARABIAN QUESTION.

Whatever may be the vote of a majority of the States it is not believed that the Congress will undertake to compel, by force, the exchange of Bessarabia for the Dobrudja or sanction Russia's coercing Roumania if the latter, after an expression of opinion by the Congress, continues to refuse to make the exchange.

WHAT SHALL BE BULGARIA?

England will insist upon a rigorous limitation of the principality of Bulgaria to the territory north of the Balkans. It is not certain that Russia will ever succeed in getting Sofia included.

ROUMELIA'S LIMITS.

It is fully understood that Roumelia shall only have a sea border on the Euxine; that Turkey shall retain over that province her suzerainty, and that she shall have the nomination, with the consent of the Powers, of a Christian Governor of the province; that the Russian element will neither figure in the administration nor the government, and that in all the frontiers of Roumelia on the north, east and west, as well as on the seaboard of the Euxine, Turkey shall be able to strengthen the boundaries of the province and protect herself by garrisoning all the fortified positions on her new borders.

SAVING THE PIECES.

This is how will be neutralized the destruction of the Ottoman Empire, which was the ultimate aim of the San Stefano treaty. These are the points which England deems so essential to the safe guarding of her interests as not to allow of her making any concession thereon whatever, without playing false to her duties and sacrificing the rights of the nation.

THE INSURRECTION IN ROUMELIA.

A telegram to the Daily News from Vienna states that General Todleben refuses to detach more troops against the Rhodope insurgents, in consequence of the large reinforcements of Turks which have arrived at Constantinople.

PERSIA WANTS GUARANTEES.

The Persian Minister to England is at Berlin, not to claim admission to the Congress, but to solicit its protection of Persian interests.

HE WILL REMAIN.

The Post's Berlin correspondent states that Lord Beaconsfield has resolved to remain until the close of the Congress.

TOO ILL TO ATTEND.

Prince Gortschakoff was unable to attend Prince Bismarck's dinner on Monday night.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN.

The English and Austrian plenipotentiaries had a conference with Count Schouvaloff in Berlin yesterday, to which much significance is attached. It is believed the Bulgarian question was discussed.

IS THIS AUSTRIA'S GAME?

The Bohemia, of Vienna, intimates that Austria will demand Klek, Sultorina and other districts bordering on Dalmatia, and that the assent of the Congress is certain.

ALBANIA LOVES NOT MONTENEGRO.

The Albanians have sent a protest to Berlin against annexation of their territory to Montenegro. They are resolved to forcibly resist if the protest is disregarded.

IN BEHALF OF GREECE.

It is now authoritatively stated that Great Britain, at Monday's sitting of the Congress, proposed the admission of Greece for consultation on all subjects concerning the Christians.

WHY THE TROOPS MOVED.

It appears that within the last few days there has been imminent danger of a conflict between the Russians and Turks. Baker Pacha or Fuad Pacha having on Saturday given the Russians a few hours' notice to remove an observatory overlooking the Turkish lines. The Porte, on being informed of the affair, ordered the military authorities to maintain peace. The danger is now averted. The movement of the Russians to resist the apprehended attack gave rise to the unfounded report that the Russian headquarters were about to remove from San Stefano.

REGAINING HIS COURAGE.

Despatches from Constantinople show that the Sultan has in a great measure recovered from his alarm regarding conspiracies.

WHO WILL BITE?

Salvet Pacha, with the object of developing the resources of the Empire, is drawing up a document for publication encouraging joint stock companies to solicit concessions from the government for the construction of railways, ports, canals, works of irrigation and manufacturing establishments.

THE MONTENEGRIN TROUBLE.

A telegram from Scutari says:—"The conflict between the Turks and Montenegrins, recently reported, was a simple riot among the Turkish and Montenegrin inhabitants of Kraina."

RUSSIA ANNULLING COAL CONTRACTS.

When the Black Sea navigation was reopened the Russians gave large orders for coal deliverable at Odessa and Galatz. They are now endeavoring to annul many of these contracts. This is interpreted as a peaceful indication.

THE SHOEWAECAEMETTES ABROAD.

The Shoewaecaemette four, of Monroe, Mich., which came over on the steamer Alsatia, to compete in the Henley regatta, landed at Southampton yesterday. The London and Southwestern Railway Company placed a saloon carriage at the service of the crew, and will carry their boats to London free of expense.

EMPEROR WILLIAM'S INFIRMITIES.

The physicians in attendance on Emperor William at Berlin publish a formal declaration that his progress has been satisfactory almost beyond expectation, but the patient, besides transitory pain, suffers much from helplessness, being unable to use his arms. Complete recovery can only be effected in a long time, after, possibly, many obstacles and much pain.

HERR FREILIGRATH'S LIBRARY.

A Berlin despatch to the Times says an American gentleman has bought the library collected by the late German poet Freiligrath, which is famous for its old English books. It will soon be sent to America.

The weather yesterday was unsettled and cold.

THE GREAT ANTILLES.

MARTINEZ-CAMPOS ISSUES A PEACE PROCLAMATION—AFFAIRS IN ST. DOMINGO.

HAVANA, June 18, 1878.

General Martinez-Campos on taking possession of the government of the Island issued a proclamation to the inhabitants saying:—

With the co-operation of the patriotism and good sense of the inhabitants, the difficult task of reconstructing the country will be less arduous. The policy of the government will be generous forgetfulness of everything tending to divide those who are brothers and equal application of the law without distinction of persons. New laws will call to public duties a great part of those who heretofore had no representation in public life, but impatient demands are inexcusable. The people may rest assured the government will fulfil all the promises made by the late and the present Captain General.

ST. DOMINGO AT PEACE.

The latest advices from St. Domingo report that General Gonzales has been re-elected President. All parties have been reconciled and the country is flourishing in every respect.

PROSPECTIVE TELEGRAPHIC PROGRESS.

The official journal publishes the announcement that important concessions have been granted J. P. O'Sullivan for establishing telegraphic intercourse by cable between St. Domingo and other countries for a term of fifty years; also for building a railway from Samana to Santiago.

REVOLUTIONARY MEMORIES.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

COLUMBIA, S. C., June 18, 1878.

The ninety-seventh anniversary of the battle of Seventy-six was celebrated in the old fort at that place to-day with great enthusiasm, despite most unfavorable weather, which has prevailed here several days. Fully five thousand people, citizens of several counties, assembled to participate in the ceremonies. These consisted of a review of the military present by Governor Hampton and Adjutant General Morse, the delivery of patriotic speeches by the Governor and others, and a barbecue feast in quantity to satisfy all the throng. An artillery salute of thirteen guns was fired from the fort, awakening echoes which have been asleep for nearly a hundred years. Owing to the peculiar character of the soil, the star redoubt, which is an earthwork, the mines, parallels and other features of the fort, are nearly as distinct as when evacuated by Lord Rawdon.

A DEPUTY MARSHAL KILLED.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

COLUMBIA, S. C., June 18, 1878.

Gus Harris, a negro deputy United States marshal, was killed at Edgefield Court House yesterday evening in a rencontre with a young man named Brooke. Harris fired twice upon his adversary before the latter could draw his weapon, but then received two shots which quickly proved mortal. Brooke was badly wounded.

A FIENDISH PLOT.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

WHEELING, W. Va., June 18, 1878.

A horrible case of attempt at wholesale slaughter has been discovered here to-day. The Monitor Tug and Lumber Company have a large barge at their yards, which is being repaired. It is held in its position on the stocks by large ropes and blocks. During Monday night some one cut these ropes in a place where they were covered, and only the blocks kept the barge in its place. It had been determined to raise the barge with jackscrews this morning, and it was found not to be necessary. Had it been attempted at least a dozen men would probably have been instantly killed. It is thought by the company that the cutting was done by some men whose wages had been reduced and who have been talking ugly for some time. Detectives are at work on the case. This is the first display of anything like labor troubles in this city this summer.

MILK POISONING.

THIRTY PERSONS POISONED BY DRINKING NEW MILK—NO LIVES LOST.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

PITTSTON, Pa., June 18, 1878.

The family of Mr. George Judge, member of the Legislature from this (the Seventh) Assembly district, who were poisoned yesterday by drinking the fresh milk of a milch cow, and whose lives were only saved by promptly administering antidotes, are all recovering. Miss Judge, a young lady of nineteen, had several convulsions this morning, after which she relapsed into a state of insensibility. This evening at six o'clock she showed signs of recovery. Thirty persons, all told, mostly children who tasted the milk, were more or less affected by it, many of them being seized with violent vomiting. The number under the care of the several physicians is eighteen, all of whom are convalescing. The doctors pronounced it a case of animal poisoning, and on examination of the cow's udder found that it had been bitten by a snake. There is considerable excitement here over the matter, and exaggerated stories of all sorts are afloat.

ONLY A STUDENTS' QUARREL.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

BRISTOL, Tenn., June 18, 1878.

The latest intelligence from Turkey Cove, in Lee county, states that the affair between Bailey and Coombs, students at the Turkey Cove Academy, was amicably settled after an exchange of shots, neither of the combatants being hurt. The Cove is a distant, inaccessible place, and the correspondent says it is extremely difficult to get reliable information. It is not yet clear that there was any duel, but if there was no details are given and no cause for the meeting can be ascertained. The last issue of the Lee County Sentinel, the paper which first gave publicity to the affair, and which stated that one of the combatants had died from a wound in the abdomen, makes no allusion to it. The prevailing impression now is that an ordinary students' quarrel took place, which has been magnified into a duel with fatal results.

SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' REUNION.

WASHINGTON, June 18, 1878.

Captain Lyon and Captain J. Reese, of Ohio, are here to make arrangements for the reunion of soldiers and sailors of the late war at Newark, in that State, on the 22d of July, the anniversary of the death of General McPherson. Representative Keifer will be the orator.

The President of the United States and Minister Noyes will be present, together with other prominent citizens of Ohio.

ON THE WARPATH.

The Bannock Indian Troubles Growing Very Serious.

WHAT GENERAL CROOK SAYS

Despatches from Generals Howard McDowell and Bradley.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

OMAHA, Neb., June 18, 1878.

General Crook left for Chicago to-night, for consultation with General Sheridan on the Bannock troubles. General Crook makes no secret that he considers the situation growing more serious every day. Telegrams from Fort Hall state that the Shoshone band have returned to their reservation, but latest information leads to the belief that the Malheur Indians, Shoshones and Hicketats, of Columbia River, will shortly join in insurrection, making from 1,000 to 1,200 hostiles among the lava beds, mountains and canyons to 6,000 men on the Plains. At present not more than 1,200 soldiers—500 from General Howard, 500 from the departments of the Pacific and Arizona and 200 from General Crook's department—can be used. General Crook has been obliged to use twenty-one companies to protect the Black Hills and Fort McKinny regions, stripping the department of available men and transportation.

POSITION OF THE BANNOCKS.

The Bannocks hold the elevated country, commanding a situation full of chances of ambuscades, roamed by thousands of cattle, affording supplies indefinitely. The situation is more serious than it has been for years. General Crook says that the government has driven the Bannocks to war and to fighting for their lives.

WHAT THE BANNOCKS SAY.

He held the council with the Bannocks in April and found them not half supplied and starving. He telegraphed to the agent for supplies and received an answer, "No appropriation." He found that buffalo and game were gone. The Bannock chiefs said they had been allies of the whites in recent wars against the hostiles; had furnished General Crook with scouts in the campaigns against the Piutes and Sioux. In return for these services they begged General Crook to help them, but he found he could do nothing.

GENERAL BRADLEY'S MARCH.

GENERAL BRADLEY EXPEDITION,
BLACK HILLS, June 17, 1878,
VIA DEADWOOD, D. T., June 18, 1878.

We have only made thirty miles' progress in six days. Rains, rapid streams, deep canyons and unprecedented weather have delayed this command in its onward march to the Belle Fourche. Officers and men have toiled against a combination of circumstances unprecedented in the history of this country. Within the recollection of even the Indians no such season has been experienced on the plains and mountains. Yet steadily we have gained distance toward the Belle Fourche. To-day has been a layover, a rest, but particularly to allow of a reconnoissance of a different trail than this out of the mountains to the plains beyond. The Custer route had a fair beginning, but we find it has a terrible middle of deep canyons, rapid streams and boggy upland swamps. In order to better it the Commanding General sent Lieutenant Capron, an old division quartermaster, of the war and under General Hazen, now chief of the quartermaster's department of this expedition, to explore a route to the westward. To-night he returns, after a forty-mile ride, with his party, and reports the route impracticable without greater labor than that directly north. This route has also been explored to-day by Lieutenant Delaney, with an engineer's party, and from his reports of its practicability it will be the route out of the Black Hills to the Little Missouri country. So far fortune and good management has favored us. Surgeon Starrow, medical director, reports no deaths from sickness, and as yet we have not met the guilty roaming savage to cause a loss otherwise. The stray pilgrim, and prospecting miner, tells us of signs, tracks and ponies stolen by Indian depredators, but our scouts have not met the former owner of these hills nor the evidences of his presence. Indian raids from the British possessions are discredited by many of the officers of the command, and yet there are others who claim that we are sure to meet Sitting Bull.

MOVEMENT OF TROOPS.

DEADWOOD, D. T., June 18, 1878.

Five companies of cavalry and four of infantry, under command of General Bradley, bound for Black Hills posts, camped to-day near the Bellefourche River, about thirty miles from here. The command's progress north has been much retarded by frequent and heavy rains and bad roads.

DESPATCHES FROM GENERALS HOWARD AND M'DOWELL.

WASHINGTON, June 18, 1878.

Despatches were received at the War Department to-day from Generals Howard and McDowell relative to the Indian hostilities in the Northwest. Regarding the military campaign against the hostiles, General McDowell reports that Grover in the centre, with Sanford's, Sumner's and Car's companies, concentrates at once at Keeney's ferry, to move in the direction of Stein's Mountain. Stewart has the right and is pushing rapidly to Rhinehart's Crossing of the Malheur. Egbert's reserve is ordered to move with the utmost speed to Camp Lyon. Orders have been sent to McGregor to move from Harney to join Bernard. With Whipple's, Bomus and his own company moves to-day on the Indian trail. General Howard will go from Sheep Ranch to Rhinehart's Crossing of the Malheur to meet Stewart.

Egbert reports five companies, 130 men, Stewart's column D and G, Fourth artillery. Companies B, D, G, H and I Twenty-first infantry, thirteen officers, 200 men. Captain Cochrane, with his company F, Second artillery, with Lieutenant Drury, will go to Lyons to await Egbert. Companies H and K, Fourth artillery, and H, Eighth infantry, have been ordered to report to General Howard and are en route.

A START FOR CAMP HARNEY.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 18, 1878.

A special despatch from Portland, Oregon, says that a despatch has been received at military headquarters stating that about five hundred hostile Indians have started toward Camp Harney, in this State, and that they are receiving accessions as they march. General Howard has given instructions to send Miles' command, now en route, to Harney with all possible speed.

BUFFALO HORN KILLED.

Sarah Winnemucca, who recently escaped from the hostiles at Stein's Mountain, reports that one of the Indian scouts claims to have killed Buffalo Horn, the Bannock chief. Sarah says their leader was killed in a skirmish with some citizens in which the scout was engaged.

MOVEMENT OF THE SHOSHONES.

An Austin, Nev., despatch says a rumor is current that the Shoshones have left Smoky Valley in a body and gone north, headed for Beowawe, on the Union Pacific Railroad. It is supposed they are on the way to join the hostile Bannocks. These Indians have always been well treated and cannot have any grievance against the white people. In their route north they must cross the line of the Central Pacific Railroad, somwhere between Battle Mountain and the Palisade. A large number of Shoshones from Belmont, Eureka and the valley were here, ostensibly in attendance on a fandango. They endeavored to purchase powder and lead in large quantities but were refused by the storekeepers, who, in some instances, were warned by officers against selling ammunition to Indians. Nearly all of these Indians have now left here, going in various directions. The Piutes are quiet but very inquisitive regarding the war, which they profess to deplore.

ON THE WARPATH.

A Silver City despatch states that Chief Winnemucca has returned to Bernard and Whipple's camp, on the Owyhee River. He says the hostiles are killing hundreds of cattle and leaving their carcasses to rot. The hostiles have left Stein's Mountain, and are moving toward the Harney Valley, thence to the Mathews Agency and Snake River, and will probably keep on until they effect a junction with the Columbia River Indians, which addition to their forces will, they calculate, enable them to sweep the country. They are determined to retain the Piutes as prisoners until they can get a sufficient number of arms from the white men they kill to arm them. Egan is rebellious, and horses and arms have been taken from him and his Indians. Camp Harney will probably be captured by the Indians to-morrow, and if so there will be a terrible slaughter of whites congregated there for protection. Nothing has been heard from Howard since yesterday. If he does not effect a junction with Steward's forces the party accompanying him from Camp Lyon could easily be captured by the Indians. The general situation is quite critical, and the massacres that will be perpetrated bid fair to exceed in numbers those of the Nez Percés war.

THE CUSTER MASSACRE.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

BISMARCK, D. T., June 18, 1878.

General Miles, with a company of cavalry, left Fort Keogh on Saturday to make an inspection of the Custer battle field and see what condition the graves are in.

LARGE FIRE AT AKRON, OHIO.

CLEVELAND, June 18, 1878.

A fire at Akron, Ohio, early this morning destroyed the Academy of Music building and Commercial block. The loss is estimated at from $150,000 to $200,000.

The fire originated in J. P. Sebring's store, at one o'clock A. M. An explosion, thought to be of gas, was heard, and immediately after that fire was discovered blazing out at the front windows. H. P. Hitchcock made an affidavit charging Sebring with incendiarism. He was arrested and taken before the Mayor, where he pleaded not guilty, and in default of $10,000 bail was committed to jail.

LOSSES AND INSURANCES.

The Commerce Block, erected in 1870, cost $68,000 and was insured for $83,000 in the following companies:—British American, Toronto and Scottish Commercial, Glasgow, each $6,000; Milwaukee Mechanic's, Buffalo German, $3,000 each; Germania, Cincinnati, $5,000; Metropolitan Plate, $900; Enterprise, Cincinnati, $2,000. There were also $8,000 in the various other companies, particulars of which cannot now be ascertained.

The Academy of Music, also erected in 1870 at a cost of about $150,000, was insured for $18,000 as follows:—Royal, Liverpool, Merchants' and Traders', New York, and another company not known, $5,000 each. There were also $500 placed with H. G. Matthews and $2,500 with Motz & Co., agents.

GRAVE ROBBERS INDICTED.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, June 18, 1878.

Search for the body of young Devin, whose grave at North Bend, Ind., was robbed some time ago, was prosecuted vigorously with the aid of detectives after the finding of J. Scott Harrison's body in the Medical College here. The body was traced to Ann Arbor, Mich., and there discovered in the pickling vat of the Medical College. It was taken back and reinterred at North Bend with impressive ceremonies. In the meantime the robbery of graves at North Bend was brought to the notice of the Grand Jury, and, after a careful investigation, they returned indictments against Dr. Morton, the resurrectionist, and J. Q. Marshall, janitor of the Ohio Medical College. Dr. Morton cannot now be found, but Marshall will be held for trial.

The Grand Jury having failed to indict the faculty of the Ohio and Miami Medical colleges for complicity in the robbing of the graves of Scott Harrison and young Devin, General Harrison and Joseph Devin, relatives of the deceased persons, have decided to institute civil suits against the colleges, claiming $10,000 damages in each case. A similar suit will be brought against the Ann Arbor Medical College. Eminent counsel has been retained, and the suit will be pressed.

ORDER OF AMERICAN MECHANICS.

BALTIMORE, June 18, 1878.

The National Council of the United States of the Junior Order of American Mechanics commenced its sessions in this city to-day. National Councillor George W. Ilginfritz, of Indiana, presided, with J. Adam Sohl, of Maryland, as National Vice Councillor, and Edward S. Deemer, of Pennsylvania, as Secretary. The annual report was made by G. W. Ilginfritz, National Councillor. The report of the secretary shows the Order to exist in the States of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Indiana, Ohio, Massachusetts and New York. Ten new councils were chartered during the year in different States. Pennsylvania has eighty councils, New Jersey twenty-four, Maryland six, Massachusetts four, Delaware three, Indiana three, Ohio four and New York four. Twelve hundred and eighty persons were initiated during the year. The receipts of subordinate councils during the year were $33,869 08; paid for benefits and relief during the year, $7,180 86; in treasuries of subordinate councils, $40,956 62; total membership, 8,796. A committee consisting of Messrs. Culver, of Pennsylvania; Sohe, of Missouri, and Hayes, of New Jersey, was appointed to confer with a similar committee of the Senior Order to form a close union between the two bodies. The Junior American Mechanic, published in Philadelphia, was declared to be the official organ of the Order. Adjourned.

THE JENNINGS ASSOCIATION.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 18, 1878.

The Jennings Association met in Camden, N. J., to-day, to take action in reference to the measures necessary to prosecute their title to a final determination before the courts of England, to secure the large estate said to have been left by Samuel Jennings, Henry Jennings and Isaac Jennings, who came to America between the years 1666 and 1709. Quite a large number of persons were present. The heirs in New Jersey number about 1,835, and the value of the estate in England is said to be $300,000,000. A committee consisting of two claimants from each branch of the Jennings family was appointed to look into the matter of collecting money for employment of counsel to prosecute the case.

SONS OF TEMPERANCE.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 18, 1878.

The National Division of the Sons of Temperance convened in opening session here to-day and a public reception was given at St. James' Hall to-night. The following was the programme:—Address of welcome, by C. H. Mead; welcome poem, by Rev. J. B. Smith, of Peekskill; addresses, by General Louis Wagner, M. W. P.; Hon. S. L. Tilly, Lieutenant Governor of New Brunswick; Neal Dow, of Maine; W. J. Groo, of Middletown, N. Y., and others. Music under the direction of Professor E. Chambers, of Leroy, N. Y.

STRIKE OF WEAVERS.

PATERSON, N. J., June 18, 1878.

A strike is in progress in the mills of R. & H. Adams. Yesterday morning about fifty of the weavers left. They were joined by others in the afternoon and more are expected to follow to-day. The strike is confined to the mosquito netting weaving rooms. The greatest reticence is observed at the mills, so it is impossible to arrive at exact figures. The cause is a proposed reduction of wages, and the statements of the weavers are very contradictory.

THE GRAIN SHOVELLERS' STRIKE.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 18, 1878.

The situation of the grain shovellers' strike remains unchanged. Several meetings have been held and largely attended. A committee was appointed to confer with the elevator managers, several of whom have expressed themselves ready to pay $3 per 1,000 for unloading sail vessels and $3 50 for propellers, but the shovellers still hold out for $4 on the latter.

IMPORTANT REPORTS ON INDIANS AND FREEDMEN AND THE BEST MEANS OF HELPING THEM.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

NEWPORT, R. I., June 18, 1878.

The Friends, after a brief religious service this morning, met in joint session. The first matter claiming attention was the condition of the Western Indians, and the following report was read:—

The Joint Committee on the Concern for the Improvement of the Western Indians report that meetings of the Associated Executive Committee have been held in the fall of 1877, at Richmond, Ind., and at Germantown, Pa., in the Fourth month, 1878. Sub-committees upon religious interests and missionary labors, and also to confer with officers of the government upon the best interest of the Indians, have met at various times during the year as occasion has required.

Different circumstances have contributed in the prosecution of this work to render the first year a season of uncertainty and anxiety. The feeling manifested by some who have influence with the government of opposition to what has been known as its peace policy in treating with the Indians, the strong efforts which have been made to place the Indian Bureau under the control of the War Department, and the complaints, often prejudiced or unfounded, which have been preferred against Indian agents and others engaged in the work, have each added to the difficulty and embarrassment. Though faithful and self-sacrificing labor has, however, been given to the work and evidence is not wanting that the efforts of the agents, the teachers and others in the field of service have been richly rewarded, the Indians, as a whole, continue to improve in civilization, while the endeavors to educate their children and to bring all classes, older and younger, under the influence of the Gospel, have as heretofore among several tribes received the divine blessing. A visit made in the early autumn by our friend Elkana Beard, and somewhat later by Larvere Tatum, to nearly all the agencies under our care was as we had anticipated, not only a means of encouragement to the Indians and their white helpers, but was made highly useful to the committee by giving us late and reliable information respecting the advancement of the different tribes as well as their present need.

NEED OF MONEY.

The associated committee have felt much impressed with the magnitude as well as the importance of this work, and it seems incumbent upon us as Christians to do what our hands find to do while we have the opportunity in this field. Under this feeling of responsibility they feel it right and ask the several yearly meetings to forward their proportion of $3,000 to Charles F. Coffin, of Richmond, Ind. Our quota of this sum will be $510.

A TEACHER'S EXPERIENCE.

The school and mission of the Quapaw Agency to aid and encourage, which has been especially assigned to this Yearly Meeting, has been continued during the year as heretofore. Its charge was assumed by Emmeline Tuttle alone, as her husband, Asa C. Tuttle, declined the government appointment, expecting to be absent much of the time engaged in religious service. Her duties at the mission, always arduous and sometimes perplexing, have during the past year been attended by circumstances deeply trying to faith and patience. The withholding by the government for a period of seven months (owing in part to an informality) of the stipulated funds to defray the expense of the school, and the long continued illness of Emmeline Tuttle during the winter and early spring, were a part of these trials. Notwithstanding these serious obstacles, we believe the school has made considerable progress during the year, and the number enrolled, (68) was larger than heretofore; ten of these, however, Poncas, were withdrawn early in the year to accompany the tribe to their new home. The remaining 58 have been under instruction most of the time. Of this number 20 are pretty good readers, and are studying geography, practical arithmetic and history. Twenty more are indifferent readers, study mental arithmetic, and a part of them geography; also, nearly all of these are also learning to write. As heretofore the progress of the Modoc children has been particularly marked, as they develop an active brain and a great ambition to learn. These children have also been more continuously in school and have consequently been less under the retarding influence of Indian life in camp. Indeed, we find that the success of the Indian schools, particularly in their rudimental period, depends largely upon the almost constant influence and control of the agents and teachers.

GOSPEL TRUTH AFFECTING THE REDSKINS.

The first day school and meetings are regularly held, and many of the children are gaining a knowledge of gospel truth and numerous portions of Bible history. The people also attend meetings pretty well. Under date of May 12 E. Tuttle writes:—"Last Thursday several of the Modocs were present. Two of the chiefs spoke, one in English and the other in his own language. The former said his heart had felt very glad that day. He wanted to remember what he had heard, for they were good words. He desired to follow the Good Spirit, and wished the children to do the same." Emmeline Tuttle also writes that a religious interest appears to be stirring in all the tribes of the agency. Last year a general meeting was held in a grove for these people of various tribes, and at the earnest request of the Indians another was soon to begin at the same place.

She also writes:—"We have received all the clothing we have asked for, which has been well selected and suitable." "Notwithstanding," she adds "clouds have at times gathered thick and fast and storms have beat upon us, there has never been a time when, if I would go alone with God, I could see in the distance the beautiful bow of promise, which up to the present hour has kept me from scattering the children, and I hope now to be able to close the year thankfully to ourselves and honorably to the society we represent."

The committee have expended during the year $686 99. Of this amount $676 12 has been drawn from the treasury of the yearly meeting. In behalf of the committee,

EDWARD W. HOWLAND.
ANNA G. WOOD.

The report was favorably received, and the sentiment of the meeting was to push forward the work among the Indians and found permanent societies among them. Elizabeth Mallison, of New York, spoke of what the New York yearly meeting was doing in regard to the matter. Not only had they become interested in their brains, but lately the interest had reached their hearts, and thence their pockets. Two teachers have been sent by that meeting during the present year, and they will be sustained by that body. She made an eloquent plea to the Friends to do their duty in the matter and subscribe handsomely for the Christianization of the red men.

Routine business had the attention of the meeting during the remainder of the morning session.

A SCHOOL FOR FREEDMEN.

The following report on the freedmen was read and adopted, and the recommendations referred to a large committee:—

The time has now expired that was agreed upon by the New England Yearly Meeting and that of Indiana to carry on the Normal School for colored people in Maryville, Tenn. The agreement made between the New England Meeting and Indiana Yearly Meeting was that New England would pay the expenses of the Maryville school for three years, the sum not to exceed $1,500 per year; then Indiana should give a deed of all the property to New England if desired; if not, the property reverted to Indiana. Two of your committee have been down there and visited the school and were very much pleased with it. They found William P. Hastings a man well qualified to have the management of the school and property. The property is very valuable for this purpose, costing $20,000. There are twenty-eight acres of very good land. It is well situated to carry on a normal school to educate the colored people for teachers.

Your committee are of the opinion that if this yearly Meeting is going to do anything for the colored people it could not do better than to take a deed of the property and continue the school. They think it would cost about $1,500 a year.

They would recommend that a committee be appointed to have charge of it and receive the deed from the Indiana Yearly Meeting. There is now on hand about $700. There has been expended for the past three years, up to the 1st of this month, $3,553.

On behalf of the committee.

EDWARD W. HOWLAND.
SUSAN T. TABOR.

Then followed the reading of the report of the Committee on Foreign Missions. A liberal appropriation was made for their support.

An interesting temperance report was read from the Committee on Temperance and an appropriation was made to carry on the work by tracts, speakers, &c.

EVENING SESSION.

The evening session was one of peculiar interest. The principal address was made by John F. Tucker, of New Bedford, his subject being "The Popular Literature of the Day." Brief remarks by other speakers followed in the same vein. The pernicious influence of such literature was ably discussed and its evil influence upon the young set forth.

TELEGRAPHIC NOTES.

Deacon Ezra Smith was acquitted at Vergennes, Vt., yesterday of the charge of having murdered his wife.

Colonel Hendrick B. Wright was nominated for Congress on Monday by the Luzerne county (Pa.) national party.

Sixty persons were thrown out of employment by the burning of the woollen mills at Campbellford, Ont., yesterday.

Michael J. Moore was acquitted yesterday at Philadelphia of the charge of murder in killing Patrick White.

Bryce Gamble, of Pawtucket, R. I., charged with an indecent assault, shot himself yesterday and will probably die.

Gus Harris, a colored United States deputy marshal, at Edgefield Court House, S. C., was killed on Monday night by Brooker Toney.

Frank Appleton, employed in the Public Library at Providence, R. I., fell in the Butler Exchange yesterday and was probably fatally injured.

DRAGGING ALONG.

Little Progress Made Yesterday in the Vanderbilt Will Contest.

THE "GOLDEN CALF."

A Pretty Interchange of Compliments Between Counsel.

The Vanderbilt will case was resumed yesterday morning before Surrogate Calvin. Mr. William H. Vanderbilt, his brother, Cornelius J., and Mrs. La Bau were present, as well as the counsel and friends of both parties, who have regularly attended throughout the proceedings.

Christopher D. Shurragar, the first witness, who turned out finally to be no witness at all, testified that he did not know Commodore Vanderbilt and had never spoken to him in his life. Mr. Lord asked him to state a conversation he had had with William K. Thorne on the subject of the Commodore's fortune and family. The witness replied that he did not remember any such conversation, and Mr. Lord plied him with various questions to refresh his memory. Messrs. Clinton and Comstock vigorously objected that the counsel must not "pump or importune the witness," and although the Surrogate decided that Mr. Lord had the right to refresh the memory of his witness, Mr. Shurragar stepped off the stand without making any revelations whatsoever.

THROWING MONEY INTO THE HUDSON RIVER.

Mr. James B. Heney, of No. 63 East Ninety-first street, an old shipwright, who knew the Commodore in his steamship days in 1838 and later, was called, as Mr. Lord explained, to prove that in the April preceding the execution of the will the Commodore told him this:—"William has told me that Jerry Simonson (a nephew of the Commodore) and Cornell are both fast boys, and that giving them money is like throwing it into the Hudson River."

Mr. Comstock—I don't see the relevancy of this.

Mr. Lord—That is not at all wonderful. (Laughter.) If the counsel would only carry the case better in his mind he would see it and would not be making these interruptions all the time.

Mr. Comstock (angrily)—I thought that I could make this remark without being insulted.

Surrogate Calvin said this testimony would be admissible if Mr Lord had established a conspiracy by William H. Vanderbilt with a view to show what effect the conspiracy had upon the Commodore's mind, but not now.

Mr. Clinton (sarcastically)—I suppose the object of this testimony is to bring the North River into the case so as to give the counsel a chance to set it on fire. (Laughter.)

Mr. Lord (pleasantly)—Well, I'll give Mr. Clinton the credit of having said the brightest and keenest thing yet in this case.

Mr. Clinton—It must be keen indeed if you appreciate it. (Laughter.)

The Surrogate excluded the evidence for the present, and Mr. Lord took an exception.

The witness was very deaf and garrulous, so that he had to be shouted at by the counsel and the Surrogate both to make him understand the questions and to restrain his loquacity. The Surrogate allowed him to testify that he went to see the Commodore about damage to his property caused by the Forty-second street depot, and the Commodore told him that he left everything in the hands of his son William H.; subsequently, when the witness called, the Commodore did not quite recognize him and said that for the last two or three years his memory had been failing him very much; he spoke of Cornelius J. as his "poor boy," and, when Heney assured him that he had three sons all given to dissipation, and who all turned in the right path at the eleventh hour, the Commodore told him that he had given him (the Commodore) "great consolation."

A VERY DEFECTIVE MEMORY.

Mr. Clinton, in his cross-examination, showed that the memory of the witness was very bad in respect to the situation of the rooms in which he saw the Commodore.

Mr. Clinton—How old are you, Mr. Heney?

Mr. Heney (with reserve)—I'm sixty, any way. (Laughter.)

Mr. Lord (sotto voce)—Forty years and upward. (Laughter.)

Mr. Clinton—Are you seventy?

Mr. Heney (with increased reserve)—Well, sir, I'd have to look at documents. (Laughter.)

Mr. Clinton greatly confused the witness about his personal acquaintance with the Commodore and William H. The witness said he knew him (meaning the Commodore) as well as his brother, and Mr. Clinton, understanding him as meaning William H., asked him to point out William H. in the room. At this the witness looked around confusedly, William H. assuming a blank expression and looking indifferently away. He did not recognize William H., and there was much laughter when he said he thought he saw William H. on the witness stand in the room last Friday.

Mr. Clinton (pointing out the big-faced and white mustached court officer next the stand)—Was it that handsome gentleman you mistook last Friday for William H. Vanderbilt?

Witness (amid loud laughter)—No, sir.

Mr. Lord—You are making the officer blush. (Laughter.)

The old man finally stepped off the stand, mumbling all the way to his seat about the people who knew him and could vouch for his good character.

A BARBER'S TESTIMONY.

Henry Keith, a barber, testified that he shaved the Commodore from 1871 until he died, going to his house every morning at about eight o'clock, and staying twenty minutes or half an hour. Mr. Lord asked Keith to state whether he ever heard the Commodore call Dr. Linsley some rough name and saw him throw something at him, and the barber replied that he could not recollect. Mr. Lord pressed him, but the witness stubbornly persisted that he knew nothing except what a nurse—Agnes—had told him. Mr. Lord then asked him whether he wasn't once refused admission to the Commodore by Mrs. Vanderbilt.

Mr. Clinton vigorously objected and said mockingly, "There is no inalienable right guaranteed by the constitution or laws to any barber to come and shave his client at any time he pleases." (Laughter.)

Mr. Comstock also protested that Mrs. Vanderbilt would not certainly have excluded the barber for any sinister purpose, and there was nothing to show that he stood in any relations to the Commodore except in those of a barber. The barber's pride was visibly touched, and though he had hitherto manifested great unwillingness to testify he now volunteered the statement "and a nurse."

The Surrogate—Well, if the barber went there in pursuance of the Commodore's directions and was expelled from the house against the Commodore's will by his wife that is a fact which I think I ought to receive.

There was another tilt then between Messrs. Lord and Clinton, during which the Surrogate good humoredly said:—"I know that my friend Clinton has a habit of foreclosing the Court, but the Court isn't foreclosed."

The witness finally testified that one morning when he came as usual to the house to shave the Commodore Mrs. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Crawford told him the Commodore was "too sick to be shaved" and sent him away. Next morning he was sent for earlier than usual and the Commodore told him that when he wanted the witness to come in he should come in. The Commodore also made him call the two ladies and instructed them to admit the barber whenever he came to shave him.

This finished the barber's evidence, and at one o'clock recess was taken "for half an hour." After an hour the counsel for the proponents were assembled and Surrogate Calvin came in, but as there was no sign of the learned representatives of the contestants the Surrogate returned to his private room. Finally, at twenty minutes past two, Mr. Lord made his appearance and escorted Mrs. La Bau into the court room.

ANOTHER SPARRING CONTEST.

Mr. Comstock now grimly said they had waited for nearly an hour over the time. They meant to press the motion to close the evidence for the contestants within the nine days granted them on the adjournment two months ago unless some very extraordinary reasons existed for another delay. This was the fourth of these nine days, and it was plain to see that the so-called conspiracy witnesses would never be produced. The testimony for the contestants was now being only spun out in order that the case might go over to next fall. In this way the case could go on indefinitely if not forever.

Mr. Lord replied in quite an impassioned strain:—"As sure as these clouds now hovering over the city will break and the sun shine again, so surely will these witnesses bring out the truth in this case and we shall have the bottom facts," and he promised that he would use his utmost diligence to produce them in spite of the conspiracy which he believed had deprived him of their testimony. He disclaimed any belief that Mr. Comstock was in the conspiracy. The statement was now in evidence that Commodore Vanderbilt had said his son William H. had his brother Cornelius J. watched, and was this a time to speak about shutting off the conspiracy evidence and closing this case? Mr. Lord claimed that it had always been understood that the "half hour" recess meant an hour, and the delay this day, therefore, was only twenty minutes.

Mr. Comstock said he did not complain of these little delays, but of the general dilatory course of the contestants. "Why, Your Honor," said he, "give me a certain amount of money and a year's time, and assume that I am without scruples, and I could upset any will ever made in New York—except that of Commodore Vanderbilt!"

Mr. Lord (vehemently)—Why does the counsel say every will but that of Commodore Vanderbilt? Is it that the distinguished counsel is kneeling down before the golden calf? What is there in Commodore Vanderbilt that is different from anybody else except that he has a legatee here worth $100,000,000, and who is always pulling the coat tails of his counsel—for this suggestion comes from him and not from them? Is it possible that $100,000,000 will bring forth such edicts from counsel as distinguished as this?

EXCHANGE OF COMPLIMENTS.

Mr. Comstock (drily)—If the counsel will talk less about the golden calf he will be less of a calf himself.

Mr. Lord (smiling)—That's the first shrewd thing the counsel has said yet. (Laughter.) After which Mr. Lord proceeded with stern vehemence:—"What donkey ever brayed before as to bray like this?"

In this way the argument, which altogether lasted forty minutes, went on, although the Surrogate several times intimated that it was utterly useless and a mere waste of time. At three o'clock both counsel collapsed, and then, when at last a calm supervened, Surrogate Calvin, after a solemn pause, during which everybody expected to hear an elaborate judicial opinion, quietly remarked, "Call the next witness." At this summary disposal of a matter in which counsel had spent so much breath and such ardent zeal there was loud laughter after which Mr. Lord called out loudly, "A. Oakey Hall." A court officer said Mr. Hall was engaged in the Court of General Sessions, and Mr. Lord then put upon the stand Cornelius J. Vanderbilt, who during the argument which followed crossed one leg high over the other, and playing leisurely with his cane swung himself to and fro.

EXCLUDED EVIDENCE.

Mr. Lord said he wanted to ask the witness whether he ever visited any houses of prostitution, and whether he ever wished his father dead or ever told William H. that he wished his father dead. The evidence was excluded substantially on grounds previously given in the decisions of the Surrogate. Mr. Lord also wanted to prove by Cornelius J. that William H. told him, after the death of the Commodore and before the probate of the will, that he would spend $500,000, if necessary, to win the case. This was also excluded.

Mrs. La Bau was put upon the stand, as Mr. Lord urged, to prove that she never said she wished her father dead (as was reported to the Commodore, according to James Irving's evidence, by William H.), but the evidence was also excluded. To corroborate Irving's testimony as to the Commodore's taking twenty grains of calomel against the directions of his physicians, Mr. Lord wanted to prove by her that when Dr. Linsly told Mrs. Vanderbilt, in her hearing, that the Commodore, knowing that he must die, insisted upon taking twenty grains of calomel, and asked Mrs. Vanderbilt what he should do about it, Mrs. Vanderbilt replied that as long as the Commodore must die the doctor had better give him the calomel, as it might help him. This was also excluded, and Mrs. La Bau stepped off the stand.

It was now half-past three—half an hour previous to the usual time for adjournment—but Mr. Lord said, looking up at the clock:—"I am afraid I must be charged with the loss of half an hour now." This started again the subject of loss of time, and the Surrogate remarked that his luncheon took him precisely five minutes.

SURROGATE CALVIN'S LONGEVITY.

Mr. Lord (jocularly)—I am afraid if that is the case Your Honor won't live very long.

The Surrogate (smiling)—I hope to live long enough to see the end of this case.

Mr. Clinton (with mock seriousness)—Perhaps this is only a part of the conspiracy on the other side by killing off the Judge. (Laughter.)

Mr. Lord—I don't see why you should charge us with that, as we don't confine the Judge to five minutes for his luncheon.

This exchange of legal witticisms might have lasted for some time, but the Surrogate's gavel fell and he said, curtly:—"Adjourned till to-morrow morning, at eleven o'clock."

MARINE DISASTERS.

ONE VESSEL CAPSIZED AND ANOTHER ABANDONED IN MID-OCEAN—NO TRACE OF THE CREWS.

Two stories of marine disaster, made ghastly by the probable loss of two complete crews, were told yesterday, and in their incompleteness of detail will bring more anguish to the households of the missing men than certain tidings of their death would cause. Two barks were reported found at sea, wrecked and abandoned, and no trace of any living being was found on either. All the details that could be obtained yesterday are given below.

On the 13th ult. the bark Advocate left New York with a cargo consisting of 16,300 feet of lumber and nearly forty thousand bushels of corn for a consignee in Dunkirk, Scotland. She was a stanch vessel, only four years old, having been built at Advocate, N. S., in 1874, and had a register of 634 tons. She was owned in Windsor, N. S., and her agents in New York are Messrs. J. F. Whitney & Co. Nothing was heard from her in any way after her departure from this port until the schooner John H. Paige arrived in Philadelphia, and her captain reported that he had seen the Advocate on May 28 lying bottom up in the ocean. There were no traces of the crew, and it is supposed that they have found a grave beneath the billows of the Atlantic. This report reaching New York Messrs. Whitney wrote to Philadelphia for further particulars, but the captain of the Paige could give none excepting that he had taken a boat and gone around the Advocate and had been able to read her name. He also gave a description of the wrecked vessel so full and explicit that no doubt remained of her identity.

SET ON FIRE.

It was then supposed she might have had a collision with some other vessel, and intelligence of such an occurrence was watched for, but nothing further was heard until the New Jersey pilotboat Ezra Nye (No. 2) put in at this port on Monday, and reported that she had also found the Advocate on June 14 in latitude 38 51, longitude 73. The captain of the Nye reported that the Advocate was apparently uninjured excepting by the loss of her mainmast, which had seemingly been carried away, cutting her port side a little. Some of her sails were visible under the water and the foremast and mizzenmast seemed to be uninjured. The Nye lay by the wreck through the night, and early in the morning made efforts to right her, but that proving impracticable a line was made fast to her rudder and the Nye attempted to tow her. This proved impossible also, as she seemed to be held by her chains, and although she could be turned around she could not be started ahead. As she was lying in a position that was likely to prove dangerous to vessels bound down the coast from the eastward she was set on fire.

Messrs. Whitney & Co. say that this account does away with the supposition that the Advocate was wrecked in a collision, and they think it probable that in the stormy weather of the latter part of May her cargo may have shifted and she may have capsized in consequence. She was commanded by Captain Rufus W. Smith and had a crew of eleven men.

ABANDONED IN MID-OCEAN.

Two weeks ago the bark John E. Chase, belonging to Messrs. Chase, Talbot & Co. and others, commanded by Captain Post, and having on board a crew of nine men, left Matanzas for New York with a cargo of sugar consigned to Moses Taylor & Co. On the 14th inst. the brig Redowa, Captain Byrne, from New Orleans for Providence, R. I., found the John E. Chase in latitude 29 10, longitude 80 15, she having been abandoned in a leaky condition. Captain Byrne towed her into port, and from a despatch received from Savannah on Monday it appeared that the Chase had lost her mizzenmast, mainmast and fore royal mast, but that her hull was not badly injured. Another despatch said that when found she was on her beam ends and had about three feet of water in her hold. One boat was gone and the other, which was on deck when the Chase was found, was stove. A heavy gale was blowing and the crew of the Redowa were almost exhausted in their efforts to save the bark. Later despatches received yesterday say that the Chase now lies at Venus Point, whither she was towed by the Redowa, and that she leaks, but not badly. No trace of the crew of the Chase was found, and it is considered probable that they became alarmed at the condition of the vessel and took to the boat. Messrs. Chase, Talbot & Co. say they have received no further advices than are detailed above, and that they have no means of judging of the cause of the abandonment of the vessel.

AN OCEAN HORROR.

A DERELICT JAPANESE JUNK, WITH FOUR DYING AND TWO DEAD SAILORS ON BOARD—FATE OF THE REST OF THE CREW.

[From the San Francisco Alta, June 9.]

The bark Athelstone, from Newcastle, N. S. W., reports that on May 29, latitude 39 deg. 49 min. north, longitude 144 deg. 2 min west, at 8:30 A. M., she sighted a derelict junk and bore away for her. "At 9:30 A. M. passed under her lee. Had every appearance of being abandoned, and a most offensive smell emanated from her. Sent the chief officer in a boat aboard of her, who found four Japanese on board, nearly dead, and also two dead ones. Took the living on board and brought them to this port. Was unable to ascertain the name of the vessel or where she was from. But suffice it to say they were in a most deplorable condition. We should have destroyed the junk but a fresh breeze sprung up and we were compelled to abandon her."

Through the courtesy of Mr. Nasse, Japanese interpreter, the following additional facts have been obtained:—The junk was named the I-s-u-k-i-n M-a-r-u, and was of 235 tons burden, and manned by a crew of nine seamen, in addition to Captain Baba. She also had on board thirteen passengers. She was a coaster, bound from Atzukishi to Hokadata, ports upon the island of Yesso, sometimes called Matsmai, one of the largest of the Japanese islands, and situated in latitude 41 deg. 24 min. north, longitude 140 deg. 9 min. east. When about 500 miles from the first named port she was struck by a heavy gale on the morning of November 17, she having left port on the 25th of October. The gale, as is usual in those seas, continued for nearly three months, during which time it was very foggy and the hail storms were frequent. Three days after the gale began the mast went by the board, and three days afterward the upper deck was carried away and three of the crew washed overboard and drowned. Although the cargo consisted of red herrings and seaweed, provisions were so scarce that when rescued by Captain Bayley, of the Athelstone, only three days' food remained. All on board were dead, save a passenger named Iti and three of the crew—the cause of death being scurvy, exposure and starvation. Captain Baba was the last victim. He died some ten days before the kindly rescue. When Captain Bayley boarded the survivors were almost lifeless and had to be carried on board his ship. There were then three feet of water in the hold. The details are too harrowing for description.

NYMPHS OF THE TANK.

OPENING OF THE LADIES' SWIMMING BATHS, CORNER OF SEVENTH AVENUE AND FIFTY-NINTH STREET.

A twenty minutes' ride over the Metropolitan Elevated Railway yesterday morning carried a HERALD reporter from Park place to Central Park, and a walk of a minute and a half brought him to the door of the Misses Bennett's swimming school for ladies, on the corner of Seventh avenue and Fifty-ninth street. The rain was trickling down upon the reporter's umbrella, and the mud gave a pleasant yellow tint to his shoes. A stray goat here and there obstructed his path, and now and again he ran over a small boy washing his feet in the muddy pools which lay thickly scattered along the sidewalk. He was not long in finding the baths, for they occupy the building for some years known as Theodore Thomas' Central Park Garden. The halls through which the music of Beethoven, Wagner and Schumann once echoed now resound to the splash of the bathers as they merrily disport in their tank. As the reporter entered the main doorway he jumped back as suddenly as though he had been shot, and held his hat over his eyes while he backed out of the passage, blushing and muttering his apologies.

The cause for this unfeigned embarrassment was the appearance in the passage of a lady in a state of perfect nudity. Her body was bent slightly forward, and her head turned so that she did not see the reporter. "This is terrible," thought he, "I have opened the wrong door and surprised one of the ladies on her way to the bath." He heard no pattering of damp feet along the passage, so he concluded that his intrusion was undiscovered, but fearing that some other and less considerate reporter might come that way he gave a manly cough of warning. Not hearing the expected scream of fright he advanced a few steps nearer and gently poked the door with the point of his umbrella. Still no scream. He advanced yet further, and, hearing no sound, stepped boldly into the passage. There she stood just as he had seen her at first, her round white limbs glistening in the light reflected from the open door. He was, of course, horrified, but felt somewhat reassured by the unembarrassed manner of the lady. "Madam, I beg ten thou——," but the words were scarcely out of his mouth before he discovered his mistake. What he had taken for a beautiful bather was nothing more or less than a life-size copy in plaster of Powers' well-known statue, the Greek Slave, which guards the entrance door of the baths. As he approached the building his mind was necessarily filled with thoughts of the Dianas and Venuses he was about to behold, so that when the life-like statue burst upon his view he was for a moment deceived and of course agitated.

Entering the office the reporter was entertained for a few moments by Mr. Remsen Appleby, proprietor of the Garden, and was then ushered by Mr. Appleby into the bathing room. Some seventy-five ladies and children and three men were in the room, all of whose eyes were directed upon the tank that stretched along the north wall. The reporter noticed that the room was decorated in a Turco-Russian style, surrounded by smaller rooms, each of which was screened from the main room by bright crimson curtains. The tank in which the Misses Bennett and their picked pupils displayed their aquatic accomplishments is ninety feet long by twenty wide and runs from three to nine feet in depth. It is constantly supplied with fresh water, which is turned into it through countless little jets. At the time the HERALD representative arrived there were some twenty-five ladies disporting in the tank, the chief of whom were the Misses Bennett, the Misses Clark and Magonigle. These were, in fact, all expert swimmers, and they plunged and floated and swam around like very tadpoles, while they looked like the nymphs of ancient story, save that those nymphs did not wear Turkish trousers and sailor shirts. The Misses Bennett carried the palm for daring and dexterity. They jumped off of high places and dived down so far out of sight that the reporter thought for a moment that the Franklin search party would be obliged to look them up; but finally they came to the top spluttering and spouting like baby whales. Then they lay on their backs and floated, laughing and talking and enjoying themselves thoroughly. In fact, every one in the tank laughed, the water seemed to have such an exhilarating effect. Any one who uses his bathtub full of water will recall the sensation that makes him gurgle in his tub. So impressed were the lookers on with the advantages of being able to swim that a class of eleven young ladies was formed on the spot. "You see," said Miss Kate Bennett, "that I am as much at home in the water as upon the land; indeed, more so, for here I hop, skip and jump about, while I simply walk quietly along on land," and with that she slapped the water with her right hand, then with her left, disappeared, and in a moment came up at the other end of the tank between two blonde bathers, who gave little shrieks of surprise and darted out of her way.

One of the prettiest sights during the exhibition was the swimming of a four-year-old little girl whom they called "Birdie," but whom they might, with greater propriety, have called "Fishy." She could swim with the best of them. "Come, Birdie, show the ladies how you can dive," said Miss Bennett, and, without any coaxing, the little thing mounted the railing, clasped her tiny hands over her curly head, and—

In she plunged boldly,
No matter how coldly
The leaden tank looked.

Down went the little head, up went the little heels, then flip flap went the little arms and away swam the brave child as gracefully and as coolly as a swan in the Central Park Lake. Miss Bennett caught her in her wet arms and squeezed a gallon or two of water from her dripping clothes as she pressed her to her heart in kindly admiration. Again and again the child repeated the feat, each time laughing and shouting in the greatness of her enjoyment. Then the Misses Bennett gave a few fancy touches, the twenty-five nymphs came dripping from the tank, and the day's sport was done.

A YOUTHFUL MANAGER.

Harry Clark, fifteen years old, who was arrested on Monday night for running a theatre without a license in Lexington avenue, between Eighty-fifth and Eighty-sixth streets, was arraigned yesterday before Judge Kasmire in the Harlem Police Court. Clark is a son of H. G. Clark, manager of the Union Square traveling combination. In company with a number of young companions he rigged up a deserted stable in Yorkville and opened a variety performance on Monday night. He charged five cents admission to the parquet and dress circle and ten cents for a private box. Officer Thomas McGuire, of Captain Robbins' staff, obtained free admission of the doorkeeper, advanced to the footlights and demanded of Clark, who was on the stage, a glimpse of his license. Clark, being unable to comply, was lifted over the footlights and escorted to the Eighty-eighth street police station. No other arrests were made. The prisoner remained in confinement until yesterday afternoon, when his mother, a fine-looking lady, appeared in great distress before Judge Kasmire and informed him she had been unable to procure a bondsman.

"But he is only a boy, Your Honor," added the lady, "and did not know any better."

"The law presumes all persons to be familiar with its requirements," was the reply.

"But Judge, I'm a great deal older than Henry, and am as ignorant in the matter as he is."

The Judge glanced a moment at the petitioner and then sent for James W. Graff, a well known resident of Harlem, who was in court.

"Mr. Graff, what shall we do in this case?"

"Well, Your Honor," replied Graff, who bears the title of "Everybody's Friend," "I will go security for this young man if you desire it."

"That's the idea exactly," smilingly answered the Judge.

Mrs. Clark, on hearing Graff's liberal offer, thanked that gentleman and then fell weeping on her son's neck. Mother and son soon after left the court room.

A PRECIOUS PAIR.

James Kelly and Daniel Duffy sauntered down Third avenue with no apparent motive yesterday, and Detectives Clark and Smith followed. In passing the store of Edward Byer, at No. 2,286, Duffy quietly slipped a roll of stockings into his pocket and passed on. The officers stopped them, when Duffy drew a razor and Kelly displayed a large meat knife. The detectives in turn invited the pair to examine a revolver of the latest pattern, and when that failed laid the two thieves on the sidewalk. In the Harlem Police Court the prisoners acted in an obstreperous manner and evinced a disposition to quarrel with the magistrate, clerks and court officers. Duffy remarked "that he had never done nuffin." Judge Kasmire committed the pair for trial, each in default of $500 bail.

FELONIOUS ASSAULTS.

John Mulligan and John O'Neil, deck hands employed on the steamer State of New York, plying on Long Island Sound, were brought before Judge Morgan, at the Tombs Court, yesterday, charged with feloniously assaulting at a game of cards William Powell and William Thompson, both colored employes on the steamer. The result was that both the colored men were badly wounded. Powell was cut in the neck and face in a most painful manner. Thompson's wounds were in the arm and breast, the latter being of a serious character. The injured men were sent to the Chambers Street Hospital.

Judge Morgan fixed bail in the case of O'Neil in $2,000 for stabbing Powell. He committed Mulligan without bail to await the result of Thompson's injuries.

A LANDLORD'S RESPONSIBILITY.

Coroner Flanagan yesterday held an inquest in the case of William Atkinson, fifteen months old, who died from injuries received by falling through an open space in the balusters of the second floor at No. 656 Second avenue, the 6th inst. The jury determined "That deceased came to his death by injuries received by falling through an open space in the balusters of second floor of No. 656 Second avenue, and we hold Mr. Diehl, the landlord of said house, criminally responsible for the death of said child."

Diehl was accordingly taken into custody. Subsequently John Klinger, of No. 262 avenue A, became his surety in $500 bail, and he was released.

DEATH TO DOGS.

The Summer Crusade Inaugurated with a Vengeance.

SCENES AT THE POUND.

Vagrants and Pets Alike Awaiting the Inevitable Hour.

The day of doom has dawned for the dogs of the city, and from now till the end of August every dog living on his own responsibility and not registered on the books of the License Bureau at the City Hall carries his life in his paws. While thousands of guilty and graceless curs will meet with a well deserved and timely end, unwept, unhonored and unsung, there will be many innocent pets, the delight of happy households, refined and educated dogs, moving in good circles of society, who, it is to be feared, will be sacrificed in the general slaughter. The dog catchers and snatchers are abroad, and no dog's liberty is safe. His footsteps will everywhere be dogged by his unscrupulous foes, and, even resting on his master's stoop or on the very threshold of his home, he is still in danger. He is liable at any moment, no matter what his dignity and character as a dog, to be whipped off to the bastile at the foot of Sixteenth street, East River, beyond the reach of habeas corpus and hurried to his fate without the consolation of being recognized by anybody. Though the small boy is no longer recognized by the law as an auxiliary in the enterprise of thinning out the canine population of the city, every summer he makes himself useful, nevertheless, to the dog catchers and has his reward in pennies. The dog catcher being compelled to look after his horse and wagon, as well as to look after unmuzzled dogs, is at a disadvantage compared to the small boy whose hands are disengaged and whose eye for a "ki yi" dog is as sharp as a needle. The regularly appointed dog catchers find it to their interest to employ the small boy, as he is not exorbitant in his demands and will cheerfully supply dogs at ten and even five cents apiece. The business this season will be carried out on an extensive and comprehensive scale. The dog catcher will have little more to do than drive to different designated points in his district, and there the small boy will have a supply of dog flesh ready for him to cart away, and thus time will be economized and much money made.

LOADS OF DOGS AT THE POUND.

The first load of dogs brought to the pound yesterday morning was by Richard Mulcahy, who had eighteen white, yellow and mottled mongrels picked up in the Fourth, Sixth, Seventh and Fourteenth wards. Dennis Carroll brought in twenty-nine from the Nineteenth ward; Dan Gillen, forty-three from the Fifth and Eleventh wards; James McLaughlin's deputy, twenty-nine from the Fifteenth and Seventeenth wards; Hermann Brunjes, twenty-seven from the Tenth and Thirteenth wards; James Sharkey, nine from the Eighth, Ninth and Sixteenth wards, making 155 dogs all told, costing, at thirty cents a head, $46 50. At the opening of the Pound last year, on July 3, the number of dogs brought in was 758, one dog catcher, named Brown, alone bringing in 108, for which he received $32 40. It will be noticed that James McLaughlin's deputy, and not himself, brought his load of dogs to the pound.

"I guess he was arrested, and couldn't come," said MacMahon. "He wanted to take a dog off a man's stoop, and there was some objection, and the police were called in."

The dog catchers are not particular what the breed of the animal may be or who it belongs to, so long as it is a dog. Among those that arrived at the Pound in the morning was a picturesque white Spitz, with a muzzle on. The owner came soon after, identified him, paid $3 and carried him away with a feeling of evident joy at the recovery.

CHARACTER OF THE ANIMALS.

The great majority of the animals in the Pound belonged to the "ki yi" breed, which is about the lowest and most disreputable in the canine kingdom. Their very bark is mean and contemptible and their looks are of the most hang-dog kind. Marks of the reckless and vagabond life they led were on most of them; lame knees, mutilated ears, bruised heads, bloody noses and seedy coats of hair. Here and there was a dog of high and ancient lineage, but one that had evidently fallen into disgrace, kept bad company, turned sneak thief and preyed on the community of butchers. Among these was a fine looking black Newfoundland, though the hair on his back here and there was missing, as if it had been scraped off while he was committing a burglary on some butcher's store or slaughter house. Another was a thoroughbred foxhound, dappled gray, with long, drooping ears, fine teeth, and not more than eighteen months old. He, too, looked as if he had led a rakish life, and as if his early education had been sadly neglected. There were several shiny black and tan dogs, a spotted coach dog and a half-breed, reddish colored foxhound, all of which were kept entirely separate from the low caste curs already referred to.

STILL LOOKING FOR HER LOST "LULU."

Miss Weber, the German woman who applied five times the day previous for her missing dog Lulu, turned up again yesterday.

"Ish my dog Lulu found yet any more, blease tell?" she asked of MacMahon, who replied he "didn't know" but he would let her see the stock on hand and judge for herself. She was shown into the prison and brought to where about fifty dogs were congregated on the floor.

"Lulu!" she called out quietly a few times, but as the curs at the very same moment struck up a chorus of yelping and barking she had to elevate her voice to the highest possible pitch and "Lulu!" "Lulu!" reverberated from wall to wall, and, being taken up and repeated by the men and boys standing round, made, along with the dog concert, a deafening noise.

"Come to me, Lulu, and I'll take you," the earnest little woman would exclaim.

"Oh, call for him in Dutch; what does he know about English?" suggested a fellow standing by.

"Dat ish so," she replied, "I vill call for him in Sherman. Lulu! Lulu! komme zu mer ich umme ihn." She thought she had him now sure, but no Lulu responded even to the entreaty conveyed in the dulcet tones of the Teutonic tongue.

The idle fellows standing around suggested to the old lady to climb on top of the fence, where she might have a better view of the animals. So up she went, and, walking excitedly along a plank laid over the top of a row of kennels, she tilted one end up and landed on top of a ki-yi, which must have been almost frightened to death, as he made no outcry. The old lady was promptly extricated, and departed, saying that she would let two days elapse before she came again.

HOW THE DOGS WERE DELIVERED.

The delivery of the dogs at the Pound was a stirring scene. When a loaded wagon drove up it was admitted through a gateway into a small enclosure at the end of the building right on the edge of the river. Then the catcher mounted on the front of the wagon, and, boldly plunging his hand down among the snarling curs, seized one by the neck and dragged him out amid howls of protestation. An assistant to the poundkeeper stood by to take the dog from the catcher and hold him up for the critical inspection of Superintendent MacMahon. One glance from Mac's keen eye reads the pedigree, character and future destiny of that dog and he is forthwith removed to his appropriate lodgings. If he be an unmitigated ki-yi he is relegated to the unclaimable batch whose chances of being redeemed and saved from death by some benevolent heart are as few as the sands on the seashore are many. MacMahon keeps tally of every dog brought in, and after the load is disposed of pays the catcher on the spot, and that worthy at once urges his homely steed forward to other fields and pastures new.

A DOG BREAKS FOR FREEDOM.

In the course of delivering the dogs one of the "yaller" kind, a long-legged Pomeranian, with a dogged expression of countenance, made a bold break for liberty. He was about being transferred from the wagon to the pen when, by a vigorous twist of his body and a sudden snap of his ugly jaws, he disconcerted the catcher, and the next moment was bounding over the pier to the water. In he plunged without hesitation, while the crowd standing round pressed eagerly out to the end of the pier to see the fun. A boat with two daring dog catchers started in pursuit, and the brave "yaller animile" was brought back to captivity and execution.

BITTEN BY A DOG.

One of the catchers while engaged in unloading a wagon was severely bitten by a dog, whose eyeballs glared ominously, and from whose mouth foam fell in flakes. The catcher was a veteran, and coolly took his hand and sucked it, and then without betraying the least agitation cauterized it. Both this man's hands showed traces of numerous bites and applications of caustic, though he was never troubled with anything resembling hydrophobia. An officer from the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals observed one dog brought in that appeared, as he thought, to have the St. Vitus' dance, as its motions were curiously like epilepsy, and painful to look at; so in compassion he shot it and put it out of misery.

DISAPPOINTED SMALL BOYS.

A good many small boys brought dogs to the Pound in the morning, but they were forced to retire, dogs and all. No doubt they will find some enterprising catcher to take them off their hands before the season is over.

There were nine owners of lost dogs at the Pound yesterday morning, two of whom identified their wayward and kidnapped pets, and had them restored on payment of the usual fee. They were chiefly Germans and Frenchmen.

"Some mornings," said MacMahon, "you see funny sights here among women that come lookin' for their poodle dogs, and when they find them get to huggin' and kissin' 'em like mad. A man don't act nothin' like that. He may git his dander up and swear like blazes at having to pay the poundage, but some women will pay a'most any price to get their dogs."

The drowning of the canines will take place to-morrow morning, which will be giving them a wide margin of mercy over the forty-eight hours the law allows them to live after incarceration.

THE CRUSADE IN BROOKLYN.

Brooklyn's new dog ordinance takes effect immediately. It provides that all dogs in the city shall be licensed and wear a licensed tag. No dog shall be permitted to go at large in any street or public place unless securely muzzled. The ordinance also provides that the Mayor shall appoint persons whose duty it shall be to capture all dogs found at large unmuzzled and take them to some place to be designated by the Mayor, where they will be killed, unless redeemed by their owners, on payment of $3, within three days after being captured. The ordinance will not be in force after September 15.

IN SELF-DEFENCE.

Jacob Fischer, of No. 1½ Rivington street, quarrelled with William H. Kegler, of the same residence, on the 11th inst., about the purchase of a horse which the latter had made against the wishes of the former. They had been fast friends, Fischer being regarded in the light of a guardian to Kegler. The quarrel began in the house and was continued on the sidewalk, where Fischer assaulted Kegler, and the latter struck Fischer a blow with his clenched fist in the face, knocking him down. His head struck on the sidewalk, rendering him unconscious. He died from his injuries the following day. The jury found that "deceased came to his death by compression of the brain, due to fracture of the skull, the result of his falling from a blow or blows at the hands of William H. Kegler, his head coming in contact with the sidewalk, and we believe that William H. Kegler, in striking said blow or blows, did it in self-defence and with no intent to kill." Kegler was then released upon furnishing $500 to await the action of the Grand Jury.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

The Stock Market Fairly Active and Feverish.

GOLD 100 5-8 A 100 3-4.

Government Bonds Strong, States Dull and Railroads Weak.

MONEY ON CALL EASY AT 2 A 3 PER CENT.

WALL STREET,
TUESDAY, June 18—6 P. M.

Lake Shore, which has proved to be the little leaven which has leavened the whole mass of stocks, active and inactive, with the elements of its own weakness, was once more, this morning, the chief recipient of speculative attention. Figures were again lower, the price falling to 59½ early in the day. How much lower it might have fallen, had it not been for the unintended support lent by Mr. Sage's "puts," is a question not easy to answer. It is well known that "privileges" (hardly to be regarded in this light by the maker) have been issued to an extensive amount, and at much higher prices, and it is to the tempting profits offered by these that much of the purchasing demand for Lake Shore is due. It is believed, however, that most of these high-figured blunders of Mr. Sage will expire within a day or two, when it is probable that diminished dealings in the stock will be the result. Regarded in a general way the market, though feverish, was steadier to-day, particularly in the case of the St. Pauls and Northwesterns, which showed some inclination to resist the intimidation of Lake Shore and act upon their own hook. This was noticeably the case with Northwest, which was dealt in after midday—less dividend of 3 per cent on common and 3½ per cent on preferred stock—at prices which developed much strength and pointed to still better figures. Western Union was provokingly weak and the more so that there were unusual reasons for its being especially strong, since, if report is to be credited, the Benedict suit which sought to disrupt the union with the Atlantic and Pacific Company has been decided in favor of Western Union, thereby preventing a renewal of the competition which formerly existed and was again probable in case of a division of interest between the two concerns. Ill fated Ohio and Mississippi has again sunk back into a state of despondency and low figures. A very important screw turns out to be loose in the reconstruction scheme and the committee seem to be unable to tighten it. The temporary creditors of the road fail to see any buoyancy in the floating debt, and threaten to scuttle the whole concern unless their demands are paid in cash. This the road is unable to do, and hence the typical apple cart, which it was supposed the plan of reconstruction had put in running order, is in danger of a fresh upset. As happened yesterday the main interest of the session attached to Lake Shore, though Western Union was a strong bidder in the same direction. There are but few speculators who venture to sell the latter property short, while the whole street seems to be ranged upon the bear side in respect to the former, as was evidenced by the fact that Lake Shore shares were scarce for delivery, and even commanded a bonus of from $1 to $2 per hundred. The list was all higher at the close, and a better feeling prevailed.

COMMERCIAL.

LONDON, June 18, 1878.

The Mark Lane Express, in its review of the corn trade during the past week, says:—"Scarcely any improvement has taken place in the weather for the past week. Showers have been so frequent that the intervals of warmth and sunshine have been too brief to dry the saturated soil upon which the standing crops are all suffering from the continued wet and cold. With cold winds, heavy rain and occasional night frosts, the cereals have made very little progress of late on any soil, barleys having suffered considerably, and it is admitted on all hands that the excessive humidity of the past six weeks has seriously compromised the agricultural prospects. Until within the last few days the growing crops in Scotland did not suffer to the same extent as in England. Now, however, matters have changed for the worse. Floods have occurred in many of the lowland districts, doing vast damage. In short, dry, sunny weather is wanted now more than ever throughout the Kingdom if the luxuriant crops of grass and clover are to be secured in anything like good order.

Deprived by the holidays of the principal market day, the London corn trade has been very quiet. The transactions have been mainly retail. Continuance of rain and consequent anxiety with regard to the prospects of the home crop have caused holders of wheat to make some show of firmness; but any elements of strength which, under ordinary circumstances, would have been apparent, have been totally eliminated from the trade by exceedingly heavy arrivals from abroad, and values have consequently evinced a declining tendency. Indeed all classes of foreign wheat have only been salable at a reduction of fully 1s. on the fortnight; nor has the concession attracted any improvement in demand, as buyers do not appear to think the lowest point is yet touched, and consequently have abstained from purchasing except in such quantities as immediate needs dictated. The necessity of rapidly clearing grain laden ships in port has therefore caused most of the corn to be put in granaries, which are rapidly filling up. The augmentation of stocks will probably be considerable, as enormous shipments of wheat and maize from America are flooding the market just at a time when buyers seem least disposed to operate. Political influences having ceased to affect trade, an index as to the future course of prices must be looked for in the legitimate action of supply and demand, and, although at the moment great depression prevails and values may possibly recede yet further, increased activity and a healthier trade, no doubt at a low range of values, may be confidently expected when the rule of American shipments is received and peace settled. With large arrivals at ports of call, the floating cargo trade for wheat has been dull at about 1s. decline. Maize has given way fully 6d. Barley has been fairly steady."

THE JUVENILE WRECKERS.

Four more thoroughly scared small boys than the lads who were caught placing stones on the track of the Greenwich street elevated road have rarely been seen in the Tombs. They stood at the bar yesterday morning shivering and crying. One of them, after crying until his eyes were swollen to twice their natural size, suddenly ceased, and vigorously rubbing them with his coat sleeve, said:—"What's de use; if were goin' to be hung, what's de use of cryin'?"

When arraigned at the bar three only were present—namely, Dougal Thompson, aged ten; Henry Barger, aged ten, and Henry Alberts, aged eleven—the fourth not having at that time been arrested.

Judge Morgan succeeded in getting from them their names and the fact that they frequently played in Greenwich street around the elevated railroad. "Why did you put these stones on the track?" asked the Judge, holding up the stones which were in evidence, and which were about the size of an ordinary pavement stone.

"We didn't do it, Judge," stammered the older; "it was Schultzy." "Yes, it was Schultzy," echoed the other lads, apparently much relieved. "He did it. We only climbed on the road. We didn't know nothin' about it."

Further examination revealed nothing more. The lads persisted in laying the blame on "Schultzy," whose name was found to be William Schultz, his age twelve.

The further hearing was then adjourned until afternoon. When the case was again called up Counsellor Price, who in the meantime had been retained by the parents of the prisoners, appeared at the bar and announced that he would waive examination and go to trial in the Court of Special Sessions. He asked that bail be fixed in a low sum. The Court placed bail at $600, and for two of the boys sureties at once came forward. The other two were then sent to the boys' prison. Schultz strenuously denied having put the stones on the track, saying that he didn't know who did it.

FELL FROM THE ELEVATED TRACK.

James W. Peel, twenty-one years old, of No. 366 Ninth avenue, a cutter in a tailoring establishment, attempted to get aboard of Conductor Ford's train on the New York Elevated Railroad at half-past seven yesterday morning at the Thirtieth street station. The conductor had signalled the engineer to go ahead, leaving many passengers at the depot. He claims that he could not carry any more; that he had just informed the passengers left at the depot of this fact when Peel jumped upon the moving train. The conductor attempted to help him over the iron gate. When the train had moved about twenty-five feet from the depot Peel fell upon the track and thence to the sidewalk. He was picked up and taken to a drug store, his wounds were dressed and he was thence taken to his home on Ninth avenue. The physician being summoned, the unfortunate man was ordered to be taken to Roosevelt Hospital, on Fifty-ninth street. At the hospital it was found that both his arms were fractured in two places, and that he had sustained a severe contusion across the eyes and nose. Last evening it was thought he would not recover from his injuries. He is unmarried, his father is in Cuba and his mother is blind.

BROOKLYN STEAM TRANSIT.

The Brooklyn Steam Transit Company yesterday laid about two miles of railroad track from the city line along the route of the old Turnpike road toward Coney Island. The new track runs parallel with the horse car route of the Smith Street and Coney Island Company. It is of narrow gauge and extends from the Bay Ridge branch of the Manhattan Beach line to the toll gate. The residents along the route are highly indignant against the company and are bitterly opposed to having a steam road operated on that route. They claim that the steam transit company have absolutely no right to the land, the fee of which is invested in the adjoining owners. The property owners interested declare their intention of bringing the matter before the courts for adjudication. The charter of the company requires that they shall have at least one mile of their road constructed before July 4, and it is claimed that the hurried work on Coney Island turnpike is intended to keep within the provisions of their charter, that it may not lapse. The officers of the company deny that their purpose is merely to guard their charter rights, and they contend that they are in earnest in their work of road construction, and will have their elevated railway built in Fulton street, Brooklyn, much sooner than people generally imagine.

AN OBJECT OF CHARITY.

THE LINCOLN TRAGEDY.

An Interview with Mr. Benn Pitman.

THE STENOGRAPHER'S STORY

Startling Details of the Secret Trial.

A FRIEND OF WILKES BOOTH SPEAKS.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

CINCINNATI, Ohio, June 18, 1878.

Benn Pitman, the well known phonographer, of this city, was interviewed to-day as to his personal knowledge concerning the trial and execution of Mrs. Surratt for the assassination of Abraham Lincoln. His attention was first called to the statement of Mr. John T. Ford, the theatrical manager, relative to the innocence of Mrs. Surratt, and, in answer to the HERALD correspondent's questions, Mr. Pitman communicated the following information. He said that he was the official reporter for the United States government in the assassination trial, the Sons of Liberty investigation and the Congressional inquiries into the New Orleans and Memphis riots, and subsequently of the Ku Klux trials, all of which gave him a peculiar insight into the yet unwritten history of those momentous events. "I have no doubt," said Mr. Pitman, "of the correctness of Mr. Ford's statement of Mrs. Surratt's innocence; the grave blunders which grew out of the assassination trial were due to the theory Mr. Stanton entertained, that Booth was the active instrument in a great conspiracy, the dictatory power of which was the rebel government. Mrs. Surratt was hanged for complicity in the assassination plot, of which she was entirely ignorant, and poor Spangler was sent to the Dry Tortugas because a long rope was found in his carpet sack, with which it was supposed Mr. Lincoln was to be bound, when in fact no other use was to be made of it than the catching of crabs. Spangler had simply "borrowed" the rope from Ford's Theatre for that purpose.

MRS. SURRATT NOT GUILTY.

It was not until after my return from Washington, with all the testimony of the 450 witnesses at the trial and my compilation in narrative form of the facts testified to by those witnesses that I came to the conviction that Mrs. Surratt, though aware of previous plots to abduct the President and take him to Richmond, was entirely uninformed of the sudden resolve of Booth to kill him. The only direct testimony that seemed to implicate her was that of the drunken, unreliable witness, Lloyd, who kept the tavern at Surrattsville. Her previous life and history, the testimony of those who knew her well, and Catholic priests of known probity and honor, all went to show her utter incapacity to engage in so diabolical a plot.

WHAT THE TESTIMONY SHOWED.

The testimony went to show that the assassination of Lincoln was a sudden resolution of Booth on finding that the President was to visit the theatre that night, and the hasty conspiracy hatched up with Payne, Atzerodt and Herold, was confined exclusively to their knowledge and participation. The fact is that Mr. Stanton, Judge Advocate Holt, Bingham and Burnett and other officers of the government engaged in the prosecution were somewhat unbalanced by the imagined greatness of a conspiracy which did not exist. Nothing but such a belief would justify the treatment to which the prisoners were subjected.

A SECRET TRIAL.

The trial for the first two weeks was conducted in secret, and the prisoners—Herold, Payne, Atzerodt and I think two others—were masked in a close fitting helmet-like white cap which just left a breathing hole for the mouth and nostrils. They were besides manacled at the wrists and ankles, and to the latter were attached a heavy ball and chain. Mrs. Surratt was not thus masked, but she was manacled at the feet throughout the trial. The masks were removed when the trial became public, after the expiration of two weeks, when admission was obtained to the Court only by the personal sanction of General Hunter by card.

STANTON A DESPOT.

CORRESPONDENT—Do you think the government sanctioned this severity toward the prisoners?

Mr. PITTMAN—Mr. Stanton was the government at that time. He was a man for whom I still entertain a profound admiration; a man of the Cromwell type, strong but unfeeling, and who to obtain a desired end would in an emergency play despot—strangely out of place under a republican form of government. For instance, what should be more sacred than the private correspondence of a citizen committed to the public mails, yet by Mr. Stanton's orders I assisted to open hundreds of letters that passed through the General Post Office at Washington, just after the assassination, when every letter addressed to Canada was thus stopped. Mr. Stanton's justification was that the agents of Jefferson Davis who were then in Canada were the instigators of the assassination plot. The letters opened to detect these supposed machinations led to very curious results in revealing other matters not directly sought for, and many a brilliant career of army officer and politician was stultified by these revelations, which they little suspected would ever be seen by the powerful War Minister.

AN INNOCENT MATRON HANGED.

The recommendation to mercy for Mrs. Surratt, signed by members of the Court in secret session, Andrew Johnson affirmed he never saw, and the efforts of Miss Anna E. Surratt to see President Johnson in behalf of her unfortunate mother were somehow cruelly frustrated. An innocent matron was hanged, and history is dumb as to who is responsible for the irreparable wrong. Frantic efforts were made to connect John Surratt with the assassination plot; but, fortunately for him, they were unsuccessful.

ONE OF WILKES BOOTH'S FRIENDS ON THE POINTS OF MANAGER FORD'S STATEMENT—A STARTLING OMEN OF THE TRAGEDY IN THE CONDUCT OF THE ACTOR—THE CONSPIRATORS—THE SOUTH INNOCENT.

Apropos of the recent article concerning the assassination of President Lincoln which the HERALD quoted on Sunday from the Baltimore Gazette, the Boston Globe of Monday says:—

As Colonel Thomas E. Richardson, the well known and popular dramatic agent of this city, and John Wilkes Booth were on terms of the utmost intimacy, a Globe reporter was despatched to interview him, and the following colloquy ensued:—

"In your opinion, Colonel Richardson, was John Wilkes Booth trained from earliest infancy to regard Brutus as a god and assassination as an act of justice under circumstances similar to those recorded by Shakespeare in 'Julius Cæsar'?"

"No, most emphatically, no. The very idea is preposterous. His training from earliest infancy was such as to inspire in him the kindliest sentiments and the loftiest motives. A man of his intellect, inherited genius and acquired abilities would never put such an interpretation upon the work of the prince of dramatists."

"In this connection how long had you known Wilkes Booth previous to the assassination?"

"I had known him for six years. I met him first in St. Louis. Previous to this I had met his brother, Edwin, when he was playing an engagement there."

THE SOUTH INNOCENT OF THE ASSASSINATION.

"Do you think the South had anything to do with inciting him to assassinate President Lincoln?"

"No, I do not. No such stigma can be placed upon the South for inciting so cowardly a murder. No Southern man or Southern woman would commend or applaud such an act, even if they were not in sympathy with the administration."

"Did Wilkes Booth ever intimate to you that he was in sympathy with the South?"

"He never did. I was with him in Washington for three months previous to the assassination and conversed with him on all topics, but I never heard him lisp a word in that respect. I always supposed he was in sympathy with Mr. Lincoln, by whom he was very much liked, and he spoke very highly of Mr. Lincoln as a good man. Some three weeks previous to the assassination, when Governor Morton, of Indianapolis, received the flags that were captured in the Shenandoah Valley by the Indiana troops, Wilkes Booth was present, and as Mr. Lincoln drove down Pennsylvania avenue there was an immense crowd gathered in front of the National Hotel, where the reception was to take place. When Mr. Lincoln's carriage drove up to the ladies' entrance the officers divided the crowd so that the President could pass, and thence through the parlor to the veranda, where speeches were to be made by Governor Morton, President Lincoln and others. As the surging crowd pressed back, I noticed that Wilkes Booth tried with the most determined and frantic efforts to force his way to the President's carriage, but so great was the pressure that he was unable to reach the vehicle. With a look of disappointment o'ershading his handsome face he fell back into the crowded ranks of curious gazers.

A TRAGIC TABLEAU.

"While this action of his was transpiring I was standing about thirty or forty feet away, leaning on a lamppost, where I could hear the speeches. Wilkes Booth, or 'Jack,' as he was called by his familiar friends, gradually worked his way up to where I was standing, placed his hand upon the post against which I was leaning, and after the usual courtesies, I inquired:—'Jack, have you come to hear the great Lincoln speak?' 'Yes, he replied, 'Can we hear well from here? I told I thought it was the best place, not only to hear the speakers but to see them. He made no answer, but appeared to be much excited. His pale and pallid face was whiter than usual, while the nervous twitching of his facial muscles and the strange, wild gleam in his eyes bespoke that some more than ordinary circumstance was harassing his mind. While he was standing by the post a lady of medium height and dignified carriage, clothed in dark raiment and wearing a jockey hat graced with a blue veil which completely covered it and concealed her features, came up and said something to him, but I was unable to catch just what she said. With a quick, nervous, deprecatory motion of his hands he waved her off, saying 'No! no! not now! Be quiet. I will see you shortly. Go away now, go away! I will let you know, I will let you know.' Whereupon the woman left. Of course I knew not what this strange conduct meant, and before I had time to arrive at any satisfactory conclusion as to his strange actions Mr. Lincoln stepped upon the veranda, the crowd cheered, and my thoughts were for the time being distracted from the subject. I remarked to Mr. Booth, 'There is the great and good man,' and he rejoined, 'Yes, I hope he will make us a good speech.' 'Don't you think Mr. Lincoln looks pale and haggard and much worn?' I queried. 'Yes, he does,' replied Booth.

AN ALARMING MANIFESTATION.

"I noticed, after that remark, that Booth looked at the President with a fixed, intense gaze, and with one of the most demoniacal expressions I have ever seen on the face of mortal on or off the stage. Why, his face was the very embodiment of tragedy, every feature being distorted with devilish malignity. He stood there with that fearful and horrible expression on his countenance for some five minutes, the spectators near by gazing with wonder upon the man. I thought he was merely trying to impress upon the crowd the fact that he was an actor, and was merely giving a free exhibition of the ease with which he could transform his beautiful face into that of a demon. Alarmed at this surprising manifestation, I accosted him once or twice, but he did not seem to hear me and did not answer me. I stepped aside for a short time and on returning found him still leaning against the lamppost in a tragic attitude and with the same tragic expression on his face. Shortly after, the flags were delivered, the speeches ended and Mr. Lincoln came down to his carriage, the police again separating the crowd and Booth trying to follow the carriage, but failing in his attempt. I think this was the day on which the abduction of the President was to have been made; but the conspirators' plans were foiled. The next day I met Booth and chatted with him, as was the case every day up to the time of the assassination. I was then in the Pennsylvania Central Railroad, under the National Hotel, and Booth used to drop in there every day. I also met him outside of the office with Mr. A. R. Cazauran, an author, a journalist and linguist, who was then attached to Colonel Forney's paper, afterward on the Brooklyn Eagle, and now a translator of the foreign plays produced at the Union Square Theatre in New York. At that time Mr. Cazauran was trying to get Booth to take part in a play he had written, based on events in the war; but Booth said he had gone into the oil business and did not intend to go on the stage again, as he expected to realize a fortune in his new venture.

THE HISTORIC NIGHT.

"On the night of the assassination Mr. Cazauran and myself were standing in front of the Metropolitan Hotel at about eight o'clock, when Mr. Booth came along, and Mr. Cazauran again urged him to take part in his play. 'Cazauran, dear boy,' said Mr. Booth, 'I wouldn't touch theatricals again with a forty-foot pole. I am now in the oil business.' He then asked Mr. Cazauran and myself to accompany him to Ford's Theatre to see Laura Keene play. I told him I didn't care to go. 'Oh,' said he, 'you had better go. President Lincoln, Secretary Seward, General Grant and, in fact, all of the Cabinet are to be there to-night.' I still refused, and afterward learned that Mr. Cazauran went with him to the theatre. Mr. Cazauran was the first person in the theatre who exclaimed, 'John Wilkes Booth has shot the President!' That is the last time I ever saw Wilkes Booth. Had I gone to the theatre with him, it is very likely that I would have been arrested as one of the conspirators, for I was with him every day."

THE CONSPIRATORS.

"Do you think," inquired the interviewer, "that Wilkes Booth ever gave the details of the plot to assassinate the President to any person, or that any other persons were privy to his plans before he had fully conceived the idea of assassination?"

"No, I don't believe he gave the details of his plans to any person except Payne, who seems to have been his right hand man. The idea that any of the Booth family had anything to do with the arrangements for the assassination is simply preposterous. I knew Junius Brutus Booth, Sr., and I know Edwin Booth personally, and I must say that these two, with John Wilkes Booth, have always been the very personification of all that is great, good and noble in man. Junius Brutus Booth, Jr., I have met several times, but I do not know him personally. I remember that once Wilkes Booth took me to a room in the Pennsylvania House, where these conspirators met, and introduced me to them as some of his friends living down in the lower counties, where he was accustomed to fish and hunt. Though some of them were very rough and brutal looking, the same terms cannot be applied to J. Wilkes Booth, for he was always a kind hearted man, and won many friends by his uniform course of manly action. I have the highest regard for his brother, Edwin Booth, who is a kind father, a loving husband and a perfect gentleman. Manager Ford is a man of the strictest integrity and honor, and one of the ablest managers we have in this country."

PROMPTED BY INSANITY.

"What cause do you assign, Colonel Richardson, for Mr. Booth's assassinating the President?"

"I think it was some sudden freak of his mind, which must have been in a disordered condition at the time of the murder."

"And, now, what, in your opinion, as a theatrical manager, is the 'true inwardness' of the interview with Manager Ford?"

"It is simply an advertising dodge, gotten up to prepare the public for the production of a play written by some lady or gentleman, the subject matter of which will be the assassination of President Lincoln. I must confess that I think the statement of Manager Ford very ill-timed and injudicious, and that these sad events of the past should be left in the grave in which they have been buried."

ARRESTED BEFORE A JUDGE.

AN EPISODE OF THE COOPER-MARSHALL DOWER SUIT.

The reference in the Cooper-Marshall dower case was proceeding yesterday before Judge Barbour, when a deputy sheriff appeared and arrested Mrs. Cooper's lawyer, Elisha Caldwell. It will be remembered that Mrs. Cooper claims to have been the wife of the late Mr. Marshall, the well known stage proprietor, and that the claim is resisted by the heirs. The ground on which the heirs resist Mrs. Cooper's claim is that the divorce which she obtained from her former husband was procured by fraud, and that, therefore, her subsequent marriage with Mr. Marshall was invalid. On this presentation of the case the Court ordered Judge Barbour to take evidence as to the true nature of the divorce which Mrs. Marshall alleges she obtained.

The unusual circumstances attending Mr. Caldwell's arrest caused rumors to be circulated yesterday to the effect that the arrest arose out of transactions in the pending suit; but this rumor proved on investigation to be wholly unfounded.

A HERALD reporter called last evening at the residence of Mr. Britton, at whose instance the arrest was made, to ascertain the facts in relation to the unlooked for arrest of the lawyer. Mr. Britton stated that the action taken at his instance had no connection whatever with the Cooper-Marshall case, but arose from the seizure of furniture and the foreclosure of a mortgage, in which Mr. Caldwell and his mother-in-law were interested. "The fact is," continued Mr. Britton, "I leased the house No. 450 Lexington avenue and the furniture therein contained from Mr. Cooper for one year, commencing May 1, 1877, but owing to the foreclosure of a mortgage I was dispossessed on the 24th of May. The mortgage on the house was foreclosed by a Mr. Beach, and Mr. Caldwell, for some reason to me unknown, suddenly foreclosed a mortgage on the furniture of the house on a chattel mortgage, which he alleges he held on the furniture previous to my entry into possession, but which was not filed for some time after the date of my lease. Mr. Beach served me with notice of the foreclosure of the mortgage on the premises, and notified me that in future all rent should be paid to him, and it was arranged that I should continue in undisturbed possession. It seems, however, that the sale of the premises did not bring enough to cover the mortgage, and Mr. Caldwell foreclosed a chattel mortgage, which he claims to have held on the furniture, and without warning to me removed the furniture from the house, thereby causing me great inconvenience. In fact my family were obliged to sleep on the floor, all the furniture having been carried away. I am inclined to think that the whole affair was a transaction merely intended to prevent the furniture being levied upon to pay the deficit in the mortgage on the house, as the chattel mortgage, I understand, is held by Mr. Caldwell's wife. My action is brought to recover damages for the annoyance to which I have been subjected. I have laid my damages at $1,750, and several of my lawyer friends are of opinion that I should have laid them at $10,000 at least. I have no knowledge of Mr. Caldwell's arrest in court. The order of arrest has been in the hands of the Sheriff for several days, and I suppose it was finally executed in view of Mr. Caldwell's failure to give bonds, but the matter has nothing whatever to do with any divorce suit."

"SAVE MY HUSBAND FIRST."

Mrs. Emily Mulligan, the wife of Patrick Mulligan, captain of the ice barge Jersey, lying in the North River, at the foot of Perry street, while walking on the upper deck of the barge, last night, lost her balance and fell overboard. Her husband immediately jumped into the river and tried to save his wife, but, being unable to swim, he, together with his wife, would undoubtedly have been drowned had not Roundsman Brush and Officer Conklin, of the Ninth precinct, heard their cries and hurried to their rescue. As the officers were about to grasp hold of Mrs. Mulligan she cried, "Don't save me; save my husband first!" Both were rescued and cared for.

STOLEN JEWELS.

The Chief of the Jersey City Police yesterday received a cablegram from Liverpool informing him that Miss Brush, a passenger on the Cunard steamer Scythia, had been robbed of jewelry and diamonds, her loss aggregating $5,000. The lady was on deck bidding some friends good by, when the thief entered her stateroom and secured the valuables. The steamer sailed from Jersey City on the 5th inst.

OBITUARY.

ROBERT CARRUTHERS, JOURNALIST.

Dr. Robert Carruthers, the editor and proprietor of the Inverness Courier, died at his residence at Inverness on May 31, in his seventy-ninth year. The Doctor went to Inverness in 1828 to assist in editing the Inverness Courier, then in its infancy. A few years afterward he became sole editor and proprietor, and since then his name has been well connected with the literature of Scotland. In 1871 the honor of LL. D. was conferred on Mr Carruthers, and shortly thereafter he was entertained to dinner by his townsmen, and a bust of his was placed in the Town Hall. Professor Macpherson, in speaking of the journalist, mentioned that he was not only known as the editor of the Inverness Courier, but as the editor of the best rendered edition of Pope's poems, and in various other works of literature. The deceased Doctor was one of the most respected citizens of Inverness, and during his long career he invariably kept himself aloof from any civil or local squabbles. The death of Dr. Carruthers has caused a great blank in the comparatively limited Liberal circles of Inverness and its vicinity. His unexpected death did not occur without note or comment in the literary circles of London, which, until he became too weak to travel, he used to visit almost annually. Some of his most intimate friends, such as the late Mr. Shirley Brooks, died before him. One of his latest London letters was to an acquaintance who knew him well in Scotland. The last passage of it is worth quoting from the prediction in it, so mingled as it is with cheerfulness:—"I fear that in my case the plough is getting near the end of the furrow, as Sir Walter expresses it. The eyes and the mind hold out well; but weak limbs, a weak stomach and rheumatism, always worse at night, feelingly remind me that I am on the borders of four score. But how thankful should I be that I can still enjoy my books and papers."

TERENCE J. QUINN, MEMBER OF CONGRESS.

Terence J. Quinn, member of Congress from the Albany district of this State, died at his residence in that city yesterday morning. Mr. Quinn contracted a severe cold in Washington, nearly two months ago, and his illness was aggravated by his active labors in the political campaign last winter when his business partner was running for Mayor of Albany. Mr. Quinn was the senior member of the brewing and malting firm of Quinn & Nolan, Albany. He was born at Albany in 1836, and held the office of Alderman for several terms in the State capital. He served during the war with the Twenty-fifth Albany regiment, holding the rank of second lieutenant. In 1873 he was elected to the Legislature, and his popularity in that body secured for him the nomination for Congress in 1876, when he was elected by 1,000 majority over his republican competitor, Hamilton Harris, son of the well known United States Senator, Ira Harris. He was twice married, and leaves a widow and family. Mr. Quinn was a strong Irish nationalist, and during the Fenian excitement took a very active part in organizing the Canadian movement which collapsed in 1866.

SIR J. W. AWDRY.

Sir John Wither Awdry, who died at his seat, Notton House, Chippenham, England, June 2, was born at Swindon, Wilts, in 1795, and was educated at Winchester and Christ Church, Oxford, and was afterward Fellow of Oriel College. He was called to the Bar of the Middle Temple in 1822, and was for some years a Puisne Judge at Bombay and Commissioner of the Insolvent Debtors' Court there. He was Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Judicature in Bombay from 1839 to 1842, when he resigned. Sir John, who was one of the Commissioners of Oxford University, was a justice of the peace and deputy lieutenant for Wilts, received the honor of knighthood by patent on his elevation to the Bench in 1830 and received the honorary degree of D.C.L. from Oxford in 1844. He married first, in 1830, the eldest daughter of the Rev. Jeremiah Awdry, of Felsted, Essex, and second, in 1889, the second daughter of the Bishop (Carr) of Bombay.

JAMES GILL.

Mr. James Gill, one of the oldest residents of the Sixth ward, and an active local politician, died yesterday after a long and painful illness. Mr. Gill was born on August 15, 1822, in the parish of Kenmare, county Kerry, Ireland. In his youth he was a personal friend and zealous co-worker with Daniel O'Connell, whom he aided in organizing several repeal associations. On the death of O'Connell he became an advanced Irish nationalist, and in 1857 assisted in organizing the Phœnix Society in his locality. He was betrayed by the informer Sullivan and the British government issued a warrant for his arrest, but he escaped and, with his family, emigrated to this city and settled in the Sixth ward, where he lived ever since. His funeral will take place to-day from No. 470 Pearl street.

FRANCISCO AGUDELO.

Francisco Agudelo, a distinguished Colombian, died at his home in Honda on the 18th of May of apoplexy. Mr. Agudelo has held many important positions. He was Collector of Customs at Santa Marta, Secretary of Foreign Relations in the Cabinet of President Mosquera, Governor of the Province of Barranquilla, Consul resident at New York and Secretary of Legation at Washington. Mr. Agudelo was probably best known in New York as a writer, having for a long time been connected with Las Novedades, and during the Centennial was the special correspondent of that paper. His acquaintance in New York was extensive, and his early death will be mourned by many friends.

CHARLES B. GOODRICH.

Charles B. Goodrich, LL. D., for many years one of the most prominent lawyers of Boston, died on Monday, aged seventy-five years.

JAMES ARMSTRONG.

James Armstrong, ex-Mayor of Ogdensburg, N. Y., died yesterday morning.

ERNEST BEYER.

Ernest Beyer, of Cleves, Germany, one of the leading cotton buyers of the United States, died at Mobile, Ala., yesterday morning, of apoplexy.

PRESIDENT REDFIELD INDICTED.

The United States Grand Jury, which was yesterday discharged by Judge Benedict, handed up an indictment against Luther Redfield, ex-president of the Tarrytown Bank. In the forty-nine counts of the indictment he is charged with embezzling, abstracting and disposing of moneys and funds of the bank

MARITIME MISCELLANY.

Capt James Craig, of the steamer Devonia (Br), from Glasgow, has our thanks for special meteorological observations made in connection with the HERALD weather service.

BARK SERENA (Br), Venus, at San Francisco June 10 from Newcastle, NSW, reports—In lat 38 50 N, lon 168 W, encountered a hurricane beginning at SSE and ending at W by N, lasting 48 hours and blowing heavily for four days; the vessel was thrown on her beam ends, shifted cargo, swept decks and cut away fore and main topmasts, losing all gear, &c., which eased the vessel considerably; spare spars broke loose from lashings and smashed the after hatch; lost two boats and stove a third one and had nine feet of water in the hold; vessel finally righted by trimming cargo after the gale abated.

BARK FRISO (Nor), from New York for Copenhagen, at Halifax in distress, reports:—Left New York on the 5th inst, and had fine weather until the 8th; on the morning of the 9th a fresh breeze was blowing, and at 2 AM both royals were taken in; about 3 o'clock, in lat 40 33, lon 66 55, a heavy squall from S struck the ship forward, which carried away the jibboom and head gear and caused the foremast head, foretopmast, maintopmast head and mizzentopmast head to carry away and fall overboard; cleared away wreck and rigged jury mast forward, and concluded to bear up for Halifax as the nearest port, where we arrived the evening of the 13th; will have to discharge part of cargo to get foremast out, make the necessary repairs and proceed.

BRIG LYDIA H COLE, from New York for St Jago (before reported), struck on the reef at the northern end of Turks Island night of May 20, owing to a heavy sea, and soon went to pieces, and all the floating portion of the cargo went adrift. A small portion, in a damaged condition, was saved, and sold for the benefit of all concerned.

SCHR MARY STANDISH, Higgins, from Georgetown for Boston, sprung bowsprit in a squall in the Chesapeake, and put into Baltimore 17th for repairs.

SCHR FRED MERWIN, at Hyannis 15th from Philadelphia, had sails badly damaged in a gale.

SCHR GRACE GIRDLER, before reported put into Arichat and condemned, has been purchased by Capt J A Watt, of Halifax, and others, who have rigged her into a brigantine. She arrived at Halifax 14th inst from Port Hawkesbury, where she was thoroughly caulked and overhauled on the marine railway, and fitted with new spars, sails and rigging. The Grace Girdler is a strongly built vessel of 287 tons, built at Baltimore in 1860, rebuilt in 1875, and formerly hailed from Boston.

BANGOR, June 17—Schr Isabella Jewett, lying at Stickney's coal wharf in Brewer, heeled off last night. She was righted this forenoon.

HALIFAX, June 18—The steamer George Shattuck arrived at this port to-day from St Pierre, having on board eight men of the missing schr Josephine, of Beverly, Mass. The Josephine was wrecked during a fog off St Marys, NF.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 9—Schr Bella, which has heretofore been given up for lost, is all safe at Ounalaska.

SHIPBUILDING—At Thomaston, Me, Mr O'Brien is building a large ship of 2,300 tons, and has another frame on the way of the same size, which will probably be finished this fall.

Lunacy Proceedings Against Miss Harriet Gross.

A NEW WAY TO COLLECT OLD DEBTS.

Liquor Dealers Still Anxious About Their License Deposits.

As already published in the HERALD an order was recently granted by Judge Donohue directing an inquiry into the mental condition of Miss Harriet Gross. Application was made yesterday on her behalf to have this order set aside. Several years ago her father died, leaving her brother, John L. Gross, executor, to distribute the property among the brothers and sisters. She states that some time since her brother, John L. Gross, failed in business; that her sister, Charolette A. Gross, died quite recently; that John L. Gross still retains in his possession the share of Charolette L. Gross in the estate, and that the whole proceeding on the part of John L. Gross and the other original petitioners is to obtain control of her property. It was claimed yesterday on her behalf that the petition is not sustained by a single affidavit or the certificate of any physician, and that the whole trouble arose through her giving to Mr. Moore a power of attorney to take from John C. Shaw $60,000 deposited in his hands. She appends to her application an affidavit of Dr. Lewis R. Sayre, formerly her father's physician and her own physician up to three years ago, in which the latter states that he has recently, at her request, made a careful examination as to her condition. He alleges that she does not exhibit the slightest hereditary taint or symptom of insanity, but that her mental faculties are in a healthy condition. Dr. Leroy M. Gale, formerly a partner of Dr. Sayre and for the last three years her medical advisor, corroborates this statement, as also Dr. Meredith Clymer and Dr. Robert Taylor. They all state that they discover in her no undue prejudice against her relatives. Affidavits of various friends and acquaintances were also submitted, in which the affiants allege that they never discovered in her any evidence of insanity. In answer to the petition of Miss Gross and the affidavits submitted on her behalf it is stated that the parties complained of have no desire to control her money; that the same has been, pursuant to her request, deposited in the United States Trust Company; that she has evinced a violent antipathy to her brothers and sisters, and that there is strong objection on their part to William A. Moore taking charge of her property. Various letters of hers were submitted which, it is stated, were not proper to be read, but required the examination of the Court before determining the question whether lunacy proceedings should be continued or discontinued. Judge Donohue took all the papers for examination.

COLLECTING A CLAIM.

In the Special Term of the Court of Common Pleas yesterday Judge Van Hoesen rendered an interesting decision in the suit of Hamilton W. Shipman and another against Charles M. Pilesticker and another. The defendants in 1868 were commission merchants in petroleum naphtha. In September of that year they had a claim against the plaintiffs for damages for breach of contract for the sale of 500 barrels of naphtha, and as damages for the breach of this contract the plaintiffs were obliged to pay about $1,500, besides some $1,400, for demurrage to the vessel chartered to convey the naphtha. In order to collect this claim the defendants pursued a somewhat novel course. Pilesticker purchased a quantity of naphtha from the plaintiffs, for which he gave them a check, the payment being stopped beforehand. The defendants obtained the delivery of the goods, as the plaintiffs state, by detaining their check until after bank hours, so that the check could not be certified. On the following morning the defendants notified the teller of the bank that he should write across the check, in red ink, when presented, that the payment was stopped by the maker's order. The sale being for cash, as stated, the plaintiffs regarded this as an attempt to defraud them, and brought this action to recover the price of the goods. They obtained an order of arrest against the defendants, and the motion to vacate this order was made before Judge Van Hoesen. Without going into the various allegations contained in the affidavits of the opposing parties, the following brief decision of Judge Van Hoesen speaks for itself:—"Pilesticker had a secret claim for $310 against Shipman. He never demanded payment, though some months before the transaction in question took place he had told Shipman that he would have a claim for demurrage against him. Never afterward did he intimate that he thought Shipman in his debt. He went on buying goods from Shipman and paying for them. Several months pass, and Pilesticker sees an opportunity of getting some goods from Shipman through trick and stratagem without paying for them. He improves that opportunity, and gets Shipman's goods by giving in pretended payment for them a check, the payment of which he had stopped beforehand. He did not intend to pay Shipman. He did intend to get from Shipman goods far exceeding in value the amount of the disclosed claim for demurrage. He has never paid a cent for the goods which he so obtained. He sold the goods, put the proceeds in his pocket, failed in due season, and now asks to be freed from arrest because before he played this trick he was told by a lawyer that he could offset the claim for demurrage against the price of the goods. If he had paid Shipman the surplus remaining after satisfying the claim for demurrage I should have been disposed to listen more favorably to his appeal for release. I can see nothing in this case but a pretext for fraud. I am not prepared to sanction the doctrine that a man who has a claim, real or imaginary, against another for $50, is at liberty to swindle that other out of a thousand for the purpose of getting an opportunity to offset his fifty. The motion to vacate the order of arrest is denied, with costs."

DIVORCE BULLETIN.

Catharine Hartman brought a suit against her husband, Ferdinand Hartman, proprietor of a hotel in South street, for a limited divorce on the ground of cruel treatment and abandonment. Application was made on her behalf yesterday by her counsel, Mr. Levy, before Judge Potter, in Special Term of the Supreme Court, to compel the defendant to pay his wife $10 a week alimony and $100 counsel fee. In her petition she charges her husband since their marriage in 1872 with continually ill-using her, and that on the 5th of May last year the defendant ejected her and her children from his home, and that he has since failed to provide for them. Mr. Alfred Steckler, counsel for the husband, contended in opposition to the motion that the defendant has always treated the plaintiff with kindness and forbearance, and that owing to the plaintiff's mother's interference in their domestic affairs trouble arose and then the plaintiff voluntarily left his home. He further claimed that it was one of those domestic difficulties which are so often caused by troublesome mothers-in-law. He submitted affidavits corroborating his client's statement, after which Judge Potter took the papers, reserving his decision.

Elizabeth A. Wild states that on the 4th of March last she was married to John Trittenbach. She says that, having been previously plied with liquor, she became intoxicated, and that while thus intoxicated she was taken before a minister, and, as she afterward ascertained, was married to the defendant. She states further that she had no idea at the time of the nature of the service and that she has not since cohabited with the defendant. She has brought suit to have the marriage set aside, and, no answer having been put in, Judge Potter yesterday ordered the matter to be sent before a referee.

The suit for limited divorce brought by Margaret Kennedy against William H. Kennedy, which has been on trial before Judge Sedgwick in the Superior Court, Special Term, was concluded yesterday. The plaintiff, as will be remembered, charged her husband with cruel and inhuman treatment in accusing her of unfaithfulness. The counsel, Messrs. General Roger A. Pryor for the plaintiff, and John E. Develin for the defendant, will hand in their briefs within a few days.

Joseph Schreider has brought a suit for divorce against his wife, Anna Schreider. They were married some three years ago and have two children. Judge Potter yesterday ordered a reference in the case.

TELEGRAPHIC POOLING.

There has already been fully published an account of the pooling arrangement entered into between the Western Union and Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph companies. Mr. Elias C. Benedict, one of the Western Union stockholders, objected to the arrangement and brought suit with a view to have it set aside. Judge Van Brunt, before whom the case was tried at Supreme Court, Special Term, gave his decision yesterday, dismissing the complaint. The main points relied upon by the plaintiff were, that proper notice was not given to the stockholders of this pooling arrangement; that the company had not the legal power to enter into such negotiations, and that the same was contrary to public policy. Judge Van Brunt, in a very elaborate opinion, cites at great length all the facts of the case and, as already stated, dismisses the complaint, holding that the points raised by the plaintiff were not well taken.

THE EXCISE FUND.

The question as to the disposal of the funds paid to the Excise Commissioners in advance on licenses is still a matter of legal investigation. Messrs. Jacob Patterson and George W. Morton, who, together with Owen Murphy, the fugitive, recently constituted the Excise Board, have brought a suit against the city, the Pacific Bank, the German Exchange Bank and others with a view to settle this controverted question. The matter came up before Judge Donohue yesterday. The plaintiffs claim that they were trustees of the fund and that the amount now on deposit should be paid over to them. A large number of the depositors object to the Commissioners having control of the funds, and asked for an order of the Court directing its distribution among the depositors. Judge Donohue took the papers for examination.

SUMMARY OF LAW CASES.

Charles O. Richardson, formerly a clerk in the Treasury Department, Washington, who was indicted for conspiracy, was yesterday discharged on his own recognizance by Judge Benedict.

Commissioner Shields yesterday held H. W. Budtra and John Brount, charged with selling cigars without revenue stamps, to await the action of the Grand Jury.

The calendar of appeals in bankruptcy will be called in the United States Circuit Court by Chief Justice Waite on Thursday, June 20.

Since June 1 Chief Justice Waite has heard arguments on seven writs of error and twenty-seven appeals in admiralty.

Julia E. Cullen, a young lady eighteen years of age, charges George Shrady, a young man of nineteen summers, with breach of promise to marry her. Recently Miss Cullen obtained an order of the Court appointing her brother as guardian ad litem. Judge Potter yesterday appointed the mother of Shrady as his guardian ad litem in defending the suit.

In the early suits instituted by the city against William M. Tweed, among the large number of lis pendens filed, was one against certain real estate on Sixty-third street, near Eighth avenue, owned by Jacob Vander. Application was made yesterday to Judge Potter, with the consent of Attorney General Schoonmaker, to have this lis pendens removed on the ground that Vander is the real owner of the property and that such lis pendens is a cloud on his title. The application was granted.

James Mackinson, a young negro, was placed on trial yesterday by Assistant District Attorney Herring, before Judge Sutherland, charged with robbery. On the night of Decoration Day a stonecutter named James O'Brien went into a saloon at No. 51 Thompson street. He was quickly surrounded by a gang of colored ruffians, among them being the prisoner, beaten and robbed of $3, all the money in his possession, and a gold ring. Three of the men were subsequently arrested and fully identified. The prisoner, Mackinson, who demanded a separate trial, was promptly convicted and sent to the State Prison for ten years.

George Baker broke into the liquor store of Frank Cavanagh, No. 135 First avenue, a few nights since, and carried off a set of billiard balls, a worthless five dollar bill of the Bank of Pontiac and a certificate of 100 shares of the "Bullion Gold and Silver Mining Company." The accused was arrested with some of the stolen articles in his possession. When arraigned for trial yesterday, in the Court of General Sessions, he pleaded guilty, and Judge Gildersleeve sent him to the State Prison for two years.

A criminal named William Gardiner, while awaiting trial in the prisoners' box attached to the Court of General Sessions yesterday, contrived to bend one of the iron bars in the roof, and being of delicate build, squeezed his body through and hid behind the wooden cornice. He was just in the act of crawling along to the end with the view of escaping when Mr. John Oakford, the crier, decried the would-be fugitive and promptly secured him. The prisoner was taken back to the box and handcuffed to another prisoner, and subsequently conveyed to the Tombs.

David March, the septuagenarian pedler, whose retrial on the charge of receiving stolen goods was commenced in the Court of General Sessions on Thursday last before Judge Gildersleeve, was yesterday afternoon found guilty, with a recommendation to mercy. The aged prisoner, it was claimed, had for years purchased large quantities of spool cotton and needles, which had been stolen from H. B. Claflin & Co. On motion of counsel the prisoner was remanded for sentence.

There was tried yesterday before Judge J. F. Daly, in the Court of Common Pleas, a suit brought by Jacob M. Leonhardt against Catharine Beck. The action was brought by the plaintiff to recover a balance claimed to be due him for the building of a monument in the Lutheran Cemetery in memory of the defendant's husband. The monument, according to the plaintiff's statement, was to cost $380. Of this sum $300 was paid, and the plaintiff sued to recover $80 and an additional $28 for lettering. The defence was that the shaft of the monument was a quarter of an inch out of the vertical line, that the base stone was badly set, and that the monument is liable to fall down at any time. The jury gave a verdict for $130 68 for the plaintiff.

In the Court of General Sessions yesterday, before Judge Sutherland, August Vandebogen was placed on trial on an indictment for grand larceny in having stolen a pocketbook containing $80 from the person of Mary Ouman, the keeper of a restaurant at No. 22 South Fifth avenue. The complainant testified that the prisoner came into her restaurant for his breakfast and that after he had gone she missed her pocketbook. Among the money stolen was a counterfeit five-dollar bill, which the prisoner paid to his landlady. Detective Dolan, of the Fifteenth precinct, testified that on arresting the prisoner he admitted having spent the money. The prisoner was defended by Messrs. Alfred Steckler and Emil B. Morel. He was placed upon the stand, and after an examination detailed the full account as to how he came in possession of the money, stating that he found it in the street. Mr. Steckler claimed that inasmuch as his client found the pocketbook the prisoner could not be convicted of larceny. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty.

Ex-Sheriff Conner brought a suit against Cornelius K. Garrison, which was brought to trial yesterday before Judge Van Vorst, holding Supreme Court, Circuit. In a suit brought by Jeremiah H. Reed against the Samana Bay Company an attachment was granted against—among other things—a debt claimed to be due by Garrison to the Samana Bay Company, in which suit a judgment was obtained for $12,500, but only $30 was realized on the execution. The present suit is for the unpaid amount of the defendant's subscription of $20,000 to the stock of the Samana Bay Company. The trial was postponed on a motion to dismiss the complaint for lack of stating the particulars of the incorporation of the company and of Garrison's subscription, but with leave to the plaintiffs to renew the suit on amending their pleadings.

Mr. William P. Foster, in a petition, submitted to Judge Potter, holding Supreme Court, Chambers, states that ten shares of the New York Central Railroad Company issued to Lockwood & Co. in June, 1868, were sold by them to Charles N. White; that the certificates were attached in two suits, and, being sold under such attachment, became his property, and that such certificates were subsequently lost. He explains the loss by stating that White, while engaged in buying small certificates and raising their amounts, absconded in June, 1868, and, as Mr. Foster believes, these particular certificates were destroyed in an unsuccessful attempt to raise them. He states further that in November, 1869, the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad companies consolidated, and that the new company refused to issue certificates in place of those lost. He asks in his petition that the railroad company be compelled to issue such new certificates. Judge Potter yesterday ordered a reference to John C. Crowley.

Judge Van Vorst gave a decision yesterday in the suit brought by Augustus Stinde and others against Joseph Ridgeway and others, tried before him at Supreme Court, Special Term. The plaintiffs brought suit as next of kin of Charles H. Walter, who, together with his two children and Mrs. Ridgeway, his wife's mother, were lost at the wreck of the steamship Schiller off the coast of Nova Scotia. The question was as to which of the unfortunate victims of the wreck died first, and who, under Mrs. Ridgeway's will, was entitled to her estate. Judge Van Vorst holds that it is a matter of no consequence which died first, and as the property was vested in trustees, it would not go to Walter's next of kin, but to the parties named in the will.

Archibald Torpey shipped as an able-bodied seaman on board a schooner of which Ichabod Wiley was captain for a voyage from Baltimore to the West Indies. The vessel had been but three days at sea when Torpey was in charge of the wheel. The captain came along by the wheel, and, finding the ship two points off her course, ordered Torpey to correct the error. This, Torpey says, he was doing, when, as he was stooping down to observe the compass, he was struck by the captain on the back of the head with some instrument which cut him severely, and this was followed up by the captain, the two mates and the stewart pouncing upon him, beating him and putting him in irons. For the injuries thus sustained Torpey brought a suit in the Marine Court to recover $490 damages, in which he joined his four assailants as defendants. The case was tried yesterday before Judge Sinnott. The explanation of the defendants was that when the captain ordered Torpey to bring the vessel back to her course he struck the captain, and, being a powerful man, the aid of the subordinate officers became necessary for the purpose of subduing and placing him in irons. A verdict for $320 50 was given for the plaintiff.

PARALYSIS OF THE BRAIN.

WAS IT CAUSED BY OVERWORK IN MISS HAMILTON'S CASE?—OPINIONS OF HER FRIENDS AND TEACHERS IN THE NORMAL COLLEGE.

Miss Henrietta Hamilton, one of the graduating class at the Normal College, died on Wednesday of last week and was buried on Friday. In regard to the cause of her death there has been considerable discussion, but a careful investigation seems to leave no doubt that it was an undue application to her studies. Miss Hamilton was the daughter of Mr. William E. Dodge's coachman, and being bright, ambitious and clever, had formed some years ago the design of obtaining as good an education as the public schools of New York afford, and of devoting herself to teaching after she had completed her course of study. She was rather tall and slender, having grown very rapidly for the past few years, with a pretty and very pleasing face and intellectual features. She graduated from the Twenty-eighth street public school before she was fourteen years old, and as fourteen years, however, is the limit of youth, beyond which the Normal College will not go in admitting students, she was obliged to wait, although unwillingly, and enter that institute with the next class following. At this time, even, she was less than fourteen and a half years old, and from the accounts given was far too immature to enter on such a curriculum as that of the Normal College. No objection under the rule can, however, be urged against students who have completed their fourteenth year, and she was admitted, as three girls of the same age have been admitted this week.

Her father, although he knew that she studied hard, did not suppose that she was seriously injuring herself thereby, and it was a surprise to him when she was prostrated by her last illness. She would very often, he said, pore over her books constantly from three o'clock in the afternoon till ten at night. When she was taken with convulsions and intense pain in the head last month he took her to Dr. Delafield who had ordered her to give up her study at once and to rest. There was no doubt in his mind that the system of the Normal College was blamable, and that by the arduousness of the course of study there very many girls were broken down in health.

A call was next made on President Hunter, of the Normal College, for the purpose of learning what he knew of the case. Ex-Mayor Wickham, the chairman of the Board of Education's Committee on the Normal College, was talking with the president and listened quietly while the latter replied to a question about Miss Hamilton's case. President Hunter said:—"It does not at all appear that Miss Hamilton died of overwork. Paralysis of the brain is a disease that laboring men often have. But the fact of one of our girls dying is made the text for accusations against the Normal College, and physicians, when they cannot give a diagnosis of a case, at once say that the trouble was too much work."

"I don't agree with you," said Mr. Wickham. "I think it is very probable that among the girls we have here there are a good many who work too hard, and who suffer from it; and it is very probable that this one died from the effects of it. But I do not see that the school is to blame. The parents who push their children forward, or the students themselves, are the ones who are to blame. We take all the pains we can to keep them from overstudy, but we cannot watch them at home."

President Hunter, after some further conversation, in which he virtually admitted the justice of this, called Miss Wood, in whose classroom Miss Hamilton had been, and who had kept the record of her attendance. Miss Wood said she had not specially urged her to cease from her studies. She often did urge students, she said, to rest when she thought they were overtaxing themselves, but she did not remember having had any special conversation with Miss Hamilton about it.

The writer then repeated what the girl's father had told him about her studying seven hours a day, and President Hunter said that the orders given to the students, which were repeated to them frequently from time to time, were that no girl should study more than two hours and a half daily out of school, and, excepting in the senior class, only two hours a day was allowed. It was, however, he said, impossible for the teachers to prevent them from studying more if they chose.

BEATEN WITH HIS OWN CLUB.

At about half-past one o'clock yesterday morning patrolman William H. Taylor, of the Thirteenth precinct, who enjoys the sobriquet of "Dashing Bill" in these parts, came upon some members of a Sheriff street gang acting in a boisterous way, and he ordered them to go home. Not one stirred. "We'll do what we mind to," said a voice, "and if you dare to meddle with us we'll break your head." This the officer believed came from one young man named Michael Hurley. A further warning was unheeded, and then he proceeded to disperse the party as best he could, and seized one of them by the arm to arrest him. At once he was caught about the waist and flung backward, while a man who had seized him by the throat wrenched his club from him. He called for assistance, but was thrown to the ground, and there assailed by the whole gang. His own club and the boots of the ruffians were plied upon him repeatedly before he could draw his revolver, but that once in his hand he regained his feet and shouted, "Let any man move his hand and I'll kill him dead." This had the effect of restraining further violence, and trusting to the fear the weapon inspired he put Hurley under arrest. At the Essex Market Court yesterday the prisoner pleaded that he had not taken any part in the trouble, but was held by Judge Bixby to answer.

A SHARP BOY.

"Come, boy, carry this valise for me and earn a quarter," said a stranger to little John Eagleson as he stood in Houston street on Monday night. The speaker had a portly bag in his hand and was in company with another and a rather hard looking character. The boy took the valise and trotted on ahead of the pair, but when he noticed the valise was slightly broken his suspicions were aroused. Patrolman Allen was on post near by, and as they passed him the boy slyly winked and nodded at his burden. The officer took the cue and came up after them, when one of the men drew a knife, struck at him with it and made off while he was securing the other. The valise contained several burglars' tools and a quantity of clothing, which was identified by John H. Barber, of No. 21 Jones street, as having been stolen from his house. The prisoner said his name was George Watson, of No. 281 East Forty-third street. He denied his guilt, but was committed by Justice Murray yesterday in $1,000.

STRUCK WITH A MATCH SAFE.

Henry Fuller, the keeper of a lager beer saloon at No. 698 Second avenue, was struck on the head in his saloon on the 26th ult. by a China match box thrown by a young man named Joseph Smith. He died from the result of his injuries on the 4th inst. An inquest was held in his case yesterday by Coroner Flanagan, when the jury determined that deceased came to his death from uræmic convulsions, the effect of chronic Bright's disease of the kidneys, and that his death was accelerated by a blow upon the head with a match box in the hands of Joseph Smith on the night of May 26, at No. 698 Second avenue. Since the time of the assault Smith has disappeared and the police are unable to discover his whereabouts.

OUR COMPLAINT BOOK.

NATIONAL CAPITAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

Can you give me any information in regard to the National Capital Life Insurance Company, of Washington? What has become of it? What are the policy holders doing? W. R. M.

REDUCED FARE FOR TEACHERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

Several school teachers, in order to save time, would prefer riding on the Metropolitan Elevated Railway, but they think ten cents too high. They request you to use your influence toward getting a reduction for their benefit. T. E. A.

A DIFFICULT EXAMINATION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

The late examination for admission to the College of the City of New York was difficult. The history paper was ridiculous, and the grammar was severe. The marking of the paper of the candidates was careless, as was seen after the results were read. CANDIDATE.

THE DRY GOODS CLERKS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

Allow me a small space to say a few words in behalf of the dry goods clerks in those stores which keep open from half-past seven A. M. until nearly midnight Saturday nights. There is no class of our working people who suffer more than they do. The proprietors of these establishments would do as much business if they closed at nine P. M. Who will start an early closing movement? SUFFERER.

AHEAD OF TIME.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

At precisely twenty-five minutes past seven this (Monday) morning the ticket agent of the Metropolitan Elevated Railroad at Forty-second street and Sixth avenue demanded ten cents fare from all who wished to purchase tickets. Many objected, but he most insultingly remarked that his watch showed half-past seven, and that was sufficient. Quite a number paid the ten cents in haste and went aboard, while eight or ten gentlemen who protested against such proceedings pulled out their watches and showed him it was not half-past seven o'clock. He then grumblingly reduced his fare to five cents. RAPID TRANSIT.

PROPERTY OWNERS AND THE METROPOLITAN RAILROAD.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

Have the residents and owners of property in the vicinity of New Church street, between Rector and Morris, any rights that the elevated railroad officials are bound to respect? They have erected a coaling and a watering station in the centre of the street, together with a repair shop for their engines, so that the street is become impassable. Water and ashes are constantly falling on the backs of our children if they venture out of doors. The sledge and hammer are going ding dong all night through, preventing our families from taking any rest. We thought in our verdancy that they simply had the right of way and not the right to build machine shops in our streets. It would be much safer for us all if the Common Council would close the street before lives are lost, as there certainly will be. I had to pay about $5,000 assessment on two lots in Greenwich street and one on Laight street for the extension of New Church street, and now the street is closed as far as any business is concerned. I thought I read in the HERALD that it was opposed to Communism; then why does it favor elevated railroadism without making them pay for what property they destroy? In this section they have destroyed the most valuable property in the city except Murray Hill and a section of Broadway and Wall street. M. H.

ANSWER.

COMPLAINTS AGAINST THE METROPOLITAN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

I do not care anything about the Metropolitan Elevated road excepting in so far as it accommodates me in getting up and down town quickly and affords a reasonable amount of comfort in doing that business, but I am surprised at many of the complaints in reference to the road published in the HERALD. I assume that occasion for such reasonable complaints as those of overcrowding and not running on Sundays will soon be obviated, because it will appear clearly to the interests of the promoters of the enterprise not to overcrowd and to run on Sundays.

But the complaints about noise, about an accidental spilling of ashes and about a train not waiting for a lady seem extremely frivolous. I have never witnessed the spilling of ashes on surface pedestrians, and I have no doubt that if any damage or annoyance were caused by the accident in question the company is responsible for the former and would be willing to compensate for the latter.

I never heard of a noiseless railroad before, and consider the gentleman advocating that as entirely exceeding his jurisdiction in intimating the association with himself of all the residents of Sixth avenue. If the company promised paper wheels it ought to put them on; but any one knows, or ought to know, that paper wheels will not make Sunday of a railroad. I will wager something that the complainant never owned a dollar's worth of property along the line of the road and never has patronized it.

If there is a railroad in this country the officials of which are more capable, intelligent, active and accommodating than those on the Gilbert trains I would like to know it.

No lady or gentleman can reasonably expect a hundred or two of passengers or the expeditious running of trains to await his or her slow motions; and, coupled with the chronic uncertainty and slowness of some ladies in regard to getting on cars, when they happen to be timid about it, I pity the officials.

In my opinion the majority of complaints against the Gilbert originate either from those who never paid any fare and were ejected in consequence, or those who have tried to ride all day on one fare and were reminded of its being time to evacuate.

As to politeness, the Gilbert is deficient. What right has a conductor to tell a lady or gentleman to "make haste" or "hurry up?" He ought to say, "My dear madam of the queenly presence," or "My dear sir of the immaculate linen," recite a piece of poetry appropriate to the occasion, and wind up by the information that being on the platform himself he is disposed to wait all day, but he begs them to be as expeditious as possible, not on account of the company's business, but because the following train may smash into the rear car and kill fifty or sixty people who are in a hurry. W. E. S.

TRACTS AND TOBACCO.

"I'm down on ministers, I am," said a gruff-looking Fourth ward burglar through the bars of his cell in the Tombs, yesterday, to a reporter.

"And why so?" queried the reporter.

"Oh, they're no good. They're all frauds. There was two of 'em come to see me to-day. They don't amount to nothin'. I'm a pagan, I am," and the speaker emphasized his remarks by dashing a chew of tobacco which he took from his mouth against the narrow window of his cell. "They don't amount to nothin'," he repeated. "I've given 'em up as a bad lot."

"What is the particular cause of your dislike?" asked the reporter.

"Well, I'll tell you. There was one of 'em come to see me this mornin' an' advised me to read the Bible and reform. I took it all in, an' just as he was goin' to leave I asked him to send me a paper of terbacker. An' what do you spose he said?"

"What did he say?"

"He said terbacker hurt the constitution, an' he didn't want to do nothin' that could injure my health—the bloke—so I told him to get out. But there was another of 'em worse than him."

"How was that?" inquired the writer.

Well, I was awful hard up for a chew, an' I made up my mind I'd work him for one. An' so when he came to talk to me I played pious and took in every word. An' would you believe it? He plied on the agony for half an hour, giving me fire and brimstone and brotherly love, and all that sort o' business. Oh, warn't it hot!" The speaker here wiped his head with his coat sleeve, as if the recollection made him perspire.

"Well, how did it end?"

"After I had stood it for an awful while I broke in and asked him perlitely for a chew of terbacker, an' what do you think he gave me?"

"I don't know. What?"

"Why, a tract, with the Ten Commandments on it. He said it was better than terbacker."

"What did you do with it?"

"What would any feller have done with it? I chucked it at his head, of course, and told him he was no good."

BROOKLYN BRIDGE EXPENSES.

At a recent meeting of the Board of Aldermen a resolution was passed calling upon the Tax Commissioners to furnish certain information as to property taken in this city for use of the Brooklyn Bridge. The Commissioners state that 168,890 square feet of land was taken by the corporation. The assessed value of the property was as follows:—For 1875, $844,300; 1876, $793,050; 1877, $717,300; 1878, $630,500. They further state that the taxes on the property since 1875 would have been as follows:—1875, $24,822 42; 1876, $23,640 40; 1877, $22,289 40. The tax upon the valuation of 1875 for the year 1877, at the rate of that year, $2 65, would have been $22,373 95; the tax upon the actual valuation for 1877—$717,300—at the same rate, was $19,008 45, showing a loss of $3,365 50. The loss on the tax of 1876 was $1,351; on the tax of 1877 it was $2,835 50—a total loss so far as ascertained of $4,716 50. The tax rate for 1878 not having yet been determined, it is not possible to determine the loss either for this year or for 1879. It is stated at the end of the report that when the bridge is completed it is possible the property might be assessed at a sum exceeding the valuation placed upon it in 1875.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

PROCEEDINGS AND PETITIONS IN BANKRUPTCY—ASSIGNEES APPOINTED.

John G. Hitchcock, wholesale dealer in men's furnishing goods, late at No. 676 Broadway is in voluntary bankruptcy before Register Ketchum. His liabilities amount to $77,416 32, of which $50,916 32 are secured. Among the creditors are W. S. Moody, $16,000; J. A. Moneil, $13,893; Charles E. Clark, $5,000; John S. Aulls, $2,500; Augustus C. Brown, $3,000; George L. Hyatt, $2,250; E. A. Newell, $3,363 32. All of the above are secured. Mrs. F. W. Brown, $3,385; Mrs. M. Hitchcock, $2,200. The assets consist of real estate at Mamaroneck and Malone, N. Y., valued at $30,500, fully mortgaged; stock, $11,580 24; notes, $2,911 07; fixtures, $1,000; debts due, $8,763 09, all of which have been assigned for the benefit of the creditors.

Charles H. Krack, dry goods dealer of Woodstock, N. Y., has gone into voluntary bankruptcy in this city to get rid of old debts, amounting to $145, and he has no assets.

Meyer G. Loewenstein has been adjudicated an involuntary bankrupt on the petition of Max Danziger, Solomon Caspary and Jacob L. Maschke, whose claims aggregate $899.

Register Fitch has received a voluntary petition in bankruptcy by Lawrence M. Luther, Jr., and William B. Luther, composing the firm of Luther Brothers, dealers in fruits at No. 181 Washington street. The firm's liabilities amount to $9,145 26, of which $5,187 89 are on promissory notes. The assets were assigned for the benefit of the creditors, and were valued at $2,949 45. The principal creditors are Brown & Secomb, $1,273 38; Mrs. C. H. Miller, $1,041 67. Lawrence M. Luther, Jr., has individual liabilities of $240 and William B. $778.

Register Allen yesterday granted the application allowing Frank Pastor, partner with James Robinson in the circus business, to join the proceedings in bankruptcy, and the meeting of the latter's creditor's, which was to have been held yesterday, had been adjourned sine die.

Discharges in bankruptcy have been granted by Judge Choate to Abner E. Smith, Addison B. Getty and Frederick W. Getty, produce merchants, of No. 175 West street.

ASSIGNMENTS.

Greenleaf W. Higley and Henry A. Higley, doing business under the firm style of Charles Higley & Co., at No. 334 Washington street, made an assignment yesterday, for the benefit of their creditors, to Benjamin Estes. They were a poultry commission firm and have had excellent credit. They have been in business many years, Charles Higley, the founder of the firm, having died in 1874.

Bernard Bretzfelder, dealer in carpets at No. 12 avenue B, made an assignment yesterday for the benefit of his creditors to Morris Goodhart, lawyer, of No. 17 Warren street. His troubles are the result of real estate depreciation. His real estate was sold on Monday, leaving a mortgage deficiency against him of $7,000. His liabilities will probably amount to $20,000, and the value of his assets are not known at present.

Joseph Thompson, block and pump maker at No. 81 South street, made an assignment to Samuel Buckels yesterday for the benefit of his creditors. He has been in business for a number of years, and his liabilities will probably not exceed $10,000.

An assignment was filed yesterday by Fred M. Perrin, dealer in liquors at No. 299½ Broadway, to Charles E. Lansing for the benefit of his creditors. He had been in the business about four months, and his liabilities amount to about $1,500.

MEETINGS OF CREDITORS.

A meeting of the creditors of McDonald & Nunan, builders, at Lexington avenue and 116th street, was held yesterday at the office of Register Dwight. The schedules presented showed liabilities amounting to $73,000, and one claim was proved for $4,794 94 by George P. Upham, trustee. John H. Platt was appointed assignee.

The creditors of Sidney W. Cooper, lawyer, late at No. 176 Broadway, met at the office of Register Dayton, and John H. Platt was appointed assignee. The schedules showed liabilities amounting to $31,500.

A meeting of the creditors of Pettee & Mann, dealers in iron, at No. 229 South street, was held at the office of Register Fitch. Three claims were proved—by Thomas Darlington, $5,000; Josephine A. Pettee, $4,047 88, and James Kerns, $1,562 70. The latter creditor objected to the claims of Pettee and Darlington, alleging that they were pretended, and on his application the Register granted an order for the examination of the bankrupt. Schedules were presented showing liabilities amounting to $30,000.

At a meeting of the creditors of Joseph R. Buchanan, held at the office of Register Fitch, John H. Platt was appointed assignee in bankruptcy.

RAPID TRANSIT PASSENGERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

Will you please call the attention of the Metropolitan Elevated Railroad Company to the vital importance of stopping at the stations long enough to enable the passengers to get off. I have patronized the road since its opening and always spoke in favor of it from the time of its inception, and I do hope it will be a financial success, as it will if the company make it their whole duty to study the wishes of the travelling public and do all in their power to promote and secure the good will of those who may patronize the road. If the road would make money it must appreciate the wants of the general public. The road must depend for its support upon the people, and not the people upon the road. I am willing to make every reasonable allowance for the opening of a new railroad, but, at the same time, the road on its part should at least observe some order or system in the transportation of passengers. On Saturday last I went aboard the train to go to my home on Eighth street, and when the train reached that station the conductor announced the station. I told him I wished to get off. I was on the front platform of the forward car, and when the train stopped the car was its entire length beyond the platform, and it was impossible for me to step off unless I stepped down into the street. Some of the platforms are very narrow, not as long as two cars, so I was conveyed to the next station, against my will, thus defeating the very purpose I had in view, of getting home earlier than by way of the horse cars. A FRIEND OF RAPID TRANSIT.

CHEAP TRAINS WANTED.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

Will you call the attention of Mr. Vanderbilt to the pleasure he can give many people and also profit to his railway by establishing cheap trains on the Hudson River, that people can spend their summer at Catskill and other points which the high fare renders impossible? Excursion tickets should be issued and commutation tickets should include all of one family. Now that the Elevated Railway makes it easy to reach his depot thousands would travel on the Hudson River road if the trains were within their means.

PRO BONO PUBLICO.

MUNICIPAL NOTES.

The Board of Alderman yesterday adopted a resolution directing the Park Commissioners to report their plans for changing Tompkins square into a public park, in accordance with the authority conferred upon them by a special act of the last Legislature.

A resolution declaring it inexpedient at the present time to interfere with the Department of Public Works in controlling the matter of street sprinkling in this city was laid over for future consideration by the Aldermen.

A committee from the Industrial Association visited the Mayor's office yesterday for the purpose of procuring permission to examine the accounts of the various departments of this city. The committee consisted of Colonel James E. Kerrigan, William H. Lindsay, Adam Kramer, Jeremiah C. Griffin, John McGinty, John D. Fitzpatrick, James Livingston, Terence McGinty and Victor Parton. They presented a communication in which it is stated that they propose "to investigate certain operations of various departments of the city government with a special view toward ascertaining what disposition is being made in detail of the appropriations intrusted to the departments for disbursement." Mayor Ely was not present when the committee called and the document was handed to his chief clerk. He will probably give an answer to the committee to-day.
